MINING EXCHANGE.

Members Decide to Postpone Reopening Until September.

ANOTHER SLUMP IN WHITE SEPAL.

Lowest Point in Its History Reached—Price Fluctuations the Day

SALES Gala.

After considerable talk, the members of the Mining Exchange this morning decided that they had not yet had vacation enough and the limit of the close down was extended until the first of September. It was a close vote, however, requiring the value of the chairman to carry the proposition to a close the vacation.

In view of the continued demoralized condition of the silver market, some members took the position that to open the exchange at this time would be little or no dealing in the silver section, except at some sacrifice, would simply be presenting the opportunity for the enforced depression of the silver stocks. They also argued that the market should be in a stronger condition by the first of September and that by that time the free money question would also be settled, one way or the other pretty well. Those on the other side contended that a delay would not be good either and that there were no signs of an improved condition in the silver situation for September. It was a tie vote and the chairman cast the deciding ballot by his own vote. The decision of the majority of the members will be followed by the exchange. The attendance to-day was fairly large, everybody seeming to be on hand to hear what the first meeting would have been. Had the decision been to reopen it is believed that there would have been a very material change for the worse in the silver stocks from the closing quotations when the exchange took its recess. However, the feeling is much better to-day than it was a week ago, and when the next meeting is held their own, with a possible decided advance on a rise in this metal.

A Further Slump to Affect.

Silver this morning made a new record, its lowest in its history, namely, if a cent since declining a shade more than 60¢ cents, which was the price at which governed smelter settlements during the day. Such prices as the metal are having at this time, which are not much above the actual cost of mining and reducing, tend to affect stocks and companies identified with the silver industry. Private advices from the interior of Utah have reported such a grief, however, that they are proving very attractive to investors who speculate, and many mines in Utah can get below the actual value of the machinery plants and other surface assets of the companies. This is especially the case with several of the Park City stocks. That the faith will be rewarded sooner or later, and when it means there will, is believed by many, is simply money in silver stocks, but the great trouble is to fix the turning point under existing conditions. It may not, however, look like a good time for the holders of silver stocks when have slumped in value nearly in sell on a panic. Some of them are already getting in at low prices for the purpose of evening up.

To Adjust Ute Chance Insurance.

W. H. Maloney and E. J. Jolley, the former special agent for the Imperial and the latter special for the Continental Union, will adjust the loss on the Ute Chance mill at Bingham, which burned on Saturday. The gentlemen went out to Bingham this morning on the purpose of looking over the special property to-day. They will go to work at once.

Meeting of Morgan Stockholders.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Morgan Silver Mining Company of Park City has been called for an early date, at which the proposition to increase the capital stock of the company so as to permit the levying of assessments against the stock will be considered. The company owns some splendid property in Park City, but to date has never made them pay. Some of the latest machinery has recently been put in with the most brilliant results. The Morgan shows that the dividend is within a reasonable time.

Crescent Outlook.

On the 25th inst. the stockholders of the Crescent Mining Company of Park City will hold a meeting for the purpose of devising ways and means, in the light of being able to lift the bonded indebtedness covering the properties of that company and which is now due. It will be left at an early date for the election of officers. It is not at all unlikely that the assessment will be levied for, as the Crescent has been a great property and has produced much in sight, but for years has been in the hands of men who have taken out the high grade ore only.

A NEW DISCOVERY FIND,

Proven to Be a Valuable Discovery Sure Remedy.

Brigham Bagley, the other day a country was shown to a Herald reporter of Manilla that may amount to something of importance to him. It seems that Hannah and C. A. Anderson of Manilla were seeing their mountain sheep. Many times they passed over a certain ledge of rock. Finally it attracted their attention. Examining it they were overjoyed to find that it was more than a great ledge of rock sticking out of the ground. It was a rich and appreciated country.

Weather is lovely and night with its beautiful moonshine on the lake more than delightful.

THE PIONEER CHOIR LEADERS.

Welcome Addenda to Choir History—The "Glen Horn" of 1850.

FRANKLIN, Oneida Co., Idaho, August 10th, 1897.

