MAUDE ADAMS ILL.

So Also is Viola Allen and Performances Are Cancelled as a Result.

Illness is attacking the theatrical stars and last night in different parts of the country two theaters were closed and their audiences turned away on that account, says last Tuesday's New York Herald. Miss Maude Adams was unable to play at Waterbury, Conn., and Miss Viola Allen was prevented from opening an engagement in Boston.

Miss Adams caught a severe cold while driving from her apartment in this city to the Montauk theater in Brooklyn, where she appeared last week in "The Pretty Sister of Jose."

She finished her engagement there, but grip developed and did not yield readily to treatment. She sneezed almost continually on Sunday, and it was evident yesterday that she could not appear last night in Waterbury, where she was booked at the Polio theater. An announcement to that effect was a severe disappointment in that city, where the star is very popular and a large audience was assured. The theater owners announced that they would have to return to New York.

Miss Adams' engagement in Hartford tonight and tomorrow evening has been cancelled.

Charles Frohman yesterday said that she will appear on Thursday in Northampton and on Friday and Saturday in Hartford.

Miss Allen is at her rooms in the Bellevue hotel, Boston, suffering from an abscess in her right ear, and as a consequence the Colonial theater, at which she was to have opened in "Twelfth Night," was "dark" last night. Dr. Frederick P. Jack operated on Miss Allen on Sunday, but yesterday she was so weak that she had to remain in her apartment. He says she will be able to appear on Wednesday night. Miss Allen caught cold in Detroit last week and had to cancel a matinee engagement at Syracuse.

The ladies were enabled to add somewhat to their charity fund from the proceeds of the entertainment and thank all who helped. Judge Chief Justice Buskin presided and Mrs. E. Shultze acted as master of ceremonies.

HEAPED COALS OF FIRE.

Only Dumped Them on the Bed Instead of Benefactor's Head.

C. H. Brown, colored, is under arrest on charge of incendiarism. He is charged with breaking into the apartments of Charles Shelton at the corner of Fourth South and State streets early last evening, and setting fire to the same. He is accused of deliberately emptying the contents of a stove onto two beds which speedily set them in flames, to "get even" with Shelton because of an altercation earlier. The fire was discovered by Proprietor J. Scheffner, and extinguished without much difficulty. Shelton had befriended Brown, whom he allowed to sleep in his room, but found it necessary to oust him as he got drunk and became troublesome.

Steady wintry weather has characterized the past week, with promise of a continuance of the same for the week to come. It is believed that the worst of the winter will have passed away with the first days in February. The severest weather of 1903 happened during the last week in January and the first week in February. The mercury registered 18 degrees above zero this morning, and on Jan. 29, today's map is 14 degrees below at St. Paul. All temperatures were moderately low, and there have been slight falls of snow at different places. At Los Angeles the mercury fell to 35.

The hardwood finish of the M. H. Walker building is now being completed, and the experience with this as with other buildings in town is making it clear to architects that a factory in this city for the manufacture of hardwood finish would be a money-making proposition. For the last two years interior finish has been shipped in here so green as to cause vexatious delays until the excess of moisture could be dried out. The hardwood finish manufacturers claimed the woods had been properly dried according to eastern standards. One terrace in this city has just been equipped with birch finish that is full up, and in the course of 90 days will have dried so that the wood will be full of checks and cracks.

Housekeeping in Paris.

The father and mother eat at home when they do not eat out, but absolutely no informal social intercourse is indulged in. Such is more modern than anything else of a factory in need for life outside. A vast amount of sewing is done here. French girls of even wealthy parents, after they finish school, attend courses of dressmaking and millinery, and to a great extent the industry which turns out the French woman as a model of good dressing, to be followed by the world, is carried on by the women of the family in that would be the home if the French knew the meaning of the word.

A reception day is rigorously kept, and such entertaining at dinner and dejeuner may be done, but always of a formal character. A person having the penetrating qualities of a book agent might venture to try "dropping in" on a French woman on a day when she is not regularly receiving, but in the natural course of ordinary social experience in Paris this would never happen.

Such order of living readily permits the great economy. One has not to waste time, good clothes, or house room in daily preparation for the unexpected. Six days of the week a French woman may run her sewingmachine in the middle of her salon if she likes, secure from the interruption of callers. It is said that the chief function of the petit salon of a Paris apartment is to provide storage room for ball gowns which on reception days are taken down from the chandelier and locked up in a bedroom till the guests have departed.
