SOME CAUSTIC CRITICISMS.

He Arraigns the Women Who Have Taken Up the Fight Against Utah's Senator-Elect

A lot of self-constituted agents of the

A lot of self-constituted agents of the divine wrath, mostly club and church women, elated over their success in flooring Senator Brigham Roberts, are preparing to hold a scalp dance around the remains of Mr. Reed Smoot, the newly elected senator from Utah.

Mrs. Elliott, the leader in the anti-Smoot hullabaloo, tells us that the women of the United States (meaning a precious few of them), "realizing that the ultimate outcome of seating Reed Smoot in the senate would be the further degradation of woman and the desecration of the home, have banded together to oust him," and voices shrilly her determination "to keep the octopus of "Mormonism" from fastening its fetters upon the unprotected females of the eastern states."

There would be just as much sense in having Senator Beveridge unseated, "to protect and perpetuate the home," on the ground that he is a confirmed bachelor, who thereby sets an infamous example, which, if universally followed, would sweep every home from America!

Bachelorhood isn't "catching," how-Bachelorhood isn't "catching," how-ever; neither is the state of being mar-ried as much as Abraham or Jacob or some of the closer ancestors of Jesus, particularly since President Woodruff of the Church of Latter-day Saints, on Sept. 25, 1890, issued a manifesto strik-ing out of the necesary beliefs and practises of the "Mormon" Church the practise of polygamy. Pelygamy is a

THINLY VEILED, ATTACK,

That the plea of "protecting the homes" from the "blight of polygamy" is a specious one, and merely a thinly yelled attack against the rival religious veiled attack against the rival religious body of the Latter-day Saints, inspired, not by any fear of the defunct "octopus of polygamy" but by the jealous desire to clip the wings of a rival sect, is shown by their express declaration to Senators Platt. Depew and Burrows, the members of the senate committee, that they demanded the unseating of Mr. Smoot "on the ground of his allegiance to the 'Mormon' Church and his knowledge of the practise of polygamy, irrespective of whether he is a polygamist or not." Verily, the good ladies raise the cry of "the wolf" whether there is any wolf or not, and insist on "protecting" homes which in the next breath they indirectly admit are not in any noticeable danger.

mit are not in any noticeable danger.

Many of the club women of broader minds and larger human sympathies have flatly refused to be used as clubs for smashing the official head of this brother Christian, whose only offense, so far as has been discovered, despite the efforts of Gentile detectives, consists in belonging to a sect which has not yet grown numerous enough to be not yet grown numerous enough to be "respectable,"

THEIR OWN HOMES NEGLECTED. These women neglect their own homes and children, if they have any, to "portect" the homes of others from a condition which it is admitted by their own evidence would actually vastly improve most of them. Behind their skirts, as usual, lurks a valiant body of small-caliber preachers, who are always ready with their holy pea-shoot. ers to scatter destruction amongst the ranks of far-off evils, while conveniently blind to the vastly greater ones, the injustice, hypocricy, crime and degradation at their own back doors.

When religious persecution begins, the persecuted ones have my sympathy, and the persecutors—narrow, unkind, bigoted—have my pity. Persecution is never frank and honest. It is born of yammering hypocrisy. It alcution is never frank and honest. It is born of yammering hypocrisy. It always fights behind a mask, the mask in the Smoot case being the idiotic yawp about "protecting the home."

What is a good home? How shall we know, save by the results—the output? "By their fruits ye shall know them." The leaders of this attack on Smoot, while forced by the facts to speak in terms of the highest praise of the peculiar people of Utah and of the happy homes and moral, innocent, well-educated children of the "Mormons," yet insist, in the next breath, that Smoot must be barred from the Senate lest his influence shall blast the American home!

As a matter of fact, if we are to judge by the results, the average Centile American home is a good deal less of a success than the average "Mor-

"Nine out of ten of the polygamous wives own 160 acres of land each, and can vote for the president of the United States. They are good women, moral, devoted to their children, and true to their husbands. My heart bleeds for them," says Mrs. Elliott. She admits her inability to rouse them to a sense of the awfulness of this unprecedented state of things. They even had the effrontery to try to convert her! But, though unable to save the women, she has hopes of rescuing the well-fed and well-educated children, although, as she points out, even their case has a "despairing aspect," in that the youngsters in these terrible "Mormon" homes "are absolutely innocent of any sense of immorality," and therefore hard to convert to the chaotic Gentile way of running homes and TRIBUTE TO UTAH WOMEN. Gentile way of running homes and churches. Truly, there is urgent need of missionaries to change this alarm-ing state of innocence of the children into a quaking conviction of sin—a condition precedent, of course (not to morality, for morality never "saves souls"), but to "salvation!"

