Thrilling Ride for a Doctor-Destructive Hallstorm Dry Farming a Success,

Monticello, San Juan Co., Aug. 18.—
I have to chronicle another sad event that happened at Verdure, six miles south of this place, Friday, Aug. 18. Mr.
Francis and Annie Nielsen were come ing over to this place on a visit. They and some of the children had just got into their buckboard when their son, Lisle, Il years old, took hold of the hind end of the vehicle to jump on. His Liste, Il years out does not be hind end of the vehicle to jump on. His left leg caught in the spokes of the wheel and broke his leg and twisted it in a frightful manner at the knee. Willard Rutt came over here in a remarkably short time in a a few moments Jude Bailey started for the doctor at Cortez. Colo., 72 miles. He made the distance in seven hours, changing horses four times. Dr. Harrington responded promptly, and in less than 23 hours he and his wife, who is also a physician, arrived, and found the log in such a bad condition that they were obliged to wait till Sunday morning before operating on it. He came prepared to amputate the limb, but he hopes to save it. The boy is doing remarkably well, though he also received some internal injuries. But received some internal injuries. But all hope for his recovery. To expedite the doctor's arrival the people strung teams along the road at intervals, and the doctors found the boys knew how ride and drive in a case of necessity, ne readers will see from the above we the frontier settlers get doctors

On the 12th a hallstorm from the northwest struck part of the grain neld and destroyed approximately one-third of the ripe grain, especially dats. It is a severe loss to the people.

Vernal, Ulutah Co., Aug. 18 - Vornal has presented a lively score the tast few days. Parties who registered tah reservation have been congregating bere in great numbers. They have been coming in from the reservation in all kinds of renveyances, and on horseback. Tents have been springing up towns on the vacant spots around town. tion, again restoring the $6,000 geres retion, again restoring the $6,000 acres teserved by the reclamation service, has added a greater interest to the proceedings, as the lands that were affected by the withdrawal were the best on the reservation. The crowd instead of decreasing is growing higger every day, and is made up of all classes of people. There are noncesseers, prospectors, business pien, gambiers, and professional men of all classes, and conditions. It is remarkable the name re men minus a leg or on arth, of oith their limbs twisted out of shape-rom various causes and all are hop-

Some of those who came in for the drawing and have been disappointed are preparing to leave, and some are making arrangements to stop all winter. A number of those who have sold out their holdings elsewhere are figuring on buying here in the Ashley valley. All are favorably impressed with this section.

Restaurant keepers, saloon men, hotel keepers, and business men generally are reaping a harvest. It is anticipated that the biggest crowd is yet to come. Interesting times are looked for during the filling, as each one of the lucky ones will keep his choice a secret, and none but the first one on the list will be sure of his ground until the filing begins.

and none but the first one on the list will be sure of his ground until the filing begins.

Opinion secros to be divided, as to which will be the big lown of the reservation. Myton or the Duchesne bridge, as it is more generally known, finds favor with a great many, but it has one drawback, and that is that a great deal of the ground around the townsite has been allotted to the Indians. While at the upper townsite, at the junction of the Strawberry and Duchesne, there are no allotments to speak of, but it is surrounded by some of the choicest lands of the reservation, as well as the hydro-carbon deposits, Generally speaking, both these townsites, as well as Leland, at the mouth of the Uintah creek, are favorably located along the fruchesne valley. All three are directly on the line of the Uintah railway, and Denver, Northwestern & Pacific surveys. Making all allowance for the present exchange, if may be safely stated that the Duchesne valley, and the tributary branches, will be one of the finest sections of Utah in a few years.

The Uintah Railway company is advertising for several hundred thousand pounds of cals, and a large quantity of Bay to be used in their freighting and construction husbress, and prices are beginning to climb.

Judge D. M. Frost, who drew a lucky number at the drawing, was formerly allotting agent on the reservation.
