LONDON, 30.

The Standard's special dispatch, from Deligrad reports that the Turks captured ten cannon and a large quantity of muskets and ammunition in their last battle at Djunis.

The Standard's Belgrade dispatch does not single out the artillery as the most prominent in the defection on that occasion, but states that the Servian army, which was reduced to such a condition that the men were hardly able to crawl, openly declared that it would fight no longer, and abandoned its position en masse.

The Times correspondent at Belgrade telegraphs that there is no longer any delusion; Serbia is now at the feet of Russia or the mercy of Turkey. Some officers are under orders to proceed to Kragajevatz, which is the arsenal of Serbia. The Turks, however, ought to have passed Kragajevatz before reinforcements could arrive there. If they delay, further resistance by the Russian volunteers is probable. Intelligence, however, has been received from Russian officers that they have received reinforcements to the amount of 20,000 men and some batteries of artillery.

The Circassian cavalry are burning villages near Paratchin and Cuprigia in Belgrade.

Ignatieff, the Russian ambassador, has been instructed to demand the Porte's acceptance, within forty-eight hours, of an armistice and the suspension of hostilities, otherwise the diplomatic relations between Russia and Turkey will be broken off, and Gen. Ignatieff, with the whole personnel of the embassy, will leave Constantinople. A telegram from Belgrade says the consternation caused by the news of the fall of Djunis has been replaced by the great activity and strong reaction in favor of continuing the struggle.

The Standard's dispatch from Belgrade says an order has been read in the streets throughout the city calling on all able-bodied men to report themselves for immediate service. The Turks lack transportation, and can therefore advance but slowly.

It is rumored that Italy and Austria have offered mediation.

A Vienna telegram to the same journal says: "It is an established fact that before Russia's ultimatum upset all calculations the ambassadors at Constantinople telegraphed on Monday to their governments that an armistice was secured. It is believed in official quarters that Russia, in consequence of the sudden advance of the Turks, no longer wished to have a line of demarcation between the contending parties during the armistice, fixed by the positions they might hold at the beginning of the armistice, and that she, therefore, has taken this sudden step."

The Post says it has reason to believe that only yesterday, subsequent to the issue of the new Russian instructions, important peaceful telegrams were received from the principal representatives concerned in the negotiations. It hopes, notwithstanding appearances, that Ignatieff has not reverted to the original demand for the bare six weeks' armistice, which would only snatch the fruits of victory from Turkey and enable the Russians and Servians to enter upon a winter campaign. If conditions possible of acceptance are offered, we may feel certain that the Porte will accept them. A few hours will show whether Russia means war. The above is prominently printed in the Post.

Ignatieff to present Russia's ultimatum to the Porte was dispatched by the Czar direct to Constantinople last evening, and that the Czar was induced to take this step by the recent events in Serbia, and Turkey's continuing the war notwithstanding the negotiations pending for an armistice.

LONDON, 1.—The Times Belgrade dispatch reports that the Russian officers shot several Servian soldiers on Sunday in their endeavors to check the stampede at Djunis. The hatred of the Servians for their Russian allies becomes intense.

The Times Vienna correspondent says there is no reason to suppose that the Porte will resist the Russian ultimatum and refuse an armistice. Its consent to the latter was expected every moment before the ultimatum arrived. It remains to be seen how far Russia's conciliatory attitude, in regard to a conference, will be affected by the incident of the ultimatum.

A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph, dated Constantinople, Tuesday evening, reports that an armistice of two months has been signed.

The canal is 160 miles long, and has, at the sea end, a harbor covering 250 acres, which, however, is not quite completed.

LONDON, 1.—The Times says, as a proof of how far things had gone before the ultimatum was sent, the Porte, before its receipt, had confidentially informed Abdul Kurman that an armistice was concluded and hostilities should cease on November 1st.

The arrival of the ultimatum seemed a surprise to General Ignatieff as much as any one.

Our Country Contemporaries.

