Relief Society in Conference
Hears Advice From Mothers on Subject.

SILVER HAIR IN EVIDENCE.

Venerable Workers for Charity Sing
Old Hymns in Stirring Manner—
Song Written by Mrs. Cannon.

The lower part of Assembly hall and a portion of the gallery were filled this morning on the occasion of the second day's session of the Relief society conference. The majority of those present were women past the meridian of life, many being well advanced in years, but if any one imagines that the ability to sing is confined to the younger generation such a person should have been present today and listened to the rendition of old time favorite hymns by that, for the most part, silver haired congregation. Such sweetness and harmony could scarcely have been heard anywhere or among any people, old or young.

There were present upon the stand President Bathsheba W. Smith, her counselor, Annie T. Hyde, Secretary Emmeline B. Wells, Treasurer Clarissa S. Williams, Jane S. Richards, Julia P. M. Farnsworth, Emily S. Richards, Alice N. Nibley, Maggie C. Roberts, Emma A. Empey, and other leading Relief society workers.

OLD HYMNS SANG.

"Praise to the Man Who Communed With Jehovah," "Do What is Right," and "The Spirit of God Like a Fire is Burning," were sung by the congregation. Miss Beattie Smith sang the solo number "Resignation," and Miss Edna Comay played as an organ number, Bathsheba W. Smith, offered the invocation and Mrs. Ann Woodbury pronounced the benediction.

ALICE MERRILL HORNE.

Mrs. Alice Merrill Horne made the opening address. As a suggestion against the tendency of young people to take a wrong course, the speaker thought that, returning to the matter of dress should be considered. Fashion and style are too often allowed to rest upon the altar where reason and common sense should reign. Young girls in the country are, if anything, dressed more gaudily than are the girls in cities. Mothers should have the authority in the matter of choosing their daughters' wearing apparel, and of superintending the style and making thereof. Girls should be taught and encouraged to make their own clothing, and simplicity should be a predominating feature. In this way the false pride would be avoided, and in many instances parents would have less trouble with their children.

ANNIE WELLS CANNON.

"The organization and harmony of the Relief society is no less perfect than those of the Church," declared Mrs. Annie Wells Cannon. The charity dispensed by Church members should go through the proper channels. Promiscuous giving by individuals is by no means best, as organized relief and aid societies are in a better position to wisely discriminate between the classes known as worthy poor and unworthy poor.

Many avenues for doing good are open to women. One of the most important of these just now is the purification of municipalities and with the suffrage extended to the sex glorious results might be achieved. In the discussion were united effort put forth by women.

ANDREW KIMBALL.

President Andrew Kimball of St. Joseph spoke in behalf of the Relief societies of his jurisdiction, in the absence of officers of those organizations. The benefits of the Church, temporal as well as spiritual, are being extended to districts where thousands of non-Church people dwell. Retrenchment in the matter of dress as well as in other ways, met with the hearty endorsement of the speaker. Too often women make the mistake of thinking that they shall wear and what shall be provided to eat, to the detriment of their physical, mental and spiritual welfare.

STAKE REPORTS.

Mrs. Zuviah Eardley of Liberty stake reported the nine wards of that stake as to membership and scope of work, and similar reports were made by Mrs. Hattie B. Harker of the Salt Lake stake and Mrs. Sarah Little Clawson of Pioneer stake.

MRS. JANE D. RICHARDS.

Mrs. Jane D. Richards, a veteran Relief society worker of Ogden, made a short but feeling address, breathing a spirit of love, charity, patience and forbearance that characterizes the strict attention and sympathy of her listeners. "We were not brought up by the same mother," said Mrs. Richards, "and this fact should not be forgotten in our relations one with the other." The speaker bore a forceful testimony to the truth of the gospel as taught by the Latter-day Saints.

MRS. REBECCA LITTLE.

Mrs. Rebecca E. Little said that recipients of charity should be provided with something to do, if possible, that they may be made to feel that they are not entirely dependent upon others. Public institutions throughout the country were referred to as showing worthy examples in this direction.

MRS. REBECCA NIBLEY.

Mrs. Rebecca N. Nibley offered suggestions as to mothers endeavoring to gain the confidence of their sons as well as their daughters, as thereby many a pitfall will be avoided. No mortal influence is so sweet and powerful as that of a mother over her son, she said.

MRS. MAGGIE C. ROBERTS.

The training and labors of nurses were dwelt upon by Dr. Maggie C. Roberts. The securing of suitable women in each city and town to take up nursing as a profession was encouraged by the speaker. The field for doing good in this direction is very broad, as well as affording splendid opportunity for remunerative employment.

SONG BY MRS. CANNON.

The words of the solo rendered yesterday afternoon in a pleasing manner by Mrs. Lizzie Thomas Edwards are from the pen of Mrs. Annie Wells Cannon. The title is "Daughters of Zion Redeem Evermore," and the lines were written in honor of and dedicated to the Relief society.

MORE CARS ARRIVE.

Four more new cars for the street railway arrived this morning, from St. Louis, completing the shipment of the first lot of 25 cars. The second lot of 25, completing the order for 50 altogether, are now in transit, and should be all here inside of two weeks. The Western Union management is removing its wires from the four poles at the intersection of Main and South Temple streets, to the Utah Light and Railway poles close by, so the obstructing telegraph poles can be removed without delay. This will relieve the strenuousness of the situation materially.

