

COMMISSION FOR THE RAILROADS

Probable Action to be Demanded Of Legislature Is Circulating In Rumors.

UGDEN SMELTER IS TIED UP

Rate On Ore From Bingham to Junction City Said to be Prohibitive.

A railway commission for Utah, as one of the things which will be considered seriously by the forthcoming session of the legislature, is rumored in a manner that will not keep down. It emanates from certain classes of shippers, particularly wool growers and in one case from a smelter. Just who will take the initiative in the matter is not admitted even by those who are circulating the rumor, and even these individuals will not permit the use of their names in connection with the statements made.

Railroad men, asked what position they will take in the event that such action appears imminent in the session, decline to talk in any definite line. Mr. Reeves of the Harriman lines being out of the city, his subordinates prefer to remain silent. S. V. Derrah of the Rio Grande will not discuss the matter from the railroad standpoint. One freight official did say today, though, that the rumor is regarded in railroad circles, where it has been heard for several days, as a club which a certain class of shippers is holding over the heads of the freight departments of the roads. This same official says further that he does not believe that the commission is at all probable as a result of the forthcoming session of the legislature. A threat made to scare and not to be actually reported to, is his view of the whole affair.

SAYS RUMOR WELL FOUNDED.

A prominent wool man, who is also a politician of weight, declares that the rumor is not unfounded; he says that the legislature will certainly take up the fight for equitable rates if the railroads do not grant what the shippers believe to be only fair demands. Not a club, but a warning, is his definition of the discussion.

Mr. Reeves left for Chicago to attend the joint rate conference now being held in the city. He is reported to have said that the railroads realize the discrimination charged against Utah shippers exists, and in a measure to the extent charged. That it is the mission of Mr. Reeves to seek an adjustment in favor of Utah is a declaration made in railroad circles.

Mr. McCarthy of the Commercial club traffic bureau, in the course of a conversation with the News reporter today, said that the rate question is not, as many people believe, a war between the shipper and the railroad, but is more in the nature of a deadlock, and on the part of the shipper to show the railroad that he is in earnest in the matter of re-adjustment of rates and will seek to obtain that re-adjustment in a friendly, but persistent manner.

WILL FORCE AN ISSUE.

A leading wool grower said this morning with regard to the rumored railroad commission act, that Utah shippers will force this question to an issue with the railroads. If the big merchants of the state do not do it, then the wool men will or at least a sufficient number of wool men whose interest in the matter is sufficient to urge them to action. With the merchant proposition is a little different than it is with the wool man. The merchant, if the freight rate compels him to, can put the price of his merchandise at a point that will provide him with a profit. With the wool man, he must sell his wool for what the buyer will pay, or else hold it for a better market. His wool is not a commodity that he can get a living with conditions as they now exist, he must have a better freight rate to the east. The railroads always cite water transportation in an argument on discrimination in favor of California points, but we have heard the story so often that it fails to produce the effect desired by the railroad men. We will work for a railroad commission and in earnest if the roads do not grant the reasonable demands being made upon them.

The Ogden smelter, operated by the Independent Smelting company, is at least temporarily out of commission for the reason, it is stated, that the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad company insists on charging a rate of $1.75 a ton on ore shipped from Bingham; which the company claims, cannot stand and compete with other Utah smelters.

It has been pointed out that the railroad company exacts from the Utah shippers and some other Bingham mining companies only 27 cents a ton to transport ore from Bingham to Garfield and the distance traversed is about 20 miles, or about one-third the distance between Bingham and Ogden. The independent company's smelter located nine miles north of Ogden.

The management of the Independent company avers that after a car of ore is once loaded, the expense of the road company would be very little more for the 60-mile haul than for the 20-mile haul; therefore discrimination in favor of the Salt Lake valley plants and to the detriment of the one near Ogden is charged against the railroad company.

REFERRED TO OFFICIALS.

Manager Jensen of the smelting company, when seen by a representative of the "News" today, was somewhat reluctant to discuss the question at issue between the smelter and the railroad. Nevertheless it was admitted that the matter had been up with the railroad officials for some time.