To the Editor:

Having noticed in the Saturday issue of the DESERET NEWS for the 24th of July a brief sketch and portraits of the first choir leaders in Salt Lake City, I believe that an omission has been made of the names of two and especially of one, namely, Father John Parry. It also stated that the first choir was organized in 1851 and that Stephen H. Goddard was the first leader. Now, I know that a choir was organized in the early part of 1850 and Father John Parry was appointed choir leader, with T. B. Nash as his assistant. Stephen H. Goddard sang at that time in the choir, and Brother James Smithies played the bass flute. Whether Brother Goddard led the choir previous to the year 1850, I do not know, I think that there was a few of the old standards who recollect Brother Parry and Brother Nash at that time.

I can tell you of a little circumstance that transpired at the time we had in our choir a good many Welsh brethren, and no one could not read English very well, but while singing they would hum and ha the tune, especially the bass singers. We held our meetings then at ten in the morning, and in the afternoon. After singing the closing hymn one morning, before the benediction, Brother Brigham arose and said, "Brethren and sisters, if you will bring your hymn books with you this afternoon, Brother Parry or Brother Nash can give out the hymn. They are going to sing, and they can hum the tune, as he, he, he, he, as much as they please and we will read the hymn." This was in the old Bowery.

I write you this to show that there was a choir organized in 1850, and Father John Parry was the leader.

I do not know of any who are living now who were members of the choir at that time except Brother Stephen Goddard and myself, but if there are any living they can testify that what I have wrote is true. I believe President Cannon and President Smith remember, and a good many of the old settlers remember also. I have not written this with the intention of finding fault, but to show that an omission has been made as regards Father Parry's name. ISAAC B. NASH.

In Northern New Zealand.

KANO, Whangarei, N. Z., June 21, 1897.

To the Editor:

Our district conference was held here on the 12th and 13th of this month; the place of gathering was at Kano, a native village situated at the head of the beautiful Whangaruru bay, about one hundred and ten miles north of Auckland. There were present, of the Elders from America: Elder Ezra F. Richards, our president; Elder W. C. Castleton clerk of mission; Joseph Marchbanx and Milo Andrus, of the Bay of Islands; H. B. Hales and George F. Burnham jr., of this the Whangarei district.

Elder Richards spoke very interestingly to the Saints in regard to their duties and the way they should live, in order to receive the blessings that are promised to those who faithfully keep the commandments of God. He also delivered one discourse upon the first principles of the Gospel, for the benefit of the outsiders, there being quite a number present.

Each of the Elders present spoke, and laid the Gospel before the people in the true light of scripture.

A number of the prominent Maoris were called upon, and spoke very forcibly upon the principles of the Gospel, as taught by the Elders, comparing the Church of Christ to man-made systems, that are prevalent in the world today, and the teachings of the Mormon Elders to the teachings of the different ministers that have been among them.

The evening of the last day was opened for the members in general to speak, and it caused us to rejoice in listening to the strong and faithful testimonies of our brethren and sisters who are ever ready to speak of the goodness of God to them, in giving them the Gospel, that they might redeem themselves from the low state they are now in.

Our meals were served on the floor in the genuine Maori style. Many good things were placed before us, and were partaken of with real Maori appetites.

Love and peace reigned supreme from beginning to end, and good will for each other predominated; and we hope much good will result from our conference with which we feel quite confident will be the case.

There were six baptisms attended to, and two ordinations to the Priesthood.

The report of Elder Hales, president of district, showed considerable increase the past year, and that the work was progressing fairly well, with a good opening for preaching the Gospel.

We had considerable rain, but as we had plenty of good house room, it did not affect our conference much.

The second day after conference, Elder Andrus and myself, accompanied Elders Richards and Castleton as far as Kaipa, on their way back to Auckland. There we were royally received and entertained by Brother Going and his interesting family, whose doors are ever open to the Elders, and who are ready to administer to our wants. We held testimony meeting with the family, and had a time of rejoicing together, which is a characteristic of the meetings of Elders and Saints in foreign lands.

After meeting, we engaged in music, singing and speech-making, until long after the midnight hour, ere then each being loth to retire.