The new cars are being equipped as rapidly as possible, and prepared for immediate use. Their receipt enables the company to give all of the service demanded, promptly and effectively.

FLOCKMASTERS MEET.

The Utah woolgrowers are meeting this afternoon at the Commercial club to discuss the sale of this year's wool clip, the freight on wool to the east, the land leasing bill, tariff revision and other questions of local importance to the sheep interests. All sheepmen not affiliated with the association have been urged to join.

WELCH TO REFEREE.

San Francisco, April 3.—Jack Welch has been chosen referee of the 30 round fight between Pucky McFarland, the Chicago boxer, and Jimmy Britt, which will be decided here one week from tomorrow.

ALDRICH BILL HAS NO LOCAL FRIENDS

Salt Lake's National Bank Officials Unite in Condemning
One of Its Provisions.

PRINCIPLE OF MAKING LOANS

Sentiment Is That Men on Directorate
Who Hold Stock in Concerns Doing
Business With Bank a Help.

The Aldrich currency bill, now before a committee of the house of representatives, is not winning favor among the national banks of the country, and sentiment in Salt Lake among those in the banking business is on a par with that elsewhere.

The trouble with the bill is not of its own original making, but comes from a paragraph inserted just before the bill passed the senate, prohibiting national banks from lending money to any concern in which any of the stockholders or directors of the bank were interested.

Aimed at the big Wall street plungers who owned banks and companies financed by the banks, the bill, if it should become a law, would have a most decisive effect on all western business, most of which is as yet free from the speculators who have made the record of Wall street's recent years.

MANY INTERESTS.

A glance at the list of directors of Salt Lake's four national banks shows that many of them are interested in the larger commercial concerns of the west, and that should the law become effective, it would seriously affect long established relationships between banks and the people who use the most money for the operation of their business affairs.

To find the attitude of the heads of the Salt Lake national banks on this clause of the Aldrich bill, an effort was made today to secure interviews with representatives of each of the banks. Mr. Knox of the National Bank of the Republic was out of town, but Mr. McCormick of the Utah National, Mr. Hills of the Deseret National, and Mr. Penbody of the Commercial National were frank in their statements that the bill, if passed, would be disastrous to western business, and moreover, was so radical that they could see no possible hope of it becoming a law.

MR. HILLS' ATTITUDE.

"As for our bank," said L. S. Hills, "we have always felt that it was the best possible safeguard to business to have men on our directorate who are acquainted with the enterprises offering securities for loans. At a glance around the Salt Lake business institutions, it is observed that men who have invested in the most conservative enterprises are also stockholders of leading banks. This proposed law would affect all the theaters, for instance, in the city. The Utah Fire Clay company, Z. C. M. L., the Utah Fire Clay company, Silver Bros., the railroads, the street railroads, and in fact so many enterprises that the only result I can see that it would have would be to drive all of the national banks out of the national banking system."

MR. MCCORMICK NOT WORRYING.

W. S. McCormick, president of the Utah National bank, said: "I have not been worrying for a minute about that clause of the Aldrich bill. It is manifestly so radical, and so opposed to the reasonable way of doing business, that I have never for a moment thought it could become a law. I do not think there is the slightest danger of its passing the house."

Mr. Penbody of the Commercial National was scanning a circular received from Chicago denouncing the clause, when he was interviewed. "These Chicago bankers," he said, "are so opposed to the clause that they will certainly bring out into the public notice all of its unreasonable features. It would be a positive detriment to our business to impose such a rule, and it would leave the banks so definite a choice between remaining in the national banking system and continuing business under present conditions, that I think many would leave the system. I think the clause results from the attempt of men not connected with banking affairs to legislate for them."

Third Annual Convention of Juvenile Court Association Begins Tuesday.

DISCUSS IMPORTANT THEMES.

Papers Assigned Prominent Workers
Will be Read at Two Sessions
Followed by Discussions.

The third annual conference of the Juvenile Court association of the State of Utah will be held in this city Tuesday, April 7, in the board of education rooms at the city and county building. Morning and afternoon sessions will be held, beginning at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. respectively. Supt. Christensen of the Salt Lake City schools is president of the association, and he stated this morning that he expects a large and representative attendance at the convention from all parts of the state. Papers will be presented and discussions held that will be invaluable to juvenile court workers, and a profitable time is anticipated.

The objects of the association, as given in its constitution, is "the procuring of needed legislation governing juvenile courts and the care and protection of delinquent and dependent children; the creating of public sentiment for the enforcing of the laws affecting the contribution to the delinquency and dependency of children; the forming of auxiliary organizations throughout the State of Utah of people directly interested in the above work, and for such other purposes as the by-laws of the association may prescribe."

THE PROGRAM.

Paper, "The Canyon Crest Ranch," Mrs. Hugh Park.
"The Detention Home," Gov. Cutler.
Discussion—Mrs. McMahon, Salt Lake City; Mrs. Ida S. Dusenberry, Provo; H. H. Thomas, superintendent state industrial school, Ogden.
