FRAGMENTS.

OSE drunk in limbo to-day.

VISITORS to Logan are beginning to return.

JOHN B. Gough will lecture at the Theatre next Friday evening.

THE Knights in "Baron Rudolph" at the Opera House to-night.

THE regular practice of the Choral Society takes place at Carless & Co's. music rooms at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

"MARRIED MASTERS" will not be played at the Theatre to-night. The performance is unavoidably postponed.

THE Gentiles are worse disgusted with Joseph Cook this time than before. His egotism and insipidity are talked of openly among them.

CHICKEN CHABLER had a matinee at the City Hall to-day. The play was "Stealing Overcoats." It will take the star 102 days to recover from the operation.

A SPECIAL venire of forty names was issued on Saturday in the District Court, for petit jurors in the case of the People vs. Joseph Biddlecome, indicted for murder. The venire was made returnable on Tuesday.

LOCAL NEWS.

THE immigrants.—The second company of the season's Church emigration from Europe, sailed from Liverpool on Saturday, per S. S. Arctica, lumbering 289 souls.

TO Missionaries.—The departure of the missionaries to the Southern States, notified to leave this city tomorrow, has been postponed, until Tuesday, the 27th inst.

ASOLO Anthem.—A very beautiful solo anthem, "The Lord my Light," was sung in the Tabernacle at the close of yesterday's service, by Mrs. C. Helen Marsh, a lady from Chicago, sojourning for a while in this city. Prof. Haynes accompanied on the organ. Mrs. Marsh has a clear silver voice and her rendering was listened to with rapt attention.

JOSEPH COOK.—The following has been handed in:

Editor Deseret News:

JOSEPH COOK, who lectured in the Opera House on the 18th inst., is a plain, sturdy, middle-aged man, with a willing and amiable countenance, and a willingness to admit that he is an oratorical slenderer of the vilest kind.

Geo. W. Kelsey.

May 19, 1884.

JOHN B. GOUGH.—The Bradford Evening Star says: "Mr. Gough has without question been the most popular lecturer in the world during the last twenty-five years. No other living man has lectured to so many thousands of people as he has. As a lecturer he is infallible. He has gathered a fund of the most remarkable anecdotes and incidents ever used for illustration. Many of them provoke the most unbounded laughter, while others stir the profoundest depths of sympathy. His life has thrown him into circumstances where he has seen every variety of light and shadow which the world affords. No one who has heard him tell these incidents can be any possibility ever forget the impression." Mr. Gough lectures in the Salt Lake Theatre on Friday next.

AN Epic Poem.—There is about to be issued from the Deseret office an epic poem by Hannah Tapfield King, a lady whose gifted pen has been diligently active in the community for many years, and whose popularity and talent as a writer both of prose and poetry, promise that her latest production will not fall below in merit or public appreciation, any of her former efforts.

THE subject of the poem is a synopsis of the early history of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, including the journey over the Rocky Mountains until the tired feet of the Saints halted on the spot which the Prophet Brigham declared was the site of the future city of the Saints. Bound in cloth, the poem, which is published by subscription, will be sold at 50 cents; in paper, 25 cents; the object of the author being to place it within the reach of all, and not to speculate. We shall await its appearance with eagerness and pleasure.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.—The Democratic Convention for Salt Lake County, called for the purpose of electing delegates to the Democratic Territorial Convention of June 10th, met at the Federal Court Room for a few minutes on Saturday evening, and without any notice or ado, proceeded with and finished up their business and adjourned. It is said the meeting would have been longer but for the grand Joseph Cook rally that was to follow (the idea of using the Institute having been abandoned) and which, most of them, thought they were not many at most, seemed anxious to attend.

Judge Rosborough was placed in the chair, and S. H. Lewis acted as secretary. The following were elected delegates to the Territorial Convention, being nominated by a committee appointed by the chairman, E. D. Howe: W. C. Hall, P. L. Williams, Thomas Marshall, P. H. Lamm, J. G. Satherland, Geo. F. Prescott, Bolivar Roberts, M. B. Sowers, Howard Seeborg, Henry Wagner, Samuel A. Merritt, Hugh D. Hippetto, Geo. Gulien, Pat Phelan, Matthew Cullen, Simon Bamberger.