"Because of the high freight rate," said Mr. Jensen, "our company has been able to obtain but very little ore from Bingham. In other words, we have been practically shut out of that district and producers have not had the advantage of competitive bidding for ores. The matter has been thoroughly gone into with Rio Grande officials and it has been explained to them that unless we can get a $1 rate, it is useless for us to try to obtain Bingham ores, notwithstanding that the camp yields a product very desirable in the operation of our furnaces."

Mr. Jensen would not state what steps his company might take in event of the refusal of the Rio Grande to readjust its present schedule on ores shipped to Ogden, but he comes from a trustworthy source that notice has been served on the proper authorities of the railroad to the effect that the influence of the smelting company disposes of the matter. A state railroad commission during the forthcoming session of the legislature.

PASSES EIGHTIETH MILESTONE.

Notable Gathering Greets Mrs. Alice C. Lambert on Her Birthday.

Yesterday marked the eightieth milestone in the life of Mrs. Alice C. Lambert, one of Salt Lake's oldest and most respected residents, and in commemoration of the event, "the family and some of the friends," assembled last evening in the Seventh ward meetinghouse, at which gathering the veteran was the guest of honor.

Over 250 persons were in attendance, and the evening was thoroughly enjoyable to all present, and "Mother Lambert," as she is endearingly called, was the recipient of many beautiful tokens and tokens of love and appreciation.

A bounteous supper was partaken of at 7:30 o'clock, Mrs. Lambert's second son, George C., acting as master of ceremonies. The evening was well offered by Richard G. third son, while grace was said by Charles J., the eldest child. The address of welcome was delivered by the master of ceremonies.

President Anthony H. Lund, Elders John Henry Smith, William Blood, David Evans, Charles H. Hyde and Bishop T. A. Clawson, Elder Andrew Jensen and the late President George C. Cannon, Mrs. Lambert into the "blue ribbon" rank of that organization.

Musical numbers, vocal and instrumental, and recitations were contributed by the guests. Mrs. Lambert, and she herself spoke feelingly.

Mrs. Lambert was the second child of George and Ann Cannon, and was born in Liverpool. Her eldest brother was the late President George C. Cannon, the younger brothers and sisters are President Angus M. Cannon, David H. Cannon, Ann Woodbury, Leonora Gardner and Elizabeth Piggett still surviving. Her mother died when emigrating to America and was buried at sea. Mary Alice was then only 13 years old, and had to perform the part of mother to her brothers and sisters. Her father died shortly after the family arrived at Nauvoo. She became the wife of Charles Lambert, who died a little over 18 years ago.

Mrs. Lambert is in the enjoyment of good health, and is a constant worker in the temple, and her numerous posterity and friends join in wishing that she may live to enjoy many more anniversaries of her natal day.

FOUND ARSENIC IN SHEEP.

Prof. Jones' Test Discovers It—Not Found at College.

The case of Shoup and Jaynes against the United States Smelting & Refining company still engages the attention of Judge Marshall and a jury of 12 men in the Federal court, with a probability that the hearing will not end before the week closes.

Today's proceedings were rather desultory, with only occasionally an enlightening moment when question of counsel or procedure was raised. Examination of the sheep of the company caused a wave of merriment to sweep over the courtroom. Three witnesses were examined during the forenoon, H. E. Benedict, assistant superintendent of the smelter, concluding the testimony, while plaintiff C. J. Shoup was recalled and questioned briefly, and Dr. J. W. Gray, a veterinary surgeon, was examined directly, and cross-examination followed by the testimony of the sheep of the company.

Mr. Gray described the conditions he found among the sheep of Shoup and Jaynes when he was called to Draper, Jan. 10, 1907. Hundreds of animals stood about trembling, and examination showed that their teeth were abnormally white, their eyes in an itchy state, and the wool could be easily pulled from the skin. Examination of dead animals revealed ulcerated intestines, and blood-streaked organs. The witness used technical terms in describing various parts of a sheep's carcass, and in a few instances by witnesses asked by Judge Howatt, of counsel for defendant company, what the term meant in plain English.

