

STEPHENS ON HUMAN LIBERTY

Says It Is Erroneous to Attribute Its Rise to French Revolution.

EXISTED PRIOR THERETO.

Distinguished lecturer Pays Tribute to Voltaire as the Great Champion of Humanity.

The parent-like care of individual and community interests, administration to the wants of the destitute, the education of children under government auspices, political freedom and military despotism have been some of the results of the French Revolution, declared Prof. Stephens in his lecture at the University of Utah today.

The French idea of liberty was not, as commonly supposed, originated with the French Revolution, for years previous to that time anti-slavery societies in London and reform associations in other countries had held meetings and conventions and formed protests against conditions of servitude among humanity. In fact, some of the monarchies had issued edicts which lifted much of the burden of slavery from the back of the common man. There had existed an enlightened despotism which inaugurated gradual reform of public treatment of public conditions and popular welfare. During the period which covered probably a century divided between the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, most important changes had come to despotisms and monarchies. From the condition in which the despot declared "I am the state" there was a turn to the policy which eventually made the king a servant of the state. But even under more liberal methods of government, humanity could not reap the full benefit of its freedom without an intellectual and material—intellectually by means of public education and materially in the protection of the labor of the common man.

It is erroneous to attribute to the French Revolution the origin of the present fulness of human liberty. For many years, French ideas which have spread itself to other countries and from which has evolved the intense worship of country of the Frenchman, the German, the Italian, the Hungarian, who seeks to obliterate from earth anything tending to humanism that may exist thereon. While the Poles are happy in their own language and country, so intensely vicious in Germany, is the love of the fatherland that no subject of the kaiser may rest easy except in the knowledge that every Pole a good little German.

The professor related the story used with much gusto by Carlyle and Dickens and other English writers and orators, which credited the French revolution with an obnoxious law requiring poor peasants to patrol the marshes at night in order to prevent the croaking of the frogs and the consequent loss of their master's slumbers. The speaker declared the story to have originated in a national humor that was misinterpreted and misunderstood by Carlyle, Dickens and others.

The new viewpoint of the French Revolution, said the professor, has robbed the history of much of its poetry and romance, but has paid the price of truth and accurate documentary recitation.

Last night Prof. Stephens lectured at Barratt hall, having for his subject "English Schools." English schools, said the professor, paid more attention to the formation of character than to the teaching of useful, practical knowledge, the boys being always taught by men and the girls by women.

The English school is supported in its endowment and is therefore independent of public taxation and the people have no voice in its conduct. In the class of education extended in the public schools may be found in large degree the foundation for England's colonial supremacy. Every boy is taught to find his place in the world and to adhere to conservation and to cling to that which is old. Boys are in turn "fags" and masters, learn to obey quickly and command firmly, both conditions being contained in the English public schools. These give secondary education and high schools are of recent date and mostly for girls.

Catarrh Invites Consumption

It weakens the delicate lung tissues, deranges the digestive organs, and breaks down the general health.

It often causes headache and dizziness, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, and affects the voice.

Being a constitutional disease it requires a constitutional remedy.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Radically and permanently cures catarrh of the nose, throat, stomach, bowels, and more delicate organs.

Read the testimonials.

No substitute for Hood's acts like Hood's. Be sure to get Hood's.

"I was troubled with catarrh 20 years. Seeing statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla resolved to try it. Four bottles entirely cured me." WILLIAM SHERMAN, 1009 6th St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Hood's Sarsaparilla promises to cure and keeps the promise.

He had been quite sick for some time and had only been out of bed a few days when he was missed. Owing to his weak condition at the time, it is feared he might have wandered off somewhere and met with an accident, while others think it possible that he has been knocked on the head and robbed of what money he may have had in his pockets.

The police authorities have been notified of the man's disappearance and officers are doing all in their power to locate him. It is not known whether the man has several friends and they are worried about his absence, as he said nothing to any of them about leaving.

The jury went to lunch at 1:30 and resumed its deliberations at 2:30. They were still in session when this report closed.

THE REAL CRANK

Is Plainly Marked.

A crank in one who stays in beaten paths when common sense tells him to leave. The real crank is one who persists in using coffee because accustomed to and yet knows it hurts him. It is this one who always pays the penalty, while the other who gives up coffee and takes up Postum Food Coffee in its place enjoys all the benefits of returning health.

A well known manufacturer's agent of New York City visited the grocery department of one of the big New York stores not long ago and there he tasted a sample cup of Postum made the right way. He said afterwards: "Just through the energy of that young woman who was serving Postum there I became a convert to the food drink and gave up the drug drink coffee and got well."

"I had used coffee to excess and was gradually becoming a complete wreck, getting weaker and more nervous every day. I paid the penalty for using coffee and when I tasted the delicious Postum I was glad indeed to make the change."

"So I gave up the coffee altogether and have used Postum instead ever since." My family at first called me crank but seeing how Postum benefited me the first month they all got in line and as a result of Postum's remarkable benefit to me we all drink now entirely in place of coffee and we are well. Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

As it will be a case of first come, first served, there will be a big scramble and the first 12 men to arrive will get their quarter sections. "There are now 700 men at work on the big canal there," he said, "and about 17 miles of it has been constructed already out of the 65 miles in length. The canal is a huge affair being as it is 30 feet wide at the bottom and 120 feet from bank to bank at the top with a uniform depth of 10 feet. It will be a great thing for Idaho when completed and will have the effect of bringing in a number of good settlers."
