qualify any one to vote at a precinct, county or territorial election. Voters who reside in cities should see that their names are duly entered upon both the city and the county Registry List, that they may be qualified to vote at any election, municipal or otherwise.

Every citizen, male or female, who is not sure of being properly registered heretofore, should go to the County Court House at the time appointed, and become satisfied of the fact. Better to go and enquire, if there is the slightest doubt, than to stay away and risk the right to vote in November. Every vote is wanted, every vote should be cast. No more apathy, no more neglect of pelitical opportunities. All citizens smuld walk up and do their duty.

"LIBERAL" TWISTINGS.

THERE is probably no law upon the statute books of any State or nation which is not liable to misconstruction. O'Connell, the Hibernian agitator, used to say that he could drive a coach and four through the closest Act of Parliament that was ever passed. When lawyers or others take hold of a statute for the express purpose of finding flaws in it, or sentences capable of a double interpretation, or clauses that can be twisted the Courts that their perversions are correct. There are some definite rules governing the general interpretation of laws, and a fair minded Judge can be depended upon to construe a disputed section of law in accordance with established princi-