Finally the attorney, becoming somewhat irritated, asked sternly, "Why don't you use the simpler term in the first place?" to which the witness only smiled, and a laugh went around the room.

Part of the deceased animals were sent to the Agricultural college at Logan to be analyzed, while Prof. Marcus E. Jones performed like service here. The college chemist reported an entire absence of arsenic in the samples, while Prof. Jones reported arsenic in considerable portions. The witness admitted that no more tests had been required of the Logan institution.

The testimony of Mr. Benedict pertained for the most part to explaining the workings of the bag process in disposing of smoke and fumes at the smelter. It was admitted by witnesses that ores with an unusually large amount of arsenic were being treated at the time that plaintiffs complain their sheep died as a plague. The ores specified were from Eureka. Mrs. Case is being closely watched by many persons other than those directly interested, as other causes are pending that will be affected by the outcome of the present one. Shoup and Jaynes are suing for damages in the sum of $10,000, claiming to have lost upwards of 1,300 sheep from the causes complained of.

COURT NOTES.

Mrs. Sarah Gilmore has filed an answer to her husband's complaint asking for a decree of divorce, in which she alleges cruelty, and cites specific instances of beating and abusive language.

J. E. Moore, sentenced on the 24th of November to serve 30 days in the county jail for petty larceny, has been pardoned.

Frank Altrett, who was fined $5 by the city court a short time ago for maintaining a slot machine, and who appealed to the higher court on the ground that the machine was played for cigars, it was not a gambling device, was found guilty also by Judge Armstrong of the district court, and yesterday sentenced to pay a fine of $5.

John Morrison this morning filed a complaint against his wife, Ella Morrison, charging her with desertion, and asking for a decree of divorce. The complaint sets forth the fact that the couple were married in Aurora, Ill., in January, 1882.

Judge Armstrong's division of the district court was occupied this morning hearing an appeal case of more than a year's standing. The case is one in which Peter Widfry, was convicted in the city court last year of indecent exposure, and fined $500, from which sentence he took an appeal, and the crowded condition of the district court calendar since that time has prevented a hearing of the case till the present time.

The Salt Lake Temple will close Thursday evening, 24 inst., and open again on the first Tuesday in January, 1909.

ITALIAN BADLY INJURED.

Mell Poulo, an Italian, was probably fatally injured in front of the Colonial theater this afternoon. While passing along Third South street the Italian was struck in the head by a large motor car, which had loosened itself from the top of the theater, where mechanics were at work on the building. He was knocked to the sidewalk with his left arm broken, and a bruised skull which it is feared will cause his death. An ambulance was summoned at once and the injured man was removed to the St. Mark's hospital. His skull was found to be fractured upon an examination hastily made by Dr. Stewart, before he was removed to the hospital.

LATE LOCALS.

Granite Stake Hall—The Granite Stake Religion classes will give a grand concert at the stake amusement hall, Fourteenth and State streets, on Friday evening, Dec. 11. Some of the best talent in Salt Lake county as well as members of the different ward classes are on the program, and the affair promises to be a great success.

Cooley Improves—A. C. Cooley, who was burned by acid at the A. C. College in Logan, Utah, last week, today, is reported as rapidly improving. The report that his eyes had been injured is said to be entirely erroneous.

Local Bank Clearings—Today's local bank clearings amounted to $1,156,369.66 as against $483,126.73 for the same day last year.

LOUIS PRATT, RELIGIOUS FANATIC, DIED TODAY

Kansas City, Dec. 10.—Louis Pratt, one of the leaders of the band of fanatics that fought a bloody battle in front of the city hall here Tuesday night, died at the hospital at noon today of his wounds. This makes the total number of deaths three. Patrolman Michael Mullane, who was shot during the progress of the riot is not expected to live out the day.

Policeman Mullane also suffered a relapse during the night and his life is hanging by a thread. Sergeant Patrick Clark and A. J. Seizo, who were seriously wounded are slightly improved today.

