

DEMOCRATS COMPLETE THEIR TICKET.

Harmony and Hard Work Characteristics of the Convention—Honors Widely Distributed and General Good Feeling the Result—Story of Different Contests.

THE UTAH DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

Member of Congress—O. W. Powers of Salt Lake.
Governor—James H. Moyle of Salt Lake.
Secretary of State—Leyl N. Harmon of Provo.
Attorney General—Grant C. Bagley of Provo.
Auditor—J. W. Geiger of Park City.
Superintendent of Public Instruction—Nathan T. Porter of Centerville.
Justice of Supreme Court—C. S. Varian of Salt Lake.
Presidential Electors—Samuel Newhouse of Salt Lake; Edward H. Snow of St. George; Fred J. Kiesel of Ogden.

What was probably the most harmonious Democratic state convention in the history of Utah was the one which concluded its labors in the Salt Lake theater shortly before last midnight. And it was a busy convention—one that was doing something from the moment it was called to order until the last piece of business for which it had assembled was disposed of. Throughout the contests for place were spirited but good natured to an extraordinary degree, and when it was all over there was the best of feeling both among vanquished and victors.

As was generally believed by the best informed political observers for days past Moyle had a walk-away for governor. It was perfectly evident that the drift of party sentiment was in his direction and that it could not be stayed except by some unforeseen occurrence. Royance made a very clean campaign personally and under the circumstances made a very good showing. The magnanimous manner in which he accepted defeat and rallied to the support of Moyle won many friends for him, and has increased the admiration of Democrats for him many fold.

The presentation of the name of Mr. Wells was unfortunate and untimely. No one doubts that had he a few weeks ago become an avowed candidate he would have made a formidable competitor for Mr. Moyle. The use of his name, however, without his authority, and under conditions that neither he nor his friends approved of was one of the incidents of the convention that many would like to have erased. However, the delegates generally understood that he was not to blame for what happened. The responsibility was definitely fixed and fixed where it belonged, and with that the matter was allowed to pass.

The nomination by acclamation of Judge Powers for Congress was accomplished with dispatch and enthusiasm, while the speech he made in response to the honor conferred upon him was one of the features of the day. The remainder of the ticket was named with extreme care, particular attention being paid to what the delegates termed a "proper geographical distribution of the office."

EVENING SESSION.

Completion of Ticket and Incidents Associated Therewith.

At 7:30 o'clock the evening session was called to order by Chairman Thurman, and the delegates were then favored with the convention song, "The Star of the West," written and composed by J. T. Ashman of Millard county. The air was the "Red, White and Blue," and it made a decided hit with the delegates and was heartily applauded.

BAGLEY BAGS IT.

Nominations for attorney general were then declared in order. The first speaker recognized was Judge J. W. N. Harmon of Provo, who placed the name of Grant C. Bagley of Utah county before the convention. Judge Harmon then said that if Mr. Bagley were elected as attorney general there would be no opinion from his office which would enable the state officers to secure an increase in their salaries during the terms for which they were elected.

J. D. Call of Boxelder county was placed in nomination by R. H. Davis, who paid a glowing tribute to Mr. Call's ability and record as an attorney. Delegates from Cache, Carbon, Rich and Salt Lake counties seconded the nomination of Mr. Call. H. N. Hayes of Sevier seconded the nomination of Mr. Bagley. A ballot was then taken, which resulted in Mr. Bagley being nominated by a vote of 246 to 178. Mr. Call secured the floor and moved that Mr. Bagley's nomination be made unanimous and the motion was carried. The ballot taken is as follows:

NEW STATE COMMITTEE.

At this point Mathonhah Thomas secured the floor and moved that the order of business be changed so as to elect the state committee at once instead of after all the other business had been disposed of. The motion was carried and a recess of five minutes was taken to permit the various counties to choose their members of the committee. The committee chosen is as follows:

Beaver, George C. Whitmore; Kane, Frank Little; Millard, Daniel Stevens; Morgan, W. H. Rice; Plute, J. F. Gibbs; Rich, Edward Bagley; San Juan, Geo. Adams; Sanpete, O. P. Berglund; J. W. Cherry; Sevier, H. N. Hayes; Summit, George Smith; A. R. Weeter; Tooele, A. J. McHuston; Uintah, William O. Nye; Utah, A. A. King; R. A. Barney; H. S. Reynolds; A. J. Evans; Wasatch, J. H. McDonald; Washington, E. M. Brown; R. C. Lund; Wayne, Andrew Saunders; Weber, T. D. Dec; G. W. Williams; P. D. Johnson; Salt Lake, Samuel Hamblin; Mathonhah Thomas; F. S. Fernstrom; John Dorn; B. J. Stewart; M. E. Mulvey and A. W. Foreman.

