GEORGE KERL HEARING.

Preliminary Examination of Colored Man Charged With Stealing $1100.

In Judge Diehl's court this morning George Kerl, a negro, and a preliminary hearing in the charge of grand larceny. He is the man accused of complicity in the crime of robbing J. R. Edwards of $1100.

The principal witnesses were a colored bookkeeper named Allen, and an Ogden "bookkeeper" named Samuel Drozdowski. The latter testified that the defendant paid him $12 to drive him and two colored women to Ogden on the night of the robbery. Drozdowski testified that on the 22nd of February the defendant tried to change a $100 bill at his place.

The defense offered no evidence whatever, but Attorney Gustin asked that the accused be discharged on the ground that the state had failed to make a case. The court held that there was not probably cause to believe the defendant guilty and he was discharged.

INDIAN FIGHTER DIES.

Alexander S. Gibson Called to Rally on Other Side.

Alexander S. Gibson, a familiar figure in this city since early days and one of the picturesque survivors of the Indian wars of the state, died at Sunnyside yesterday afternoon of dysentery, an ailment from which he had been suffering for several months.

Mr. Gibson was born in Scotland nearly 30 years ago, but in his youth he came to this country and fought with the Indians in 1862 against the hostiles. When the Indians began to show a hostile spirit towards the settlers he was one of the first to volunteer to protect the people from the red men. He served in many of the fights and skirmishes that ensued and no matter what the nature of the fight he was always ready to go, whether the sentinel to walk the lonely plain, or to take his gun and charge the foe, he was always the same brave, ready to die for his country.

His remains were brought to Joseph Williams Taylor's undertaking parlors, from which place the funeral was held this afternoon. The interment was in the city cemetery.