James Sharp, the leader of the onslaught against the police was not been captured in spite of the efforts of the entire police force.

Mrs. Pratt, who with her four children is being held at police headquarters, now states she knows Sharp was a false prophet and wishes he had remained in the "good old Baptist church."

KELLOGG HAS MISSING STANDARD OIL CONTRACT

New York, Dec. 10.—The missing contract of the Standard Oil company which explains the loan made by the corporation to T. N. Barnsdall of Pittsburgh, is now in the hands of Frank B. Kellogg, the government prosecutor, conducting the government's suit to dissolve the Standard Oil company which is in progress here. The contract had been demanded by the government while John D. Archbold was on the stand recently and yesterday it was turned over to Mr. Kellogg by Morris Rosenthal, after having been obtained in Pittsburgh from the Pittsburgh Trust company. The contract, it is said, indicates the Standard's complete control of the oil field which Mr. Barnsdall operated. Two contracts, in fact, covered the transaction of the loan of $7,500,000 and the security given by Mr. Barnsdall was the bulk of the stock of the Barnsdall Oil company, mortgages on coal lands and rights in Oklahoma. These same securities, William A. Rockefeller testified on the witness stand a year ago, were practically worthless in his opinion. This made Mr. Barnsdall the property of the trust and the government counsel hopes to show that he was thus practically a dummy furnished with funds to build up the business of the Standard. The original loan was made by the Standard Oil company itself, but the last one, dated February, 1907, extending over a period of seven years, was made by President Young of the Prairie Oil & Gas company, a Standard subsidiary.

COUNTERFEITERS SENTENCED.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Edward Wheel and Edw. Westcott, were sentenced to serve from three to four years, and Harry Michaels to two years, and George Anderson to three years in the government prison at Leavenworth, Kan., today after pleading guilty to charges of counterfeiting. They circulated an immense quantity of spurious $5 bills.

INSANE MAN COMMITS SUICIDE.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—John Hanson, a delirious patient at the Jefferson Park hospital today, broke the straps which held him to his cot, and with a razor which he had hidden, cut his wrists, and to the horror of other patients who witnessed the act, jumped through the glass of a third story window to his death on the paved street below.

WILLIAMS REPRIVED.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Lieut. Gov. Sherman, whose privilege saved Herman Williams, official hangman tomorrow, today granted a reprieve till Feb. 15 to Andrew Williams, who also was sentenced to execution tomorrow. Williams was convicted of wife murder.

NEW JUDGE FOR GOLDFIELD.

Goldfield, Nev., Dec. 10.—Peter L. Somers today took the oath of office as one of the judges of the court for the new district created by the late legislature. The district was created in the county seat, and for which two judges are provided. The second judge, Edgar H. Somers, who will take the oath of office in a day or two. Both were appointed by the governor.

Judge Somers was formerly mayor of Milwaukee, a district attorney and congressman from Wisconsin. Judge Stevens is a resident of Goldfield in the Territorial district, Colorado.

AFRICAN PALM OIL.

The chief product of the western coast of Africa are the palm nut and of a thousand varieties of the palm oil, obtained from the nut palm, one plant growing in the tropical or semi-tropical regions. The nut palm is a perennial woody plant, often growing to the height of thirty or forty feet.

The nuts, from six to eight bunches to the tree, have an outer fibrous coat very much like the outer hull of the coconut. From this outer coat is made a crude oil which is used by the natives in the preparation of their "plava sauce" for their rice chop. Under this fibrous covering is another inner and brittle shell, also resembling the shell of the coconut. Within this shell is the kernel or fleshy part of the nut, which is hard, white, and of a light buttery appearance, very rich in the oil for which it is so famous.

There is little cultivation of the trees, beyond allowing them to grow and removing the nuts that others may take their place. All of the work connected with hulling the nuts is crudely done, the natives sitting on the ground with a stone between their legs, breaking away the outer shell with another stone or iron hammer, 200 natives doing the work that one machine might do. It would seem that some American of inventive mind might contrive a machine to hull these nuts. The palm oil and nut industry of West Africa bids fair to rival the cottonseed industry of America. It is only waiting for improved methods in its cultivation and preparation for the market. There were exported from Sierra Leone alone during the year 1907 34,947 tons of nuts and 615,997 gallons of the oil, valued at $2,500,000. The greater part of the oil is shipped to England and Germany, to be used in the manufacture of soap, candles and lubricating oils.—Consular Report.