Other minor matters were despatched and the convention adjourned.

"Dancing Rudy."—Mr. and Mrs. George S. Knight, who created such a favorable impression while here several weeks ago, will appear for one night only in "Baron Rudolph," at the Opera House this evening. They have lately concluded a very successful engagement at the Baldwin Theatre, San Francisco. The Post says:

"In spite of the pouring rain, the muddy streets and sloppy sidewalks, the Baldwin Theatre enjoyed an average Monday night's attendance. 'Baron Rudolph' with Mr. and Mrs. George Knight appeared in a new line, to them, of character, and not to the audience, and it is needless to say that Mr. Knight was most heartily welcomed and received many bursts of well worn applause in recognition of the very great improvement he has made in his acting since his last visit here in German character. 'Dancing Rudy' displays more unaffectedness, more talent and a better command of humor and pathos than in 'Otto, Bright, Lively and witty throughout, he won the appreciation of his audience almost without exertion. Clever as ever in his songs and dances, he elicited in a most marked manner the approval of the audience. Mrs. Knight as the 'Widow Dushwee' gave a most entertaining and original performance, her brilliant costumes, was the cynosure of all eyes. The rest of the cast is appropriately selected to add lustre to the principals. The place, the plot of which we have already given, is well adapted to the management most efficient."

MASH MEETING.

A FULL, FREE AND INFLATED EXPRESSION OF FLATTED-OUT OPINIONS.

The freedom-shriekers of the "Liberal" ring and the hitherto priests of local sectarian churches, with the Reverend Joseph Cook, of Boston, as a pivotal point around which to revolve, held their "grand anti-Mormon" "hurrah" in the Federal Court room on Saturday evening.

The meeting was called to order by Secretary Thomas, who delivered a very fair speech expressive of his regret at being obliged to differ with the "Mormon" neighbors, and said that nothing but a high sense of duty made it necessary to ask the attention of the country to the affairs of this Territory. On the one hand there was a handful of people, comparatively speaking, who believed it to be their duty to follow certain path, no matter where it led or with what it conflicted. On the other hand was a great nation, which had already conducted to a successful issue two great struggles for human freedom, and which had resolved that the supremacy of its laws should be maintained wherever its flag floated, and that its sovereignty should be unquestioned. He closed by saying that he hoped that in the conclusions reached this night, a wise liberality would be used in adopting the suggestions of the necessities of the day, and that the utterances would be of that character and depth and variety which attaches to truly national opinions.

This moderate address—about the only thing said that was truly liberal, and consequently utterly at variance with the spirit of the meeting and the principles of the "Liberal" clique—was followed by a speech from Chaplain Jackson, who confessed at the outset his ignorance of and brief acquaintance with matters here, and then went on to tell more than anyone else in the meeting knew or up to that time had imagined about the "Mormons" and their short-comings. He had looked from Fort Douglas at this city since last September and had also read from Mormon books, but could not view the matter in a favorable light to the "Mormons." He found fault with their doctrine, their practices, their pointed out to him (by back-drivers no doubt), and that in each ward there was a small wing attached to a religious meeting-house, and this wing was called the school. He next pitched in to polygamy, said it ought to exist as a national institution or not at all, and he thought not at all. It was the cause of a lack of homogeneity among the people, and the government ought to choke it to death for the sake of harmony, if nothing else. He then told a little anecdote about visiting a "Mormon" Sunday school, said that the souls of men had been stirred to the very depths on this subject of "Mormonism," and prophesied that victory would eventually perch upon the banners of those who were fighting for the right. (Amen!—Etc.)

W. S. Godbe, being sick, Moses M. Bane was asked to represent him, and if every sick man was properly represented it was on this occasion. He admitted that he had already talked too much on the "Mormon" question to be interesting, (a proposition which no one present felt able to confute) and would therefore submit himself to the benefits that would flow from a Legislative Commission. There was an irrepressible conflict here. The Bible said one father and one mother (see Moses Bane and the Prophets) but the Mormons said one father and many mothers. The Commission was elected, but wrong (another convincing argument) and would go to prison before they would give up their position and enforce the laws of the land. He had talked with young Mormons who had said to him: "If we leave the Church, what protection can you afford us," to which he replied: "If we have possession of all the offices in the Territory, we can protect you." To which the Mormon boys would answer: "Yes, but you'll never get them." The bare thought of this came very near turning him over to the General, and to control his feelings he launched out upon the subject of Congressional legislation, Magna Charta, and closed with the startling announcement that "we intend to put the Declaration of Independence far above the Book of Mormon and the time will come when the millions that are now going into nonsensical temples shall go toward the building of school-houses and spreading enlightenment throughout this benighted Territory."

