

"Paul at Athens" The Subject of Interesting Discourse by Rev. Benjamin Young.

SAVIOR'S ATTITUDE DEFINED.

Rev. Walker Speaks from the Text, "A Woman Reformer" at First Baptist Church.

Rev. Benjamin Young preached on "Paul at Athens," yesterday morning, and said in part:

"Paul recognized the fact of sin. He appealed to conscience. Men were conscious of wrong. Men have done wrong and are out of harmony with God, because of sin. It was an old and unfashionable doctrine which Paul preached, simply, 'Repent!' Then he touched upon the judgment and immortality. Perhaps he knew of the teaching of Plato on immortality, but the Apostle pointed to the definite re-surrection of Jesus Christ as the pledge of another life, "What a message this was in the court of Athens! What would Paul court of Athens! What would Paul preach today? Would he talk about art, or enlarge upon the beauty of philoso-phy? Would he go into the ecstacles of metaphysics? Does the world need so much metaphysics? Is not sin pres-ent here in all its destructive and damn-ing power? You remember the story of Stevenson, 'Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde.' Stevenson, 'Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde.' The doctor is transformed to Mr. Hyde, the embodiment of diabolism, by the use of a strangely concocted mixture. One night the vial containing the mix-ture is broken. It happens when Dr. Jekyl is Mr. Hyde, and with the secret gone the doctor is swallowed up in Mr. Hyde forever. "Without Jesus Christ the secret of Without Jesus Christ the secret of salvation, of hope, of power for men is lost. You cannot lift up the world by a religion of dilettantelsm. You cannot save men by cau de cologne, You must have a great system, a great doc-trine and a great life. There must be an uplifted cross and a divine Christ. 'He preached unto them Jesus.'

THE SAVIOR'S ATTITUDE.

Rev. D. A. Brown of the First Baptist church preached last evening on "The Attitude and Answer of Jesus Christ to the Appeal of the World for Divine Help." In the course of his remarks the speaker said:

remarks the speaker said: "Every soul makes an appeal for di-vine help. That appeal is met by Jesus Christ. In meeting that appeal Jesus fakes the initiative. This means two things: First, that we are led to ap-peal for divine help because of the at-titude Jesus Christ takes in offering divine assistance; second, that Jesus is more willing to give divine help than more willing to give divine help than we are to ask. Parent and child illustrate the latter thought. The former, knowing the need of his child and his ability to supply it, is more anxious for the latter's welfare than is the child

This attitude of the Divine Mind toward the human soul is evident to every one who has read the Bible or studied the life and teachings of Jesus Christ. To him who reads the Book of books everywhere is seen the tracks of God made for man's feet; to him "Jesus, the Christ," Dr. Talmage car-ried to completion the subject present-ed on the syllabus distributed a week ago-the beginning of the public minis-try of Jesus. The visit of Nicodemus was graphically described and mi-nutely analyzed. This man, a Phara-see of rank, a member of the Sanhe-drim, a master in Isarael, came by night to ensuite of the young Galiliea, be-SAVAGE'S BIG to enquire of the young Galillean, be-fore whom even the officers of the tem-ple had qualled. He evidently had great respect for Jesus, as appears not only on the occasion of this visit, but afteron the occasion of this visit, but after-ward when he urged caution in the council of Jewish rabbis, who were seeking the Savior's life, and again when he brought his costly gift of spices to embalim the body of the cru-cified Christ.

To his implied question, Jesus an-swered firmly, giving the law of bap-tism by water and that of the bestowal of the Spirit. The Savior's reproach-"Art thou a master of Israel, and knowest not these things?" implies a previous teaching of the Gospel in part. In this interview Jesus made the sec-ond prediction of His death, and de-scribed the manner thereof. The significance of the title "Son of Man" was next considered. In the Gos-pels this appelation appears only as applied by Jesus to Himself; and in only three other instances is it used by applied by Jesus to Himself: and in only three other instances is it used by New Testament writers. It is signifi-cant of Christ's humanity, which ele-ment is as truly essential to the work of the atonement as is that of His God-ly character on the other. Then, passing to the topic of the day, presented on the printed syllabus un-der the title, "Honored and rejected." the lecturer told the story of the begin-ning of the ministry of the Redeemer in Galilee. The journey of Christ and His disciples through Samaria, and the interview with the Samaritan woman at Jacob's well were full of interest. at Jacob's well were full of interest. The Samaritans were a mixed people-a mingling of the blood of Israel with that of the Assyrians and other heathen nations: yet at the period un-der consideration they vied with the Jews in their scrupulous observance of the law. There was hatred between the people of Judea and the Samaritans. Yet to a Samaritan woman, and a con-fessed sinner at that, but one who had fessed sinner at that, but one who had opened her heart to a testimony of the truth, Jesus made His first formal dec-laration that He was the long expected Messiah. Many Samaritans accepted the teachings of our Lord, and cer-tainly He shared none of the hatred of the Jews toward them. He chose a Sa-maritan character to illustrate the bet-ter qualities in one of the most in-structive of the prables. Returning to His home-town, Naz-areth, He preached in the synagogue, and was rejected of His own; the peo-ple rose against their Savior, and Sought His life; but the hour had not yet come.

