THE TWENTY-FOURTH IN THE COUNTRY.

Epitaph.

July 25, 1875.

The Twenty-Fourth is expected here with unusual eclat. At day-break the people were agreeably awakened by music by the brass band, firing of musketry and the booming of "Canute"—a cannon made here to give the alarm during the time of Indian troubles. At that time brass was very scarce, but the sisters furnished their old brass kettles, candlesticks, snuffers, etc., enough to make quite a cannon, following the example of their forefathers or rather foremothers, who joined together their tinkles to buy the freedom of Canute the Great's father when a prisoner at Jomsborg.

At 9 o'clock procession was formed and marched through our principal streets, the most interesting feature of which was the Pioneers, who took the lead, clearing the streets of the obstructions placed there, repairing their wagons, etc., bringing vividly before our minds the constant labor and toil of these men who led the way to these peaceful valleys through the trackless desert.

The procession in the meeting hall consisted of a short, pithy oration by Bishop Petersen, and a dialogue by A. C. Nielsen, between him and others, portraying the sufferings of the Saints in Missouri and Illinois. The songs, recitations, and sentiments were good.

Our brass band played several fine pieces, and under the leadership of Alfred Bailey, is improving fast. Our string band, composed of quite a number of young men, delighted the audience, this being the first time they had played together in public. One piece was called for twice.

In the evening our young folks enjoyed themselves in dancing, which seems to be an indispensable on all such occasions.

The finale, however, to the festivities was the arrival of the Bishop's counselor, L. K. Anderson, and Nels Anderson, returning from their missions to Norway and Sweden, with fourteen wagons loaded with emigrants. Bishop Petersen went on to the evening session, miles and escorted the company into our city. The emigrants presented a nice appearance, and I hope the 24th will continue with them to be a day of double rejoicing.

Several of them had been helped by the Saints of this place, who expended nearly two thousand dollars for that purpose, three hundred of which was donated by the Relief Society, being the proceeds of the "Sunday Eggs."

A. H. LUND, Reporter Mount Pleasant.

July 25, 1875.

The 26th anniversary of the entrance of the pioneers into these valleys was celebrated in this city by firing of cannon at 4 o'clock a. m. At sunrise the national flag was unfurled, saluted with the firing of musketry by Captain C. Jensen and company, and music by Prof. Hasler's band.

At 9 o'clock the procession, under the direction of Wm. F. Reynolds, marshal of the day, was formed, and after marching through some of the principal streets, they proceeded to the bowerly. Prayer was offered by the chaplain, Daniel Page, an oration delivered by Edward Cliff, Esq., and speeches were made by Jos. Page, mayor of the city, B. H. Seely and others. The music, both vocal and instrumental, was well executed and reflects much credit on the choir.

The Sunday School, composed of nearly 400 children, under Supt. John T. Bell, made a prominent feature in the procession.

In the afternoon the children were taken out for a ride, accompanied by the brass band.

In the evening a dance in the social hall brought to a close a day long to be remembered.

H. D. Wellsville.

July 27th, 1875.

The ever-to-be-remembered "Twenty-fourth" was not short of any of its honors in Wellsville. Although twenty-eight years have passed since the entrance of the "Pioneers" into these valleys, every succeeding year seems to add a freshness to its anniversary, which must be born of love. The usual promenade and music were indulged in, and addresses delivered by Mayor Day, Elder John T. Bell, Elder Row. Baxter and Bishop John Jardine. The day was spent in a good natured, jovial manner by the holiday makers, every one trying to prove that his mission was "peace on earth and goodwill to man."
