ORCHARD HAS

Breaks His Long Silence and Talks Freely of Himself and His Imprisonment.

DENIES MAKING CONFESSION.

Says He Has Been Promised no Immunity-At no Time Subjected to Force or Pressure by Anybody.

Bolse, Idaho, May 16.-Harry Orchard, the prisoner-witness upon whom the state of Idaho chiefly relies to prove its charge that an inner circle of the Western Federation of Miners planned in conspiracy the murder of Gov. Stuneaberg, broke his long silence today, and for over half an hour discussed himself and his imprisonment with representatives of the Associated Press, whom he had expressed a desire to Orchard denies that he had been submitted to any mistreatment during his long confinement, denied that duress or force had been used upon him to secure the statements he has made, and de nied that Detective Parland and the officers of the state have promised him immuniy for his confessed crime, or reward for the value of his alleged confession in the hands of the state.

ORCHARD'S MANNER. Orchard's manner and conversation during the interview tended to strongly confirm the assertion that he has been reconverted to, and is deep in the zeal of the Christian religion.

Two illustrations used by him to explain a change in the kind of books he reads were Christian-like in character and religious in tone.

Orehard is perfectly sound and healthy in body; clear and quick of brain. If there was ever anything in the reports that he was breaking in health and mind, there is nothing now in his appearance or manner to give them a shadow of suggestion.

The one condition imposed upon to

The one condition imposed upon to-day's interview by Warden Whitney of the Idaho penitentiary was that there must be no discussion of "the case," and the prisoner himself, when he appeared for the meeting, asked that the same condition be observed.

No expectation of the make and manner of the man known to have confessed that he committed a series of revolting murders, including that of Prank Steunenberg, was realized in the prisoner brought by a guard to Warden Whitney's private office. As far as appearances go, the prisoner might have gone any walk in life, except the one his own story says he traveled. He came in quietly, smiling a little as he advanced and looking straight ahead out of a pair of twinkling blue eyes.

VERY SELF POSSESSED.

VERY SELF POSSESSED.

His greeting was self-possessed and his manner courteous. Orchard is somewhere about five feet in height and of stocky, plump build that would send the beam of the scales somewhere between the 170 and 180 marks. His hair is dark brown, brushed down to a polish; his moustache is light-colored and fails to conceal rather prominent teeth and a good-sized mouth. His head is a little roundish, but quite well formed, and there are grow's feet at his eye sides to tell of his years and life. The man's complexion is clear and his face bronzed. He is quick and certain in movement, of easy and certain in movement, of easy manners—a man toned down—and smiles a little nearly all the time he is talking. He wore a neat-fitting, well-made suit of gray, a pair of highly polished lace shoes, and his general appearance and figure were good; anything but the expected one.

"I don't care to talk about the case as it stands at this time," he said, after the introductions and the commonplaces had been passed. "I am a little learly about talking to newspaper men, so if you ask me anything that I think I should not talk about, I'll tell you, I know you'll understand."

"Is there anything as to your treatment in general that you'd care to say in the public at this time?" he was asked. and certain in move

SHERIFF HAS BEEN KIND.

"No, there is nothing special to be said. I have been treated very well by everyone sluce my arrest. The sheriff at Caldwell was very kind to me, and since I have been here my treatment has been very fine—all that I could expect under the circumstances, I have been treated with the utmost courtesy by everybody. I am given the greatest freedom. I have a large room with open windows, and I exercise every day. I walk, but take no other form of exercise."

"Do you read much?"

"Yes. I have done an immense amount of reading. I see the newspapers, but I read books the most. I have been reading towland, and Romaine's history, the life of John Wesley, and George Whitfield, a number of works on the Reformation, and something about the history of England a hundred years ago. Much of it has been ecclesiastical and religious. I used to read a great deal of other literature, and a lot of novels."

"Why did you change?" asked one

"Why did you change?" asked one of the interviewers.

Orchard hesitated for a moment, and then in a quiet tone, said: "It is like a little boy who always iled to his father about everything and then suddenly decided to tell him the truth about everything. That is about the best way that I can express the idea. I used to like novels and all the other kinds of books, but now I do not care for such tissh."

"It is like a man," he went on a moment later, in carnest tones, "who has been doing wrong all his life, and suddenly decides to do right. He cans not undo all the wrong he has done, but he can at least do something to clear things up."

