LINEMAN MEETS DEATH AT BOISE

Carl Madison Electrocuted While Working At Top of Twenty Foot Pole.

BODY FRIGHTFULLY BURNED.

Gang of Boys Commit Burglary and Are Hauled Before Magistrate -State Land Sales.

Tuesday while at work at the top of a 20-foot pole. By some mishap he came in contact with a live wire and 4,600 volts of electricity passed through his body. One hand, an arm and one leg were frightfully burned. When discovered he was hanging by his glove from the cross arm of the electric light pole.

The unfortunate young man was at work with an assistant among a net work of wires at the top of an electric light pole, when his companion was called down by the foreman. The two were talking together at the foot of the pole when presently they smelled burning flesh. They glanced upward and there Madison hung, his body swinging in mid-air. They knew instantly what had happened. In a second young Bell, Madison's assistant, was up the pole and at the side of his companion, only to see him take his last breath.

Death came to him instantaneously. No sound was uttered from his lips. The body was carefully let to the ground and removed to the undertaking parlors. The wife was sent for, but the scene was too awful for her eyes. She had to be taken away.

BOYS ORGANIZE FOR CRIME.

BOYS ORGANIZE FOR CRIME.

Four boys, ranging in age from 9 to 13 years, appeared one by one before Judge Leonard of the Juvenile court, Tuesday morning, and with tears and hanging heads confessed that they had organized a band for the purpose of entering upon an era of lawlessness, of robbery, burglary and perhaps murder. The corroborative story was wrung from each of them.

ative story was wrung from each of them.

The charge brought against the boys was burglary, the committing of which specific crime was included in their confession. The charge referred to is the burglarizing of the store of Carlson & Lusk Hardware company, and taking therefrom $42 in money, which they secured from a cash register, and from a drawer in the office, five pocket knives and five pocket books. Three of the purses and two of the knives were recovered.

This was the first crime they had on their list. Others were scheduled to follow. Among which were the robbing of the Eastman-Teller Hardware store, the Boston Grocery store, a store at Meridian, and they had been considering a proposition of going to Caldwell and Nampa on their mission of crime. One of the boys said they had talked of killing a man in Nampa who has recently offended them. They did not know his name.

them. They did not know his name, but knew him by sight.

After the robbery of the Carlson & Lusk Hardware store and the boys came in possesion of the $42, they began immediately to purchase tools and arms for the purpose of carrying out their plans. The very next day following the burglary the four of them went stalking into the store they had robbed and purchased two 22-caliber rifles and some cartridges. Later in the day one of their number purchased from a boy companion a revolver for which he paid $3.50.

The boys implicated are: Thomas Bablock, aged 12; Ray Fletcher, aged 11; Theodore Young, aged 12; Eddie and Willie Suttles, aged respectively 13 and 9. The older Suttles boy tried to life out of the whole thing, and hung tenaciously to his falsehood for a long time, but finally admitted his guilt.

SAD STORY.

SAD STORY.

SAD STORY.

There is a very sad story connected with the Suttles boys. Their mother is an invalid, their father is in the state penitentiary serving a sentence for a statutory crime, and their sister is in the reform school. The invalid mother depends entirely upon the earnings of her two little sons for the support of herself and her little family. The boys sell newspapers and run errands, thus creating the only income the family has.

Judge Leonard is at a loss to know just what to do in their case. If he can find any means of support for the mother he will send the older Suttles boy to the reform school. The other boys are all out on probation, each agreeing within a certain specified time to make up his share of the stolen money and goods from the hardware store.

MADE GOOD TO DRIVER.

It will be remembered that the rob-It will be remembered that the robbery of the Carlson-Luck hardware store was laid to the feet of a delivery man in the employ of the company. The man denied any knowledge of the affair, but stated that if he was charged with the crime he would prefer paying the loss of $42 than have any humiliating report go out concerned him, so he paid over the money claimed to have been stolen from the firm. After the confession of the boys the firm made good to the driver.

FOR THE WHEAT FIELDS.

C. H. Duncan, the Socialist, who was arrested in Bolse and placed in the city jall on the 21st of May on a 60 day sentence for appearing upon the streets in his peculiar disguise of straw colored hair and beard, and carrying concealed weapons, was released from his confinement and ordered our of the state last evening. When asked where he desired to go, he replied that he would go to the wheat fields of Washington and seek work. He was allowed to take with him all of his effects, except the revolver and dirk, which were promised him upon his application after he had gone out of the state.

LOOK INTO COAL SITUATION.

