

one of the wheels of the buggy cutting and bruising her face badly. She was picked up in an unconscious condition and carried into Smith's drug store, where Dr. Wilson attended to her injuries. Meanwhile the horse turned north, slipped and fell, but was up and on again with the shafts and two front wheels trailing behind. The next collision was with a cart in front of Cohn Bros. store, where a capture was effected. Mr. Fox was in no way to blame for the lamentable accident, as the broken ring of the bit testified.

Visitors to the Lake resorts and other places of amusement and recreation adjacent to this city during the past summer will readily remember Harry Sackett, the silhouette artist and his work in cutting out likenesses from paper with a pair of ordinary scissors. In that particular line he excelled most if not all competitors and he made a great deal of money at the business. But he didn't save any, or if he did it was very little. He was not of an economical turn of mind. He patronized the bar very freely and associated with a class that was more than willing to help him spend his cash.

Of late he has been moody and despondent, but no one suspected that his anxiety to leave this world was so great that he would attempt suicide. It appears, however, that it was, for at 10:30 last night he entered the Resort saloon, near the Cliff House, drew a knife from his pocket and commenced to stab himself in the region of the heart. He was disarmed and taken to the police station, where an examination resulted in showing that one of the wounds was quite deep and that the blade of the knife had only stopped on encountering a rib. Sackett is a brother of the well known Denver theatrical man of that name.

In Friday's NEWS is an article relating to the boy who was a short time ago found dead in Millard county, and who was at first supposed to be Martin Peck, of Provo. The article states that the dead boy came from Provo; but that it was not his home. This is an error. Mart. Peck was born here about 14 years ago and has lived here most of the time since then. His mother died, and his father, E. M. Peck Jr., married again and is now living in Richmond, Cache county. Since his father moved away the missing boy has been living with relatives here. His father's parents live in Provo and his mother's parents on Provo bench.

For some time before he left Provo he had been making his home with an aunt, Mrs. Ed. Carter. He was hired by a Mr. Chessley who, it is understood, is interested with Mr. Paxton in the sheep business in Millard county, to go south and herd sheep, and left in company with Mr. Chessley for that purpose. The relatives of the boy, strange to say, have not been notified by Mr. Chessley of his death, and all their information in the matter has been received through the public press. They, however, think the dead boy is Martin Peck, and that Mr. Reeves is mistaken in thinking it is his missing brother.

J. P. Larsen, who has been employed by C. C. Amussen, in felling and cutting up some immense poplars surrounding his residence, met with a serious accident on Wednesday last. The trees were tall, and as they were growing within less than their own length from the house, it was necessary to climb up and chop off the upper portion first. Larsen was engaged in this work when his feet slipped and he fell head first about twenty-five feet, one of his hips striking the picket fence. The bone was broken close to the joint and his back and one side were badly bruised; one lung was also injured, and since the accident pneumonia has developed. His condition is very serious. He has a wife and six children. Mr. Amussen had a room in his own house prepared for the sufferer, and is paying all expenses. A subscription list is also being liberally signed for the benefit of the family, so that if he should be fortunate enough to recover, no pecuniary inconvenience will be added to his sufferings. A short time after the accident, Enoch Amussen had a finger badly mashed while removing some of the larger branches.

The funeral of Chin Nun, a young Chinese convert to Christianity who was better known as "George," will occur at two o'clock Wednesday, from Evans's undertaking parlors.

The deceased had been ill for several weeks preceding his demise and had been under the care of Christian people, at the old Y. M. C. A. rooms, on Second South street, in which building he had been attending a night school. He had also attended quite regularly the Chinese mission Sabbath school, and seemed interested in the work of the mission, although he had never renounced his faith in the traditional belief peculiar to his own people.

Young Nun was well known in the community and had many friends among those who were not his countrymen. He will be buried according to the custom of the Chinese, who will have charge of the ceremonies. The story that interference on the part of highlanders was expected is laughed at and declared to be untrue. There is a strange incident in connection with Nun's death. It is that his countrymen shun the chamber in which he died as though it were a place of pestilence and darkest evil. When he expired they hastily departed from the room and cannot be induced to return to it.

Sunday Mr. B. Cummings, Jr., returned to this city from Cache county, a tour of which he had made in the interest of the NEWS. He reports that the grain and other field crops, in all parts of the county, are unprecedentedly heavy. Large areas of unirrigated lands were sown to wheat last fall and spring, and as a rule, the crop on such lands, as well as on the irrigated farms, has been very heavy. In many places, tracts of land in the foothills, and even on the sides of the mountain ranges, which have heretofore been regarded as worthless for cultivation, have yielded heavy crops of grain.

For many years past, much attention has been paid to the planting and cultivation of orchards in and near the towns, and this year the trees bend and break under their burdens of luscious fruit. Many orchard owners testify of the excellent results of the spraying law, while some state that they do not perceive much benefit from spraying, but admit that the operation was probably performed at the wrong time.

The present price of wheat all over Cache county is 40 cents, but it is firm at that figure. The potato crop is more profitable, as it is in good demand at about 25 cents. These are low prices, but the heavy yield helps to compensate the farmer.

The financial depression has weighed upon the people, but has not been severely felt by those who were not in debt, and those who were have not felt it in anything like the degree in which persons in the large cities of the Territory have. Before thrashing began money was remarkably scarce, but since the marketing of grain has begun the situation has been somewhat relieved. The immediate future of Cache county, financially and otherwise, is extremely promising.
