

SECOND DIVORCE ON COL. I. TRUMBO

Mary Shaughnessy, Former Salt Lake Belle, Secures Decree From Judge Morse.

ALIMONY IS NOT REQUESTED

Counsel Concludes That It Is Not Worth Agitating for Considering Financial Embarrassment.

Perhaps the final chapter in the matrimonial experiences of Col. Isaac Trumbo has been enacted, in the divorce granted to Mary Shaughnessy Trumbo, his wife, by Judge Morse yesterday. Mrs. Trumbo brought suit on the ground that he had failed to support her, and that he had abandoned her more than a year past. Her bill included a demand for alimony, but her counsel, William H. King, stated to the court that this request would be foregone owing to the reports of Col. Trumbo's depleted fortune, caused through riotous living in San Francisco. The divorce was granted, and the court found that the husband had failed to contribute to the support of his wife. Judge Morse granted the decree, and for the second time the colonel has been divorced.

His first wife was Lydia White Trumbo, who greatly aided the colonel when he aspired to election as United States Senator from Utah in 1887. The divorce was granted, and the suit soon followed in the courts in which Mrs. Trumbo alleged non-support and desertion on his part. The divorce was granted, and the suit soon followed in the courts in which Mrs. Trumbo alleged non-support and desertion on his part. The divorce was granted, and the suit soon followed in the courts in which Mrs. Trumbo alleged non-support and desertion on his part.

Col. Trumbo then went to San Francisco, and some time afterward came back to Salt Lake. His elopement with Mary Shaughnessy, a society belle, and daughter of Col. Michael Shaughnessy, a veteran with a Civil war record, was the sensation of the hour. The marriage separated father and daughter for a long time, but the estrangement finally melted away. The last chapter of their married life was recorded in the court yesterday. It is said the colonel has exhausted most of his resources in wild and riotous living in the metropolis of California, and is unable to pay his second wife alimony.

MABEL CLAIMED DESERTION. A divorce was also granted by Judge Morse to Mabel Wagner, who said her husband, Otto Wagner, had deserted her without reason five years ago. The couple were married June 21, 1899, and have a boy eight years old. Another divorce was issued in the case of Ada Scovill, who told the court that her husband, Ernest Scovill, had been in the habit of drinking heavily, and was a violent and cruel man. They were married at Springfield, Jan. 1, 1895, and have two children. Mrs. Scovill was also awarded $15 per month alimony, a piece of property in Springfield and the custody of the children.

BRUTAL HUSBAND. Annie M. Jones sought the court with a petition to sever the shackles binding her to Isaiah Jones, urging that her husband had treated her cruelly and on more than one occasion had knocked her down. He abandoned her in February. The divorce was granted with the custody of the two children given to the mother.

According to the sworn testimony of his wife, William M. Taylor, once a prosperous railroad mechanic, has now become a habitual drunkard, and has ceased to provide for his family. A divorce was granted the petitioner, Mrs. Mabel H. Taylor on corroboratory evidence being presented by her mother, Mrs. Annie E. Donaldson. Joseph H. Poole was one of two male applicants for severance of the marriage bonds. He testified that his wife "walked out" on him in Des Moines, Ia., and had never returned again. The couple were married in the Iowa town in October, 1904. He had seen his wife once or twice in the last few years but refused to communicate to him. Judge Morse granted the decree when Claude Howard corroborated the testimony of Mr. Poole.

ANGEL PROMPTLY FLEW. The second injured husband in the divorce court was J. H. Angel, who said his wife Dollie, told him to "get out." This was in Dallas, Tex., in 1904, and in December, 1905, he tried to be reconciled, but Dollie said "no." The divorce was granted. When proof of service is perfected, Dora Ackeland will be granted a divorce from her husband, Charles Ackeland, on the grounds of failure to provide. Ackeland was last heard from in Arizona. They were married in Minn., in 1891, and the wife was deserted three years ago.

THROWN FROM HORSE

Miss Eugenia Gravette Sustains Fractured Skull Owing to Animal Plunging on Corner.

The condition of Miss Eugenia Gravette, cashier of the Majestic moving picture theater, who was thrown from her horse last night, at 6:30 o'clock, at the corner of First South and State streets, is slightly improved this morning, and it is believed that she has received no internal injuries. She was taken to the hospital last night in an unconscious condition, and immediately her head was operated upon. It was found that the skull was fractured back of the left ear. The accident was the result of a false alarm being given by a fire alarm bell. Miss Gravette was just returning from her customary ride about the city, and when she arrived at the theater corner her horse was under perfect control, but the clanging of gongs of the fire department leaving the station, frightened her horse, and it is said she passed by that she dropped the reins and attempted to cling to the horn of the saddle. The horse shied and the young lady was thrown to the pavement, fracturing her skull. She was taken to the Halliday drug store and attended by Dr. T. H. Monahan. After she was moved to her apartment in the "Tabor" on State and she was taken to the Holy Cross hospital, where an operation took place at 9:30 o'clock.

FOR HAY FEVER.

Peruna is Sometimes Used With Excellent Results. A CASE IN POINT.

MISS MAYME E. SMITH, 444 East Mound St., Columbus, Ohio, writes: "Have used Peruna for catarrh and hay fever. The results being remarkable, I can highly recommend it to all who are suffering with the above diseases. I am happy to be able to say it has helped me wonderfully."