CROSS-EYED CAT TOO MUCH FOR TARS

Deserted by her crew at the very moment of sailing from Seattle for the north, the fishing schooner Edrie still lies at her moorings, and all because of a cross-eyed black cat. Friday the crew was making final arrangements to sail, when a yell resounded out of the hold. A sailor burst through the hatch, scrambled over the side, and made off before any one could stop him. While the others were gazing after his retreating form a howl came from the darkness below, and a black cat appeared upon the deck. One look at the stub-tailed, green-eyed feline was enough. Every man of the crew picked up his bundle and silently departed, nor can the captain by any means lure any of them back on board.—San Francisco Chronicle.

SENATOR SMOOT'S REPORT ON FORESTS

our present need, and with it conserve the usefulness of our streams for irrigation, water supply, navigation, and power.

Underright management, our forests will yield over four times as much as now. We can reduce waste in the woods and in the mill at least one-third. With present as well as future profit. We can perpetuate the naval stores industry. Preservative treatment will reduce by one-fifth the quantity of timber used in the water or in the ground. We can practically stop forest fires at a total yearly cost of one-fifth value of the standing timber burned each year, not counting young growth.

We shall suffer for timber to meet our needs, until our forests have had time to grow again. But if we act vigorously and at once, we shall escape permanent timber scarcity.

WHAT MUST BE DONE.

For each million acres of forest in public ownership, over three million are privately owned. The conservation of public forests is the smaller task before the nation and the states. The larger task is to induce private forest owners, which means three million men, to take care of what they own. We must make the timber owner means every one, how not to waste. If these things are done, they will conserve our streams as well as our forests. If they are not done, the usefulness of our streams will decrease no less than the usefulness of our forests.

We must stop forest fires. By careful logging, we must reduce waste and leave cut-over lands productive. We must make the timber logged go further, by preservative treatment and by avoiding needless loss in the mill, the factory, and in use. We must plant up those lands now treeless which will be most useful under forest. We must so adjust taxation that cut-over lands can be held for a second crop. We must recognize that timber costs no less to grow than it does to log and saw.

We must continue and perfect, by state and nation, the preservation by use of forests already publicly owned; and we must extend it to other mountain forests more valuable for the permanent benefit of the many than for the temporary profit of a few.

In a general discussion to the report which followed, the governors of several states generally pledged themselves to co-operation with the federal government in a practicable scheme for the conservation of the national forests.

BASEBALL MANAGERS' MEETING.

New York, Dec. 10.—The baseball managers expected considerable further strenuous wrestling with more or less important matters of detail at today's sessions of the National and American leagues. There also was a possibility of decisions upon a joint meeting of the two leagues.

This would be unprecedented but President Johnson, of the American league, who announced his intention yesterday of sending an invitation to the National league, said a joint conference would be decidedly for the good of the sport.

HE HAD ANOTHER NAME FOR IT.

J. P. Johnston, the new United States senator from Alabama, is an ardent agriculturist. One day, shortly after leaving from the governorship and returning to his home in Birmingham, he donned his overalls and went to work in the garden.

A society lady, a newcomer, entered the yard to call on Mrs. Johnston. Her maid at the door not being answered, she walked into the garden.

"How long have you worked for the Johnstons?" she inquired of the man she found there.

"A good many years, madam."

"Send them away, please," she said.

"About all I get out of it is my clothes and my keep."

"Why, then, come and work for me."

she said, "I'll do that and pay you so much a month besides."

"Thank you, madam," he replied, "but I signed up with Mrs. Johnson for life."

"Why, no such contract is binding. That is pronounced null and void."

"I have always called it marriage," replied the senator.—Success Magazine.
