First of Series of Debating Contest In Ogden High School Auditorium Today.

Ogden, March 27 .- April 6 has been announced as the date on which he board of trustees of the State Inustrial school will select a site for he proposed $20,000 girls' cottage for which an appropriation was made by he last legislature. Upon the anamcement of the site, steps will be aken immediately toward the erecof the building, and it will be ushed through to completion.

Although the exact site has not been announced, it will probably be a short distance north of the school as many members of the governor' party that visited the institution last Monday, favored the sites near th school more than they did the sites visited south and east of the city The principal objections being to the latter two sites, was that they wer too remote from the school and vould necessitate an increased cost in the operation and maintenance. Upon the completion of the new cottage, several changes will be made chool in the matter of the sep-of the boys into three classes. a of the boys into three classes. e building, which was originally ed for the hospital, will be kept ys under 10 years of age, while e cottage vacated by the girls b housed the boys between the f 10 and 15. ber of questions pertaining to the early history of American Fork had been giv-en to pupils, and asked to find answers to same. Compositions on early set-thers were prepared by students of the upper grades; and two of the ones judged to be the best were read during the program. Another very interesting feature was the address by Judge Josh-ua Greenwood, who dwelt tenderly, al-most lovingly, upon the trials and char-acteristics of the pioneers of this city, and in a manly way he told of their istyrdiness and hardships. His ora-tion contained many fine suggestions and exhortations to the students. Wash-burn Chipman, one of the few remain-ing pioneers, spoke in a reminiscent strain.