What is known as hay fever is in reality endemic catarrh, a general condition of the nose, throat, sometimes the bronchial tubes, induced by some local irritant. The irritation is generally due to vegetable emanations of some sort. Hay has been suspected as being the cause of this malady, hence its name, hay fever. It has been attributed to rag weed and other vegetation also. It is a very capricious disease, coming and going. A medicine that will help one case may not help another. Such treatment has always been very uncertain and unsatisfactory.

Peruna helps some cases without a doubt, although it is not claimed to be an infallible remedy for such cases.

ing away of little Rowland Jackson, the six-year-old son of George and Ellen Jackson Coulam. He was stricken a few days ago with pneumonia, and notwithstanding unceasing visits of parents and friends, the most skillful nursing, and the best medical attention procurable, the little fellow succumbed. Rowland was unusually bright and winsome, the favorite of all who knew him, and the idol of the family. The blow is made doubly severe by the fact that less than a year ago Mr. and Mrs. Coulam lost a fine baby boy by the hand of death. The bereaved have the sympathy of a large circle of friends and relatives in their deep sorrow. Funeral services will be held in the Eleventh ward meetinghouse, tomorrow, Sunday, at 12 noon. The remains may be seen at the family residence between 11 and 11:30 on the day of the funeral.

BOY FALLS FROM TRAIN

Lindoh Whittaker Has a Narrow Escape from Death While Coming In from Lagoon.

Lindoh Whittaker, 11-year-old son of Joseph Whittaker, of 340 north Sixth West street, after falling from a rapidly moving Lagoon train last night, surprised his grief-stricken parents, who were awaiting the return of the boy at the station, by carelessly stepping from a North Salt Lake car and sauntering into the station before the engine started to bring his body. The Whittaker family were returning from the Lagoon on the 9 o'clock train. As the train passed the depot, Lindoh, who was sitting on the outside, fell from the train, which was traveling at least 30 miles an hour. The boy's father made a desperate effort to stop the train, but he could not attract the attention of the engineer or conductor until the train had almost reached the city. After falling from the train, he had picked himself up none the worse for the fall, and walked to North Salt Lake and boarded a city car.

Well Brewed Postum Always Palatable

The flavor of Postum, when boiled according to directions, is always the same—mild, distinctive, and palatable. It contains no harmful substance like caffeine, the drug in coffee, and hence may be used with benefit at all times. "Believing that coffee was the cause of my torpid liver, sick headache and misery in many ways," writes an Indiana lady, "I quit and bought a package of Postum about a year ago. My husband and I have been so well pleased that we have continued to drink Postum ever since. We like the taste of Postum better than coffee, as it has always the same pleasant flavor, while coffee changes its taste with about every new combination or blend. "Since using Postum I have had no more attacks of gall colic, the heaviness has left my chest, and the old, common, every-day headache is a thing unknown. "There's a Reason." One of the large affairs of the week was the wedding reception given by Mr. and Mrs. J. C. M. Barnes of Kaysville, on Wednesday night, in celebration of the marriage of their daughter, Emily, and Claude Q. Cannon, which was solemnized in the Salt Lake temple during the day. The large house and grounds were brilliantly illuminated with colored electric gobes, and the rooms decorated with a profusion of flowers and palms, the pastor being in white and green, and the bride couple standing in the bay window, which was banked with palms and flowers, and crowned with a large wedding bell of white asters. The dining room was beautifully decorated in pink and white, festoons of asparagus ferns and sweet peas being strung from the chandelier to the four corners of the room, and the table beautifully decorated in the same colors. A striking feature was the wedding cake, a huge confection of six stories, weighing 65 pounds, which formed a handsome centerpiece. Pews and flowers were all about the room, and on the lawn a dancing floor was erected, and a delightful music furnished by the Kaysville orchestra. The bride wore a gown of dainty white tulle over tulle, with trimmings of real lace, and carried bride's roses. She had no assisting. Mr. and Mrs. Barnes in receiving, were Mrs. George Barnes, and Mrs. Mina Cannon Ellis, and a number of relatives and friends assisted in entertaining. Big Job of Distributing School Books is Nearing End

Few people appreciate the tremendous work involved in supplying the school children of the State of Utah with the text books from which their studies are to be pursued during the school year. Once in five years new books are adopted, and then the task of receiving from the east and shipping out to all the districts the new books, and receiving back the old books, which the school publishers take in exchange for the new works, becomes a doubly enormous one. This year is one of the five yearly periods, and on the 16th of May last, the state text book convention met in delivery to the remote districts, and adopted a list of books comprising every subject in the graded schools and high schools of the state outside of the cities of the first and second class. At the state school book repository, in the Desert News book store, Mr. W. J. Lewis said: "The increase in our population, the added facilities in the way of new teaching forces, new and enlarged school buildings, etc., have created a greater demand for text books than at any other period in our past history. In fact the state will use nearly double the quantity of school books this year over five years ago. Up to the present time, we have received seven car loads of books from the various publishers and from July 15 to date we have shipped out a little over 210,000 copies with more districts yet to be heard from. We have two warehouses, and keep two forces of packers and shipping clerks working day and night shifts to meet the demand. The fact that many school boards delay the ordering of their books until within a few days of opening of school, makes the work doubly hard just now, and, of course, may cause a slight delay in delivery to the remote districts. Special instructions have been given all the trustees not to ship back their old books until the new ones have been received. The old books must be carefully shipped to us and are then forwarded back to the publishers, and we give credit to the various districts for the value of the old books, thus retired. These old books are either sold to second-hand dealers, junk houses, or paper mills, and some are destroyed, at each five yearly period."