BLAIR EXPLAINS.

After the committee had been named George E. Blair was given the floor on a question of personal privilege and explained that when he addressed the convention in the afternoon he thought he had the proxy of a Juab county delegate as Mr. Whitmore of that delegation told him that he could have one of the proxies. In conclusion he said that he wished it understood that he was too good a Democrat not to support the ticket because of his not being allowed to conclude his speech before the convention in the afternoon.

FIGHT FOR AUDITORSHIP.

Nominations for state auditor were then declared in order by the chairman. John W. Geiger of Summit county was placed in nomination by C. A. Callis of that county. He referred to the fact that Summit county had always rolled up a Democratic majority and had never received recognition from the state government. He now and given the place it sought on the state ticket.

Peter Greaves, Jr., of Ephraim was nominated by Fred Dickson of Sanpete county. It required three ballots before a choice was made. The first ballot resulted: Greaves, 174; Greaves, 77; Bowen, 94; Phillips, 173. The second ballot resulted: Greaves, 174; Greaves, 77; Bowen, 92; Phillips, 173. The third ballot resulted: Greaves, 174; Greaves, 77; Bowen, 92; Phillips, 173. The first and third ballots were as follows:

THIRD BALLOT—BOWEN, VOTE FROM SALT LAKE COUNTY.

Mr. Phillips then moved that the nomination of Mr. Geiger be made unanimous and the motion was carried.

EASY FOR WILSON.

Another nomination by acclamation was that of W. B. Wilson of Weber county for state treasurer. He was placed in nomination by T. D. Johnson and upon motion of Sam King his nomination was made unanimous.

PORTER AGAIN.

N. T. Porter of Davis county had an easy time in securing the nomination for superintendent of public instruction, the other two nominees being Olsen nominated by David A. Nelson of nomination being made unanimous. Mr. Porter was nominated by Mr. Bird. Oscar Van Cott of Salt Lake was nominated by Niels Lind but he refused to have his name placed before the convention and it was withdrawn. C. L. Olsen nominated David A. Nelson of Salt Lake county but he withdrew his candidate before the roll was called and moved that Mr. Porter's nomination be made unanimous. The motion carried in a hurry.

FOR SUPREME COURT HONORS.

When nominations for justice of the supreme court were called for Judge C. C. Deacy placed in nomination Judge C. S. Varian. In presenting his candidate he said:

"Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen: For the high and responsible position of justice of the supreme court I nominate the Hon. Charles S. Varian. I well remember at the first big convention, nine years ago, of the Democratic party, the judges that we nominated at that time, and I am proud to say of the Democratic party that ever since we have never held this high judicial office the subject of political barter or traffic, and since that time we have nominated and secured the best men we could for the place that we could find at the time being. Now we can get Mr. Varian, let us do it. Last year our Legislature, in its wisdom and for the object of placing upon the bench the best that we had in the profession, substantially raised the salary, and it is up to us, the Democratic party, who have stood for an honest and the best judiciary in the state, to get the best men we have got."

"Mr. Varian needs no introduction. The people of this state for many years have known of the patriotism, the standing in the profession, the high ability and the sterling qualities of that man and what he has done to bring our supreme court into a high standard, and we have the opportunity presented to us to elect him. I feel that we ought not to neglect it of presenting his name for this important office. And, above all, Mr. Varian is as true, staunch Democrat as there is in the state of Utah, and it will be an honor to the party as well as an honor to the state, and he will adorn that position, which is one of confidence and trust."

BASKIN NAMED.

Judge R. N. Baskin was placed in nomination to succeed himself by Judge J. W. Burton, who spoke as follows: "As you all know the most important office to the people of this state is the supreme court. It is important, because that court construes the laws enacted by the Legislature. It is the criterion and the custodian not only of the property rights of the people, but of their liberty. The incumbent of this office should be a man thoroughly equipped in every way for the important, responsible business. He should be learned in the law, fair and impartial, with a temperate mind and thoughtful, just, patient as to arguments, a good man, a just man, as well as a fair man."

