

A communication was read from Chief Stanton. Among other things it recommended that the salaries of the firemen be increased. In case the recommendations are adopted, the expense of maintaining the department will be $450 per month more than at present. Referred to the committee on fire department.

On motion of Moran the office of assistant city jailer was abolished.

At this juncture of the proceedings Mayor Baskin called Councilman Loofbrow to the chair and left the council chamber.

The question of dispensing with the guards for city prisoners was referred to the committee on prisons.

The recommendation relating to the engineer of sewer construction, was on motion of Moran, adopted.

ASSESSOR AND COLLECTOR.

The recommendation provided for an assessor and collector at — per year, one assistant at $1800 per year, and two assistants at $1200 each per year. Referred to the finance committee.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Recorder Stanton then read the following recommendations of the committee: That the office of assistant city jailer be abolished; that the guards for prison labor be discharged for the present; that the duties of the engineer of construction of sewers at $5 per day, and his assistant at $2.50 per day, be performed by the permanent employees in the city engineers department; that there be created the office of water and land commissioner at a salary per annum fixed by the Council, whose duties shall be to protect the city's rights and titles to land and water owned by the city, and shall also perform the duties now performed by the watermaster, said water and land commissioner be allowed one clerk at a salary not to exceed $900 per annum, and one deputy for each precinct as provided in the watermaster's department now; that the City Council fix the cost to the citizen for removing each dead animal, each load of garbage, and for cleaning each closet and cesspool.

The following amendment was added to the report:

That the duties of land and water commissioner be performed by the superintendent of the Jordan and Salt Lake canal at a salary of $5 per day from April 1st to October 31st.

Rich said it looked like a kid glove proposition. It was a soft snap and no mistake. He was opposed to the employment of men who spent all their time sitting in offices. The city had too many such men now. They carried everything under their hats.

On motion of Simondi, the vote whereby the office of license inspector, at a salary of $1000 per year, was abolished one week previous was reconsidered and the office re-created.

Heiss then moved to reconsider the vote whereby the salary of the city attorney was cut down from $3000 to $2500.

Hardy spoke against the motion. He thought these special meetings had been called in the interest of economy. The only way to retrench was to retrench. If abolished offices were to be re-created and salaries raised in the manner they had been, it would cost more to maintain the city government than formerly.

Rich also opposed the motion, saying that he did not know who the next city attorney would be; he might not be worth half that amount.

UTAH AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

We are glad to learn that there is a prospect of something being done to secure representation for Utah at the World's Fair after all. It will be remembered that at the session of 1890 an act was passed by the Legislature, authorizing the Governor to appoint three suitable persons as Commissioners, and appropriating $3000 for this purpose. The unfortunate dispute between the Governor and the Legislature lately in session, rendered abortive the attempt to appropriate $50,000 for this laudable undertaking, and it has been thought that unless Congress should pass the bill the Governor vetoed, which is not very probable, the whole project would fail.

Well, the Governor, by virtue of this law which is still in force, has appointed three suitable persons, viz., Richard Mackintosh, R. C. Chambers and Nels A. Empey, one representative from each of the political parties here. We understand that these gentlemen have accepted the appointment, to serve without pecuniary compensation, and are to secure, if possible, sufficient financial backing from public-spirited business men to warrant the expenditure of the amount voted for by the late Legislature. This of course is predicated on the faith that the next Legislature will appropriate the amount so that nobody will suffer loss.

We believe it will be done. Ogden and Provo have expressed a desire to assist in this matter, and we think there are moneyed men enough in this city and Territory who have sufficient public spirit to become responsible for the money until the Legislature meets again. It will be unjust to this Territory if it put in no appearance at the World's Fair, and we hope now that no further obstacles will be placed in the way, but that harmonious action will be secured and Utah will take her proper place at Chicago when all the world will come to see and wonder.

OBITUARY.

OLSEN.—At Randolph, Utah, March 17th, 1892, Ingobor M. Olsen, of old age, born in Norway, November 17, 1805. Joined the Church in 1853, and emigrated to Utah in 1857, crossed the plains in Chr. Christanson's head-cart company, arriving in Salt Lake City September 13, bringing one of her sons (Olavus) with her to Utah. She left two sons and one daughter in Norway, they not having joined the Church. Sister Olsen was a faithful worker in the Latter-day work, a true Latter-day Saint, and died without pain or struggle on the morning of the anniversary of the Relief Society. When her arms got so weak that she could not card bats for the Relief Society, as she had done for seventeen years here, she would feel badly, and say, "Is there nothing I can do to help?" Her reward is sure. A large cortege of friends and relatives followed her remains to their last resting place.—[Cox.]

Deceased was baptized at the Cape of Good Hope, South Africa, by Elder Jesse Haven, in the year 1856, and with a little colony emigrated to America in the year 1860. Sister Day, with her husband and five children, stayed for about one year at Wood River, Nebraska, and in Wood River, Brother Thomas Day, a good, honest and faithful Latter-day Saint, was accidentally drowned. Brother Charles Wood, another of the African colonists, wrote from Wood River to President Brigham Young informing him of Sister Day's bereavement and condition. President Young immediately re-ponded to Brother Wood's plea, saying that if the company then on its way from Florence had not passed, they should be brought on. When this news arrived the company of emigrants was camped within six miles of Wood River. Sister Day had but a few hours to prepare to leave, to her, this place of sorrow. She, with her fatherless family, came on to Utah, and they have resided in Kanosh most of the time since 1862. She was a quiet, unassuming woman of faith, and a diligent worker in the Relief Society. All her children survive her, and, although reared in adversity, possess a unity of purpose in doing good, one to another, and regarding their faithful mother's counsel.
