EVENING NEWS.

Friday, Dec 26, 1893.

FLOOR SWEEPINGS YIELD- ING UPWARD OF TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS.

There are houses in this city, plain looking from without, but with roofs incrusted with precious metals and floors studded with bits of silver, gold and diamonds. These are not being hanging from the ceiling; but they are sprinkled like the spangled lace of an oriental bride. The men and women in the house are in dressed and gaily; but their fingers are tipped with gold, and their hair is dusted with glittering ores. With all their riches, however, such houses are only grubby shops, with richly decked stairways. The report of the News climbed three flights in one. He entered a room whence he might have been sent away, well-off for life; but all he received was a choking whiff of sulphuric acid, and some other acid, and all he saw and felt was a furnace which a number of workmen were supplying with bits of an old floor. The ashes were being scraped into barrels.

"Making pulverized charcoal for bills us people?" asked the reporter.
"No, sir; just burning some precious wood," was the answer.
"You see, when we moved from our old quarters in the Peterson building, we brought the old floor with us and left a few scraps of the washing bits of straw to yield up upward of $2,000. The floor has been in use about ten years, and grain by grain, it has been filed with precious metals. This charcoal will be ground in a mill, and thence will go into a crucible for amalgamation with mercury. By squeezing out the mercury through cloths, we will will regain the gold and silver that has been ground into the floor by hundreds of feet."

"What becomes of the metal dust that is swept up?"
"We treat it in a similar way. Our employees are required to wash their hands in a tank, and the dirty water passes through a series of pipes, so that very little of value is allowed to escape. A Newark firm uses no less than five tanks for its refuse before it passes into a well.
A few years ago the firm took out the mud from the bottom of the well, worked it, and obtained several hundred dollars of metal. The sweepings and settings are worth like ours are worth from $3,000 to $4,000, according to the kind of work done. If we get up many diamond settings and plain rings the waste is large. In obtaining and making cases work the loss is not so great."

"That is hard to estimate. Dor-son & Age, of Newark, burnt a floor 50x100, and obtained a return of $5, 000. A jewelry establishment on Sansom street obtained $800 for one recently burnt."

"Cannot the workmen carry away the gold dust without detection?" "I have heard of such things. We had a man in our employ who had curly hair and was continually running his fingers through it. On inquiry we found he had been discharged from a New York factory for carrying gold away in his hair, which was afterwards redeemed by a mother redeems her boy's scalp."

"At this juncture another lot of the precious kindling was put in the stove. The new value of the sweep-ings, which were sold for $100,000 and $9,320.12 for silver. We are very careful to reclaim all the gold we
can. Nearly every month we have the roofs of all our buildings swept and the sweepings refined."

"At the United States mint, where more gold is used than in any other manufacturing place in the country, the devices used to recover vagrant particles of gold and silver are both novel and interesting. Chief Clerk Casperwalder said the value of his sweepings for the fiscal year ending June 30, was $14,304.40 gold
careful to reclaim all the gold we
and the sweepings refined."

"Does it pay you to sweep the roofs?"
"Pay! The sweepings for one month amounted to $280. We occasionally sweep the roof of the Presbyterian church. You wouldn't expect to find gold in a sewer, would you? Well, we scraped about six feet of the sewer, and, apart from the rats we caught, we reclaimed $500 worth of gold and silver that had washed from the roof of the building during heavy showers."

"How often do you scrape the sewer?"
"Well, we shall scrape again soon, but after that there will be no need.
We are having a well dug to catch our rain water in the future. We had a surplus last year of 21 ounces of gold over the amount allowed for waste."

"How do you guard against your workmen carrying gold away?"
"The workmen leave their work log clothes here, and they are watched from time to time."

"What becomes of the gold that escapes through the chimney?"
"Every time a crucible is open a certain amount of gold is bound to volatilize, but it drops on the roof and in the street. Occasionally a crucible upset, and that causes considerable volatilization. We had a sidable roof on one of our sheds, that was taken off and reduced, yielding a large amount of gold and silver.
The old Pennsylvania depot before Mr. Wamsucker bought it had felt and gravel roof, which for years had been absorbing gold that is, no doubt, in some city dump."