Prof. Mills spoke on the "Rise, Pro-Prof. Mills spoke on the "Rise, Pro-gress and Fall of the Jaredite Nation." After a few introductory remarks on the finding of the 24 plates of gold by the expedition sent out by Limhi, the translation of them by Moslah, and the abridgement made by Moroni, the speaker confined himself entirely to the contents of the book itself. He spoke of rebellions, survations, revolut and of rebellions, usurpations, revolts, and civil wars, as leading to the fall of the nation. Interesting incidents were related.

The Savage Grand Opera company arrived in good shape and on time this morning, in a special train of time this morning, in a special train of 12 cars from San Francisco, the first real grand opera company to visit this city in 17 years. Manager F, P, Weadon and part of his singers registered at the Kenyon. Miss Jeane Brooks and others of the company went to the Knutsford, and the remainder of the company divided up among the other batels.

Manager Weadon stated this morning Manager Weadon stated this morning that the company had met with steady success all along the line of route; and to his pleasure and surprise he had found that in San Francisco which changes its climatic garb seven times a day, and where so many prima don-nas fall down with sore throats, his singers had managed to keep up their health, and there were no vocal casual-ties. But Mr. Weadon and a number of others in the Savage company found it decidedly chilly in Salt Lake this moru-ing in their Californian summer attire, and lost no time in getting into heavier ing in their Californian summer attire, and lost no time in getting into heavier raiment. Other members of the troups have some acquaintance here, as in the case of Mr. Engberg of the orchestra, who is a Salt Lake boy, and is having a good time today visiting with rela-tives and friends. Mr. Engberg has been away from home for some eight years, during which time he has seen a good deal of the world, including an extended tour under Sousa. Miss Brooks has been in Sait Lake before, and was born and raised in Denver, where her father was Brigadier Ganeral Brooks commanding the state national guard and a highly respected citizen. Miss Brooks sang for years in St. John's cathedral and other noted Den-ver churches. Miss Brooks' brother was formerly a deputy United States mar-shal back in the territorial days, and was stationed for some time in the Ashley country. There are 150 meonle in the Sav-

They expect an enthusiastic attendance in this city, as Mr. Weadon remarked this morning, that he had heard a great deal about Sait Lake being a great musical center;

Sait Lake being a great musical center; consequently the members of the com-pany feel that their efforts will cer-tainly be appreciated here. The extent of the performances of the company is suggested by the fact that it carried a wardrobe including 690 pairs of women's shoes, 800 pairs of men's shoes, 2,000 costumes, 280 hau-berks, 2000 hair cars and helmets, 1110 berks, 2,000 hats, caps and helmets, 1,110 properties, including spears, swords, torches, candelabra, boudoir ornaments, etc. The cars of this requires quite a force of property and wardrobe cus-todians; and of the 12 cars in the speFirst Through Special Train from the East Has Been Booked by the Salt Lake Route. on "A woman Reformer," in which he said: "Woman ought to be in the place God has called her to. He deals with the individual, and it is not for us to limit the manifold variations of his plan. The prophetess Deborah was spoken of as a woman who, while she had her own home, was called to service outside its sacred precincts. Her words fired the Israelitish heart, arousing the people to determination to throw off the yoke of the oppressor. Together with Barak, she led them to victory. We know little of Deborah's home life, yet we cannot believe she was faithless in one duty to render service in another. "The home offers woman the largest opportuity for effective service. As a wife and mother her influence is in-comparable. There she renders her moat abiding service, for it is with hearts

PUTTING IN OIL TANK

Las Vegas to be Division Point for Coal And Oil Engines.

And Oil Engines. A gang of men is now at work at Las Vegas erecting coal chutes and oil tanks for the fuel for locomotives. Las Vegas is to be the division point where the coal burning and oil con-suming engines will meet. West of this oasis all engines will burn oil, which means that there will be no unpleas-ant smoke or flying cinders to distress the patrons of the new line. East of Las Vegas on to Salt Lake coal will be

Dr. Bracken who is up from Las Veand work is being pushed on the ice plant and other buildings so that they will be in readiness in time for the op-ening. The hobo element, he affirms, has practically forsaken the place and the result now is that there is a small and select community there.