There are few present-day apostates; on the contrary, the religious zeal of the younger "Mormons" is stronger even than in the days of Brigham Young, and men and women of all classes go on missions to all parts of the world without question ond at their own expense, and the tithes are paid with greater regularity than ever.

SOME COMPARISONS.

The "Mormons" have no preachers, priests or missionaries. Those who expound the "Mormon" gos-pel are not a parasitic class, and are not above spending most of their time in useful labor, being thus truly democratic in spirit. On the other hand, priesteraft and preachercraft are pure-ly aristocratic or monarchical instituly aristocratic or monarchical institutions, in origin and in spirit. Again the zealous "Mormon" missionaries, to be found the world over, are not on salary. They are usually young business men and women, professional men and farmers, who choose to lay aside money-getting entirely for a few years "to do the work of the Master."
In intelligence and moral wholesomeness, those I have seen are no whit behind other Christian missionaries.

As there is no provision made for (the salvation of) women in the Scriptures, their only chance of heaven is

There is no specific for consumption. The nearest approach to a cure is right living and Scott's Emulsion. No matter what the treatment may be Scott's Emulsion will prove a valuable addition. It has often turned the scale of health the right way. Because Scott's Emulsion contains the pure cod liver oil it furnishes heat and fat. The hypophosphites provide tissue-food, blood-food and marrow-food. The combination of the two years and the combination of t bination of the two represents a wonderful form of nourishment and one that can be readily taken and retained at any stage of the disease. Scott's Emulsion gives best results when used most regularly. Made a part of the consumptive's regular diet it will invariably afford relief. Occasional use of Scott's Emulsion is a test unfair to the Emulsion and the patient.

to be sealed up to some Elder for time and eternity, to be a star in his crown forever.

Brigham Young's definition of spirit-

Brigham Young's definition of spirit-ual wifeism was expressed thus:
"I say to every man on the face of the earth, if he wishes to be saved, he cannot be saved without a woman by his side. This is spiritual wifeism— that is, the doctrine of spiritual wives." "It must be remembered," says the author of the recent "Story of the Mormons," "that it is a part of the doctrine of polygamy that woman can enter beaven only as sealed to some devout member of the Mormon Church, 'for time and eternity,' and that the space around the earth is filled with spirits seeking some 'tabernacles of clay,' by means of which they may attain salvation. The Mormon women believe that the salvation of the sex depends on 'sealed' marriages, and that the more children they can bring into the world, the more spirits they assist on the road to sal-

"In the earlier days of the Church, the bringing of a new wife into a family produced discord and heart-burnings; with the coming of later generations, schooled to look upon polygamy as a matter of course, it is different. All the testimony I can obtain in regard to the Mormonism of today shows that the Mormon women are now the most earnest advocates of polygamous marriages." "In the earlier days of the Church mous marriages."

Said one competent observer in Sait Lake City to me: "As the women of the South, during the war, were the rankest rebels, so the women of Mormondom are today the most zealous advocates of polygamy."

GROWING ALL THE TIME.

It is even said by many Gentiles that the "Mormon" Church is the only great religious organization which is really growing at a faster rate than the population. It is doubtless the jealousy and fear aroused by this fact that is the mainspring of the agitation against these excellent Christian people by their "sourballed" Christian brethren of oth-

"Mormons," have sometimes attended their church and have had them as coltheir church and have had them as college classmates—including a grand-daughter of the "prophet," Joseph Smith. Without exception, I believe that their characters and their home lives were such that it would keep the average good Methodist or Presbyterian brother hustling to equal them. Therefore, when the strong arm of the law is invoked by the good ladies of the Dorcas and X. Y. Z. societies to protect the homes of the rest of us from the spread of their "pernicious influence," we smile indulgently and a trifle wearily, and murmur "rodents!"

ACTS AS A BOOM.

ACTS AS A BOOM.

I care as little for the religious beliefs of the "Mormons" as for those of the Hottentots or Baptists. Doubtless they are all good enough for the people who in their present stage of development need them. Results, only, are all that count. Inasmuch as methods are of no moment, I see no more reason for this effort to change "Morrsonism" into some more ancient ism than for Calvinism to be changed to "Mormonism." When saints pitch into each other, the rest, of us may well keep right on cheerfully hoeing potatoes, knowing that no good thing will suffer. If they are persecuted, the Latter-day Saints should rejoice. Persecution invariably "hooms" any sect.

"hooms" any sect.