"How valuable do you think the roof was?"
"Judging by the roof taken off the mint yard, I should say at least $100,000. I have seen the place and many thousands in some city heap around town."—Philadelphia News.

SPICKS OF SPICE.

A sweet thing in life is a brae—An Egyptian molasses jug.

First impressions are lasting, as the gentleman remarked when the trip hammer came down on his finger.

Somebody has been bright enough to say: "Lansbury and Gelber, the City of the Valley and the Valley of the Lily."

Fat boy—No, you cannot raise chickens from egg plants. You might as well try to raise calves from a cow catcher.

They are vaccinating the Indians of Alaska. If vaccination will prevent Indian breaking out, let the doctors tackle the Apaches.

An orator who was thumped in the neck with a "gone before" was brought down to earth by a hearing more of the crop report.

"Things have got to such a pitch that they begin to look dark," said the "How do?" inquired a friend. "I have all pitch black!" was the way he answered.

A young woman went into a library in School street, Boston, and asked for "Man as He is." "That is out," replied the librarian, "but I have 'Woman as She Should Be.'"

"Are you going to the funeral this afternoon?"

lady of another on Broadway.

"Well, yes, if my husband don't bring home matinee tickets," replied the latter.—The Judge.

"A Fortune Awaiting a Tramp." Is the title of an article in a contemporary. It is no more than just.
So many tramps have been waiting for a fortune so many years that it is no more than right that Fortune should now wait for a tramp.

A journal some time ago offered a school prize for the best essay on "Honesty." Of the twenty-three responses received a large proportion proved to have been stolen, and only a poem, was stolen entire. He who preaches honesty needs watch log.

A grave digger walking in the streets, the other day, chanced to turn and noticed two doctors walking behind him. He stopped till they passed and then followed on behind them. "And why is this?" said they. "I know my place in the procession," returned he.

When Hermann was last in Texas he did his card tricks, and then in vain tried to find somebody to play poker with. One man came to him, "If I knew as much about cards as you do, I wouldn't waste cards in the show business; I would obtain a residence in the State and run for the Texas Legislature."

"What are these cups for?" asked a well-dressed man of a jeweler, pointing to some elegant silver cups on the showcase. "Those are race cups, to be given as prizes to the best racer." "If that's so, suppose you and I race for one," and the stranger, with the cup in hand, started the jeweler after him. The stranger won the cup.

Wanted Light.—An old-time clergyman of eastern Connecticut, commonly known as "Pastor W-as," was a very shrewd man and quick at repartee. Once when on an exchange he was annoyed to find the room so dark, and beckoning to person sitting near the pulpit, he asked him to open the blinds and let in more light.

"We expect light from you," said the gentleman.
"But I must get it from heaven first," was the quick rejoinder.— Harper's Bazar.

Worth Thinking About.—"I wish mammas," said little Johnnie Fizzle-top, "that I lived in South Africa."
"Why, my son, do you wish you lived in South Africa?"
"Why, the mammas down there don't wear any slippers, you know."

"Yes, my son, but you must also remember that the little boys in South Africa don't wear any pants, either."

"That's so," said Johnnie, "I never thought anything a-out that."

Boston Culture.—"Oh, yes," said the eldest Miss Culture at a table d'hothe the other evening, "I breakfasted yesterday with Mrs. Brainweight, and we enjoyed a delicious repast of excellent coffee, superior bread, and plentiful globes done admirably."

"Peculiarities of the globe," repeated the Boston virgin. "And what under the sun are they?" "I believe," said Miss Culture, drawing herself up stiffly, "I believe uncultured people call them fish-balls."

Deserves Encouragement.—Mr.
Bevin, the successor of the late Mr.
Marwood, the public auctioneer of England, has issued his prospectus.
It will greatly thoughtful criminal all over the world. He has discovered a new and patent seven-foot and a double-hitch noose, for which he claims advantages vastly superior to anything now in use. The present method of employing only one knot under the left ear Mr.
Bevin pronounces to be bad form and disasteful to malefactors of decadent organization. He uses a double knot which embraces both ears.
Mr. Bevin is a progressive man, and condemned a poor a delusion of keeping pace with the march of modern improvement should encourage him as much as possible.