"Six years ago you gave him this nomination, and six years ago in November he was elected, the only Democrat that ever was nominated in this state that has been elected to this high office. It is time that we have had other distinguished candidates, other great lawyers, other good men, constitutional lawyers, but somehow or other they have all fallen short of an election, and Judge Baskin is the only Democrat nominated for this high office who has been able to get enough votes. Now for six years he has filled this office with distinction, to the satisfaction of all, to the satisfaction of the entire bar and people. He has been a citizen and resident of Salt Lake City for 25 years. Every man and woman in this town knows him. Twice he has been a candidate for mayor of this city, and twice elected; once a candidate for the state senate, and elected once, and once a candidate for the same position that we now present him for and elected."

VARIAN THE WINNER.

A number of seconding speeches in behalf of both candidates were made.

KEEPS GROWING.

Coffee Drinkers Want It Stronger and Stronger.

"I have been a hard coffee drinker all my life," says a Pittsburg man, "and the longer I use it the stronger I want it—two or three cups at each meal. At times, when I am tired, I would be in distress would spit up large mouthfuls of bitter, yellow stuff and feel dizzy and water would run out of my eyes and nose. My coffee was calling me it was because I drank coffee, but I did not believe her for I thought I could not eat a meal without my coffee."

"Finally I got so bad I had to lay off working entirely. One day I saw a Postum article in the paper that made me think and told mother to get a package and we would try it. At first it was not boiled enough and tasted flat, but next day it was made better and I got to liking it better and better, and in a few days I told mother not to make any more coffee, that Postum was better. Oh, how glad I am I found Postum. I am a different man, my troubles are gone and I can sleep and eat. He said he did not know how in the world he could get along without coffee, but I finally made him get a box of Postum and made it according to directions."

"To three days he was back at work, and made a long story short, he has got entirely well by leaving off coffee and using Postum. I will give you his name and address, too. Names and addresses given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich."

and the voting had begun when Judge Hoge caused quite a sensation by attempting to withdraw Judge Baskin's name. His authority to do so was questioned by a number of Judge Baskin's followers who insisted on proceeding with the vote. Judge Burton, who nominated Judge Baskin, said that he had no authority to withdraw his candidate's name. Chairman Thurman ordered that the ballot be proceeded with. Judge Varian was nominated on the first ballot by a vote of 401 1/2 to 119 1/2. The ballot follows:

ELECTORS CHOSEN.

For presidential electors Senator Simon Bamberger nominated E. H. Snow of St. George, Fred J. Kiesel of Ogden and Samuel Newhouse of Salt Lake. He then moved that the nominations be closed and the three men named be nominated by acclamation. Fisher Harris wanted to name J. B. Milner, and was permitted to do so. The three named by Senator Bamberger were nominated on the first ballot, which follows:

ADJOURNMENT TAKEN.

After a motion had been made by C. M. Jackson and passed by the convention authorizing the state committee to fill any vacancy which might occur on the state ticket and that the roster in a defiant attitude be the party emblem, the convention adjourned.

LATE AFTERNOON WORK.

Chairman Thurman's Brief Talk—Nomination of Powers and Moyle.

The permanent officers assumed charge of the convention upon the conclusion of the report of the committee on permanent organization. In opening address Judge Thurman struck the keynote of the Democratic campaign, the same note that was so forcefully struck a few moments later by Judge O. W. Powers, when he pointed out the great advantage accruing to Democracy by the establishment of the new third party, and the strife now on in the Republican party. Said he: "We find them this morning associating with them men, one of whom wielded the gavel here today and says he believes we will elect the entire Democratic ticket next November, and another of whom telegraphs from the far east for the Democrats of Utah to get together and stay together. We don't care what troubles the Republicans may have, but we don't want them to drag clean Democrats in to them. We are here to nominate men who will become officers of the State of Utah. Let us elect men who will not violate their oath of office. Let us not elect men who will spend part of the time for which they are paid a salary by the state in figuring how they can be defeated and be right, it is better to be defeated and be right, than to be victorious and wrong. Let us lay aside factional feelings and nominate men whose election will vindicate our judgment in the eyes of the people, and on the 1st of next January Utah will begin to go forward as a Democratic state."

UNBOUNDED APPLAUSE.

The great current of applause and whispered conferences stilled instantly when Chairman John B. Milner of the Utah county delegation advanced to call down divine blessing upon the convention. It broke loose again a moment later when the platform was read by C. M. Jackson, secretary of the committee. It was a unanimous and vociferous vote that rang out in support of the platform, which met with enthusiastic approval from all sides.