Judge McBride, the reservoir of "Liberal" gall and wormwood, was then tapped and turned on. He gave his views of the Cassidy and Cullom bills, spoke in favor of a Legislative commission, said it was perfectly constitutional, as the creature was never greater than the creator, and there was no question as to the absolute power of Congress over the Territories. He did not want revolution here but reform. The Mormons were as obedient a people as could be found anywhere, but they did not obey the right power, the "Liberal" power, or "Mormonism" was opposed to class legislation. He was opposed to the Edmunds law. He did not believe in simply disfranchising polygamists, he was in favor of disfranchising all the Mormons.

The Reverend Joseph Cook then treated the hungry guests to a choice snatch of anti-"Mormon" pastry, made some very telling blows (with his breath), telling everything nearly but the truth and was supported by his man Friday McNeese, who stood up and read the following resolutions, prepared by a committee previously appointed:

Resolved, That in consequence of a priety despotism in Utah, growing out of a mischievous union of Church and State, whereby a republican form of government is denied to the people; whereby American citizens are taxed without representation; whereby the sacred laws of the land are trodden under foot and large numbers of the people are persecuted by priestly example and precept; to be hostile to our country and its most sacred institutions; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we as American citizens, in public meeting assembled, deem it our high duty to send out over the country our strongest protest against these grievous wrongs whereby we are denied the privileges due to us as patriotic and as law-abiding citizens.

Resolved, That we urge the two great National parties to most earnestly call upon Congress to bring political difficulties to an end here by at once passing the Cullom or Cassidy bill, which provides for a legislative commission, so earnestly recommended by Governor Murray, and so heartily endorsed by President Arthur.

GARD OF THANKS.

The void left in my heart by the sudden taking off of the partner of my joys and sorrows, is such that I feel at a loss for words to express my gratitude for the kindness and attention bestowed upon me and my fatherless children, by the friends of my late husband and myself; and that void can find but one word which can convey my sincere feeling toward them, and that word is "Thanks."

Where all manifested so much willingness and genuine respect it would seem unjust to particularize, but sufficient acknowledgment can not be made by any feeble words of mine for the indefatigable and earnest interest exhibited by Dr. J. M. Benedict; his devotion and consoling work will always be green in my remembrance. I am poor in thanks, but I do thank the gentlemen of the committee of the I. O. O. F. and Knights of Pythias for their untiring labors while the preparations for the funeral were in progress; the donors of the floral tributes; Mr. Abram Gould for horses furnished for conveyances in the cortege, and for his manifestations of whole-souled sympathy during the trying hours of the past few days; the friends of my departed loved one who came from Park City and Ogden to pay their last respects; the band and choir which furnished the soothing strains during the obsequies and burial; the Lodges of the Orders which attended with so much unanimity and profound respect for their dead brother; the contributions of conveyances; the kind friends who watched and waited, offered words of consolation and aided in different ways to comfort me and my remaining dear one; to them all I have the one simple, sincere sentiment of my heart to give: Thank you all.

The Caterpillar.—Mr. Fred Culmer hands in the following as a solution of the caterpillar problem: "These innocent (?) pests seen this year to be almost everywhere, and a plague and serious anticipations of short crops of fruit are already ripe. They literally swarm in many orchards and seem not to be on one, but on all sorts of trees and bushes, and the worst is not yet. Gardeners begin to cry out and ornamental trees are being cut down. The idea of burning and cutting the trees to rid themselves of the terrible pest. An earnest inquiry issued from the public papers what can be done to destroy them without destroying the trees. I'll tell you: Simply go to G. F. Culmer's Tea and Coffee Store, purchase some 'Lascivious Killer,' 'Insect Killer,' 'Sure-Pop,' powder the vermin at night and morning when they are in clusters, and they will die sure. Let them alone after one dose to die in peace. They will do it."
