

Enforcing Discipline.

A somewhat dramatic incident occurred in a country school-house near Seaford, Del., a few days since. The other pupils were required by the teacher, a certain Samuel Roop, to write "composition." A young miss of 16 refused to go through with this part of the school exercises. The teacher notified her that on the following Monday she would be required to write a composition. The girl had a couple of big brothers, and when they heard of this peremptory order they concluded to attend school themselves on Monday, and if the teacher attempted to enforce it, to give him a thrashing. The teacher was advised of this threat and put a revolver in his pocket before he started for the school-house on Monday morning. The big brothers were in attendance. When the hour came for writing compositions, the teacher laid his revolver on the desk and told the refractory girl to proceed with her task. The big brothers kept their seats in mute astonishment while their sister wrote a composition. A meeting of the school commission was called, and they sustained Mr. Roop in his method of enforcing discipline.