Ogden Junction, Nov. 1—

One more flag taken down to-day. This is good news. But that which follows is bad. Willie Thompson, son of Mr. Wm. Thompson, on the bench, died this morning. An account of Mr. George Horrocks' death appears elsewhere. So many fatal cases occurring makes Ogden gloomy and sad.

The special marshal made a mistake in reporting the death from small-pox, yesterday. It was a daughter, eleven years of age, of Thomas Shipley, who died, instead of a son of James Shipley.

With profound regret we record the death of Mr. George Horrocks, of this city, which took place this morning about half-past ten o'clock. Mr. Horrocks is well known and respected in this city, as an industrious and honorable man, and his death will cause universal sorrow. While suffering from small-pox he arose from his bed a few days ago, in the temporary absence of his attendant, and attempted to leave the house. It is probable that the sudden chill, as the night was very cold, was the immediate cause of death. As soon as his attempt to leave the house was known, his brother Edward obtained an additional male attendant to assist in nursing and caring for him.

Ogden Junction, Nov. 2—

One more flag taken down. This makes eight taken down, while only two have been set up during the present week. In spite of the deaths and rumors, the disease is on the decrease.

We are again called to chronicle the death of a well-known highly respected and excellent man. Henry Holmes, of North Ogden, died at his residence in that place last night. His death was as unexpected as it was sudden. Being taken very sick, Dr. P. L. Anderson was sent for. The Doctor went to North Ogden last evening, and on examining Mr. Holmes, and finding a number of pustules, he pronounced his disease small pox. The Doctor returned to Ogden to forward some medicine, and after preparing it at the City Drug Store, he dispatched it by a messenger. Before the medicine arrived Mr. Holmes had breathed his last in this world. Deceased had been troubled for several years with heart disease, and his death is generally attributed to this than the small-pox. This rather calamity will be deeply felt by the people, as Mr. Holmes was well and favorably known throughout the county, having been a public man, filling from time to time many public positions. He served the county as selectman; he once presided over the settlement where he died, and he was always ready to respond to the call of duty.

"Out of about fifty cases of small-pox at Ogden, but one Gentile has been taken, and he has fully recovered. The disease seems to have been confined almost exclusively to the Saints." Anyone might know that the above is from the Salt Lake. No other paper would lie like that. The facts are, that the first case in Ogden, was a Gentile. The family removed to the pest house was a Gentile family, four of which died. Other Gentiles have been attacked, but we do not wish to publish names of either party. There are ills that flesh is heir to, and disease is no respecter of creeds.

Ogden Junction, Nov. 4—

The malady has made its appearance at three houses where it has not broken out before, and five cases are reported. It is not yet certain that all of them are small-pox, but the symptoms indicate the disease in each instance.

We regret to say that Mrs. Randall, wife of Mr. Frank Randall, of this city, died during last night.

This morning news came of the death of Carlos Moffatt, son of Mr. A. Moffatt. The young man died at Eden, Ogden Valley, from the effects of small-pox.

Another family at Eden are afflicted with the disease.

Provo Enquirer, Nov. 4—

On Monday last about 2 o'clock, Wilford Baker, of Pleasant Grove, was accidentally killed by being struck by a large stump rolling down the mountain. The deceased was in Battle Creek Cañon, with others getting wood, but left them about 10 o'clock telling them he had some wood below, which he would get to the road and then go home. Mr. Bachus getting a stump ready to roll down, thinking Baker had gone home, but taking the precaution to hollow before starting it, as no answer was returned, the stump was started down the slide, the ground being very hard it rolled with great velocity and but little noise. The deceased and a boy with him had got to within about thirty yards of the road, neither of them hearing anything, when the deceased was struck on the right side of the head and instantly killed; the boy only a few feet off knew nothing of it until he saw the body and stump rolling together. The deceased was brought home that afternoon, and funeral services held on Tuesday afternoon. The deceased was born in England, in the year 1851, he bore an excellent character, and has been identified with the Pleasant Grove United Order for about two years; he leaves a wife and one child, with many friends and relatives to mourn his loss, some of the latter live in this city.