POWERS NOMINATED.

This was followed by the call for nominations for representative in Congress. Here the convention did the one thing that seemed out and dried, for the whole convention, every man of it had his vote ready for O. W. Powers, and was impatient to cast it. When Judge A. J. Weber arose to nominate him, he was interrupted time and time again with demands that he go to the platform. The convention appeared to want to hear all that could be said about their favorite. When Judge Weber had acceded to the popular demand and mounted the platform he said:

"Not on behalf of Salt Lake county, but in the name of all the gallant Democrats of Utah; in the name of those who believe in the Jeffersonian doctrine of equal opportunities for all the children of men; in the name of those who fill the soil and till the mines—in the name of all the toilers of Utah who need a true friend and an able champion at Washington; in the name of those who want repose, contentment and peace in our splendid commonwealth; and in the name of those who are tired of cant and fraud, of selfishness, of corruption and of the name of all who love fair Utah, I nominate for Congress that peerless leader among men—Orlando W. Powers."

"He needs no eulogiums from me. You all do know him well. You and I admire him for his ability, his eloquence, his integrity and his Democracy. The people of Utah, regardless of political belief or religious creed, have a special love for him because of the enemies he made at the mining congress at Portland."

"His candidacy will put hope and courage into every Democratic heart; it will attract to our party hundreds—yes, thousands, of thinking Republicans who are tired of cant and fraud, disgusted with hypocrisy and corruption and satiated with Snootism and Kearsism."

"Within 24 hours after Judge Powers shall have taken his seat in Congress, he will be a recognized leader among those who will support Alton Brooks Parker in his work of reformation and reform in federal affairs. He will be a representative who will do more than merely respond to rollcalls—Utah's best interests with signal ability and constant fidelity."

"I urge upon you to nominate by acclamation and with unanimity the great commoner of his adopted state—the grand old man of Utah—O. W. Powers."

The mention of the name of Judge Powers was the signal for an enthusiastic outbreak such as has seldom been seen in a convention. There was no silent delegation, no sudden element anywhere. The convention arose to its feet in mass and with cheer upon cheer that seemed to make the building fairly rock. No seconding speech was needed, and no more active and several delegates had then prepared and had to give them. Joseph M. Cohen of Salt Lake spoke first. He said that "two weeks ago Judge Powers would not have been accepted. This nomination, even of the last two years, has made him come forward and say, 'I am still a Democrat.'"

John T. Caine, who from the first had been the most prominent figure of the Salt Lake delegation, and more active than any boy in the convention, here arose and moved formally the motion that all were waiting for—to nominate O. W. Powers for Congress by acclamation. The motion was being put by the chairman, when Samuel Kiesel of Utah county, made the eleventh frantic attempt to be recognized, and this time he succeeded. He had a supply of oratory about the candidate that he finally eliminated from his mind, and the anxious convention proceeded with the vote, and the motion was carried with one mighty shout.

APPEARS AND SPEAKS.

A committee consisting of Joseph M. Cohen of Salt Lake, Samuel A. King of Utah, and Joseph Monson of Cache, were sent after Judge Powers, and soon returned with him to the convention platform. He began at once upon the question of the nomination of every member in the deepest attention, and was pronounced by many the crowning effort of his political career. His sentiments seemed to echo from every delegation, and he was generally conceded, as the keynote of the Democratic campaign. Again and again he was forced to pause to allow the cheering to subside. At its conclusion he was given three rousing cheers.

NOMINATIONS FOR GOVERNOR.

When the nominations for governor were called the name of James H. Moyle was placed before the convention by Judge H. N. Hayes of Sevier. A speech which sketched the candidate's life and early training. William M. Royance of Utah county was named by W. E. Rydahl of Provo, and Rulon S. Wells of Salt Lake by H. B. Paul. San Juan county was named by Davis, Boxelder, Cache, and Salt Lake. San Juan seconded Royance.

THE BLAIR EPISODE.

As the ballot was about to be taken George E. Blair secured the recognition of the chair from the back of the middle aisle. He began to talk, advancing meanwhile down towards the platform. He passed near the front, and in a speech which sketched the candidate's life and early training. William M. Royance of Utah county was named by W. E. Rydahl of Provo, and Rulon S. Wells of Salt Lake by H. B. Paul. San Juan county was named by Davis, Boxelder, Cache, and Salt Lake. San Juan seconded Royance.
