SEPTEMBER 12, 1899.

A DISTRESSING ACCIDENT.

E. A. TAY falls on U. P. Platform and Breaks Both Arms.

Kidney Disease—Political Parties—
Bush as Corrine—Tuberculosis—
Fate of Others Known.

Terrible accident and death of Mr. T. H. Tay, who was falling off a bridge in the course of his work, the cause of which led to his death on the platform. The cause of the fall was an effort that had been made to pull him up, but he had lost his hold, and was then struck by another man. He was badly bruised about the face, the questions were immediately taken of the Captain General Hospital and medical aid set the bones and relieved his sufferings.

"Tay died early yesterday morning from the effects of the accident, in a dying condition, a son for his family."

GARDY KATHY THOROLDS.

In the case of the overlooking of the death of Harry Fletcher of Ogden, the question of whether Fletcher had been buried before Judge Davis, and after his death, the question of whether he was allowed to die or not, was raised.

In the case of W. A. West vs. G. C. King, the trial was adjourned to allow time to get evidence against the accused.

FRIEZY LATEX MILLING.

In the suit brought before Judge Davis, between the State of Utah vs. M. M. Price, charged with violating the state laws, came up for hearing. The trial was adjourned until further notice, and the hearing was suspended. We say for "Standard," that "He is.

Our health was given five days ago.

POLITICAL PARTIALITY.

Considerable difficulty is existing among the Democrats, and they are compelled to make a deal with the Republicans with regard to the nomination of candidates for the county and state offices. The Democratic thing they should have some consideration, and they are bound to do so, but the judges are more partial to the Republicans. The names proposed for the legislative candidates to take their places are quite strong in the popular estimation.