In response to a letter from Boise Postmaster Fenton, the interstate commerce commission has announced that it will start an investigation at once into the coal situation. Mr. Fenton says that it is very probable that a representative of the commission will be in Boise some time during this month to look personally into the matter. Mr. Fenton was ordered in the early part of the summer to store 250 tons of coal, the winter supply, for the federal building; but up to yesterday morning he had not been able to get a shovel fuil. However, during the afternoon of yesterday a car of coal came for him.

The committee of the Boise commercial club appointed some time ago to investigate the fuel situation, has completed its local investigation and is now either in Sait Lake or the Wyoming coal fields. Its report will doubtless be very complete and be of much service in attempting to relieve the distress.

CONVICT MAKES GET-AWAY.

H. F. Mallon, a convict at the state penitentiary from Shoshone county, serving a two-years' sentence on a burglary conviction, made good his escape from the prison rock quarry last Monday. Although his absence was discovered within 15 minutes afterwards, and guards were put out in pursuit, yet no trace of the man in stripes can yet be found. This is the second escape of the kind within the last two weeks.

It was discovered that a lunch had been prepared by others of the convicts for Mallon to take with him, which was secreted in a shed at the quarry; but Mallon did not find it convenient to get it before he left. CUTTING SCRAPE ENDS 24TH CELEBRATION.

AREY, Blaine Co., Ida., July 31. -The celebration of the Twentyfourth had quite an unexpected ending. Two young men quarreled at the grove, and one drew a knife and slashed at the other; a bystander pickslashed at the other; a bystander picked up a board and struck the man with a knife over the head, and it looked for a few minutes like there would be a funeral soon. The matter was fixed up, however, between the parties and fortunately no injuries of a serious character resulted.

Farmers are busy putting up their hay crop and needed help is scarce so that some will be very late before the first cutting is out of the way for the second.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

The foundations of the great edifice are insecure; the building may last for years, or it may fall like a pack of cards tomorrow.

Many of its towers are out of plumb to an extent alarming to the mind of engineers. The great dome, supported by cracked pillars and buttresses, in a condition which would be condemned by any ordinary borough council surveyor, is a constant menace to the safety of the people who worship beneath its majestic roof.

A. J. Barry, the engineer appointed by the dean and capter to inquire into the condition of the cathedral, was interviewed by the Dailly Mirror yesterday. He explained in detail the reason for the existence of the cracks and fissures, and the curious and alarming buildings.

"The cathedral," said Mr. Barry, "is for the most part built on potter's clay. When Wren started on his work he found that toward the east of the site the potter's clay has been removed and ordinary rubbish substituted. This rubbish was, of course, an impossible foundation.

Mrs. Priscilla King Smith, wife of William Smith, civil engineer with the Short Line, met with an accident Saturday evening at the residence of her parents, 717 North Arthur avenue, which may yet cost her her life. The trap door to the cellar is located in the pantry and having occasion to go down cellar, went to step to the trap. The door was open and she fell down the steps with serious consequences. In falling she caught hold of the shelf of the pantry closet, which was loaded with fruit in jars and she was bruised and cut by these falling on her.

Her parents did all they could for the unfortunate woman, but the shock well nigh unnerved her. Further complications followed, but at present she is doing as well as could be expected, and her recovery is hoped for.

"Gravel, of course, is water-bearing. Water percolates through this strata of gravel, and as the gravel contains or releases the water so is the density of the strata affected."

When you remember that the great weight of the cathedral building is supported by the clay which lies above this gravel, it can easily be understood that such a weight must be affected by density of the strata below the foundation pillars.

"Of course," continued Mr. Barry, "the weight of the cathedral is unevenly distributed. The dome and the towers are heavier than the body of the building. All rest on the same foundation. The alternating conditions of the gravel—now waterlogged, now dry—tend to give the building a condition of unstable equilibrium.

"Various parts of the structure set—ing a condition of unstable equinorium.

"Various parts of the structure settle because, though resting on the same foundation, they differ in weight from other parts. As witness, particularly, the dome and the west towers."

Mr. Barry would not commit himself to a statement as to whether the cathedral is safe or unsafe.

"It is no use indulging in theories. We are going to put the matter to a practical test. We have recommended that metal disks should be placed in the pillars in the crypt and elsewhere and by accurate measurement we shall be able to determine whether or not the building is stable."

The fact remains that serious subsidences have occurred. St. Paul's cathedral is built on a shifting foundation.

The buttresses and pillars have not yet been strained to breaking point. No one knows—no one can know—how far they are off breaking point.

There is only one way of insuring the soundness of the great edifice. The foundation must be carried down through the potter's clay and the gravel to the London clay. A costly and lengthy business, but one which must be carried out.