Here is the way Elbert Hubbard, who perhaps dips his tin dipper a little deeper into the well of truth than any man of the century, sums up the case; and I believe he reflects the plain, horse sense of the great mass of unprejudiced people;

ELBERT HUBBARD QUOTED.
"If sects did not serve mankind they would never be evolved—each sect, like a coal screen, catches a certain sized man. A reasonable amount of super-stition is a good thing for certain folks. It is an aid to the imagination; the fairy tale is not bad for children. A fairy tale is not bad for children. A superstition is a crutch—no man will keep it any longer than he needs it. Don't take it away from him. Leave him alone and he will throw it away for himself. The wars of the world have been mostly caused by zealots who were trying to make men exchange one set of superstitions for another one set of superstitions for another.
All are good—all are bad—it depends upon your point of view. What we microbes think of God does not make much difference to God—we can only mirror ourselves. As we change our ideals we change our God. God is get ideals we change our God. God is getting better all the time—higher, nobler, wiser, gentler, kinder.

"A beautiful woman of 60, with whom I conversed in Salt Lake City, said to me: 'My sister and I married the same man. We all loved and reverenced him in life. My sister and I and our children live in loving memory of him. He never spoke to us an unkind word.' I said nothing, because there was nothing to say. I thought of monogameus marriages where little children run and hide when they hear the coming footsteps of their father; of drunken men who beat their wives, and of others who quibble, quarrel and make their house a heil. And I asked myself this question—'Is monogamy wholly good?' house a hell. And I asked myself this question—'Is monogamy wholly good?' And the inward answer was, 'It may be and it may not.' And then I asked myself this question, 'Is polygamy wholly bad?' And the inward answer was, 'It may be and it may be not!' A man in Utah may have three wives and treat all with infinite tenderness; and another may live in Boston and have one wife, and use her to bat up files.

THE PROMISCUOUS GENTILE. "Laws for the suppression of polygamy are made by men 'imperfectly monogamous,' and are founded on the idea that man by nature is base and his soul defiled. We doubt that proposition now—we are having more faith in nature, and as our faith in God increases we govern less. The promiscuous Gentile is not much beyond the fish; but polygamy demands a degree.

of affinity-there is choice and there is of affinity—there is choice and there is loyalty.

"The Morman men and women have always been and are now true to their marriage ties. Polygamy and prostitution are never found together. Herbert Spencer once wrote: Polygamy seems to be a variant of man's search for his mate,' but no writer ever dare say as much for the monogamic institution of promiscuity.

"Why should meddlers worry themselves about a man a thousand miles away who has two wives or three? If the wives are willing, whose business is the wives are willing, whose business is it? We make laws against murder be-cause men object to being killed. But love and marriage are private matters, and beyond providing that a man should not allow his wife and children to become public charges, the govern-ment should keep its coarse hands off." A UNIQUE DISTINCTION.

The "Mormons" have the unique dis-The "Mormons" have the unique distinction of living up to their religion. It is a vital thing to them, seven days in the week—not a mere name and a cloak. Their religion may not be on as high a plane as the W. C. T. U. people could wish, but such as it is, it makes honest people, moral people, temperate people, well educated and well-to-do

Those busybodies, the Smoot-smashers, should begin drinking a new brand of weak tea, and direct their energies to elevating the homes in their immediate vicinity. To meet the calls for margins, Mrs. Russell avers that the directors and officials she names conspired to further borrow of the bank money to meet the necessities of arranging notes with different lenders. To avoid difficulty with the bank examiner in some cases where it was impossible under the law to borrow any more money on notes made by any of the persons interested, it is alleged they voted to loan funds on notes signed by persons whom they knew to be without pecuniary responsibility, knowing that these funds were to be used by speculative partnerships.

She declares that the defendants have carried notes which they knew were not good at their face value on the books of the bank in order to make it appear that the capital of the bank was unimpaired and that the five officials voted to pay dividends to stockholders when they knew that the capital stock of the bank was seriously impaired.

There are folks in this town who have intended to buy an encyciopaedia for years. Whenever opportunity has offered them, a good one at moderate prices on easy terms, they have "Thought it over," and they are thinking it over still. They have kept thinking it over until the encyclopaedia in question has had time to get "out of date," "too old." This condition has continued until their children, in crying need of a work of this character, have grown past the age when it was most necessary. They have perhaps borrowed of the neighbors, or had recourse at odd intervals to the public library—make shifts which must ineviborrowed of the neighbors, or had recourse at odd intervals to the public library—make shifts which must inevitably curtail educational opportunity. Many of these people will miss the opportunity offered by the Deseret News Club to secure the best and most upto-date encyclopaedia in the market, the New Americanized Encyclopaedia Britannica, at a discount of forty percent, and on terms as easy as any one could desire. They will wait to pay cash, and the time will never come. People of this class, and it is a large one, fall in their duty to themselves and their families.