WHY HE WAS SILENT,

WHY HE WAS SILENT,

The question of the confinement and treatment of the prisoner was reverted to later, and Orchard said: "I have not talked to any newspapermen since I have been here. I felt that I did not have anything to say and I did not want too much prominence before, the public. I could have seen the newspapermen if I had wanted to. I am free to go anywhere in the yard and speak to anyone that I like to. But I do not speak to many of the men. I don't fiel that I am any better than the rest, but you know how it is, a man takes a notion to certain men and does not to others. And besides, I have felt that I ought to be caveful. Some of the men, is do the seemed anxious to learn too much, I do talk to several of the men. There are some good men out here, brought to prison by misfortune, and I talk to them. I attend religious rervices and I talk to some of the men in the hope of doing them some good."

The last formal question of the in-terview want directly to the position of Orcharl in the pending case and was directly answered: It was the

the poor child had to endure. I called one of our best doctors to treat him, and he said he had the Cuban lich, and his treatment did not do any good. He seemed to get worse. He suffered so terribly that my husband said he believed he would have to die. I had almost given up hope when he was a landy friend told me to try the Culicura Remedies. She said she cured her little girl's ear, which was nearly eaten up with the excema. I got a cake of Culteura Soap and one box Culteura Ointment, and I washed him als over with the Culteura Soap and applied the Culteura Ointment, and I washed him als over with the Culteura Soap and applied the Culteura Ointment, and it washed him als over with the Culteura Soap and applied the culteura Ointment and he at once fell into a sleep, and he slept with case for the first time since two months. When he awoke I applied it again, and it gave him much ease, and after three applications the sorts began to dry up and improvement began to show, and in a few days the hide from the bettom of his feet and inside of his hands began to peel off. I only used one cake Cultura Soap and one box Culteura Ointment to complete the cure of the dreadful disease, and in just two weeks from the day I commenced to use the Culticura Remedies my bady was entirely well. The treatment only cost me 75c. and I would have gladly paid $100 if I could not have got it any cheaper. I feel safe in saving that the Culticura Remedies saved his life. I have never admitted, and do not admit now, that I have ever made a contession," said Orchard, "Mind that. But at no time was I ever subinat. But at no time was I ever subjected to force or pressure of any kind and anything I ever said to Capt. McParland was without force or threat of any kind. Anything I said was of my own free will and accord. It was just as I talk to you here; there was nothing else. No promise of any kind has ever been made by by Capt. McParland, or anyone

HIS PEREGRINATIONS.

Orchard said he had been down the St. Lawrence, and had been about Wisconsin and other middle states. Almost with pride, he asked his interviewers what they thought of the great west. He was curious to know about the Thaw trial and if Delmas of the west had held his own against Jerome of the east. He talked in a general way about the formation of the Haywood jury, and said that he was following the proceedings in the local and other western papers. He asked to be excused from telling where he had been born and what his church might be. As the interview closed, and a guard came to escort Orchard from the room, the latter said: "Good bye, gentlemen. I am very glad to have seen you. I wish you again."

As a precautionary measure, the actual place in the penitentiary where Orchard is confined is kept secret, and the subject is one that the warden and the guards decline to discuss, Orchard's custodian today was Guard Robbins, a veteran from the state of Maine, who came here ages ago. He used to help Gen. O. O. Howard fight Indians, and for three years was constantly in service with him.

NO IMMUNITY PROMISED.
Gov. Gooding tonight supplemented the statement of Orchard on the subject of possible immunity. He said:
"At times up to a few months ago, I feared lest in some of my interviews with Orchard I might have inadvertantly given him some hope of immunity. I am now very positive that he has no expectation of any such thing, at the hind of the state of Idaho. This was demonstrated to us one day by Orchard himself, when he stopped me in the middle of a conversation, and warned me that I was treading on dangerous ground. Orchard said:
"Governor, I don't want you to say anything that might even lead me to hope for immunity from the consequences of my crime. I do not expect any, and am ready to pay the penalty." NO IMMUNITY PROMISED.

A RATE DECISION. -

To Make Distance Sole Factor in Determining it Would Create Chaos.

Washington, May 16.-In a decision rendered today dismissing the complaint in the case of E. H. Wilhoyt against the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad company, the interstate commerce commission held that "to make distance the sole factor in determining a reasonable rate would introduce undue discrimination and create chaotic commercial conditions."

The complainant stated that the carriers rates on refined oil at the date of his petition from Erie, Kans., to Jopin, Mo., 70 miles, and to 3t. Louis, Mo., 400 miles, were 17 cents per 100 pounds. Later the rate from Erie to Jopin was reduced to 15 cents, which is the rate prevailing from other oil shipping points in Kansas to Jopin. In its decision, the commission says: "The rates to Jopin, St. Louis and KansasCity from these producing points are apparently adjusted with a view to placing the shippers on an equitable basis and affording them equal opportunities in the market."
