The Delicate Membrane which envelopes the lungs, and lines the air passages, is exceedingly sensitive, and a slight irritation of it increases and spreads very rapidly. Remembering this, if you are attacked by a cough or cold, that is accompanied by pain and oppression of the chest, and a sense of suffocation, Dr. HALL'S BALM FOR THE LUNGS, which invariably gives speedy relief, and ultimately affords a complete cure in all cases where the breathing organs are affected. Use it in time and prevent serious bronchial trouble. Sold by all Druggists.

Is this Little Worth Living?
Is the great question of the day, and its answer depends very much upon how we live. Most ladies will buy no other Baking Powder than Gillet's Cream Tartar Baking Powder, and no other Flavoring than Gillet's Double Cream Vanilla. It is pure, always reliable, and has a fifteen years' unblemished reputation.

"Matrimonial Trouble."
It is all very fine when young people are courting, having the pleasant tele-actes, attending balls, parties, places of amusement, and at last popping the question with a slight pressure of the hand, meeting the lips, and the happy couple are made one. Solid comforts and pleasure continue until a family of children are brought into the world, and then is constant anxiety for their health and comfort, and at any time when one of those bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked children is troubled with Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Difficult Breathing, or any Croupy Symptoms, a bottle of HALL'S HONEY OF HORSERADISH is tried. It is immediately procured, a few doses administered, the disease annihilated, and then everything again moves along smoothly. This article is now used by almost every family, and gives universal satisfaction. Sold by all druggists at 50 cents and $1 per bottle, and at the depot, CRITCHEL'S, 516 Sixth Avenue, New York City. Great saving to buy large size.

JOHN W. TAYLOR.

THE MILLER TRIAL.
The proceedings in the Miller trial on Saturday afternoon, were temporarily interrupted by the contempt case of General Wells, which being once more postponed, the Miller case continued.

The Carrie Owen letter referred to in our last issue, denied all the allegations which the writer was represented to have made to the prejudice of the "Mormon" Church or her husband Miles. The following sentences also appear: "My husband has never informed me that he has another wife, and outside my own suspicion I have no knowledge that he has one. I have heard him most emphatically deny that he married the girl of whom I was jealous." "I am deeply sorry that my suspicions should have induced me to have opened a course whereby I have brought upon my brethren and sisters, my husband and myself unmerited reproach, and my only regret is in writing this to acquaint the public with the facts of the case and leave them to judge for themselves concerning the learning of the law."

This letter was dated Nov. 4, 1878, and was certified to by Chas. W. Stagner, Notary Public, who, after the reading, was put upon the witness stand. He was a jury public on Nov. 4th, on which date Caroline Owen and Miles Stagner, the latter introduced into the former as his wife, stating that she was his wife (Stagner) to do something with a document she had. Miss Owen then showed Mr. Stagner the letter mentioned, which she signed in his presence, and which was sworn to by him, and asked if his influence to get it published in the Herald.

Q.—Are you a Mormon?—Yes, sir. Q.—Are you in polygamy?—No, sir. Q.—Do you believe in polygamy? (Defense objected; question withdrawn.)

Re-direct.—When you told her you could get it printed, what did she do? She clasped her hands and said, "I am so thankful," and thanked me several times.

JOHN CONNELLEY.

Was sworn. Am a brother to Kate Connelley. Know Owen and Miles. Was invited to the reception at Cannon's by Owen, who came to my house and told me she was going to be married. Nothing was said about plural marriage. As the reception was introduced by Miles to "Sister Emily Spencer." Did not hear her introduced as his wife. Cross-examined.—"This I heard all that took place at my house. Emily Spencer was not spoken of. John Taylor's name was not mentioned. Nothing was said about plural marriage. Did not see Kate Connelley that she need not come back (to my house) if she testified in the case. Did tell her that she need not come if she testified. Think she lied before Commissioner Sprague and in this court. She had expressed herself very bitterly against Miles, saying if she were Carrie she would kill him."

Re-direct.—Miss Owen came to my house, crying, saying, Mr. Van Zile and a Josephite had urged her to do what she had, and she was going to see Miles and get him to come back to her. She said, "For God's sake, Brother Connelley, see John and do the best you can."

SARAH M. CANNON.

Was sworn. Carrie Owen said at my house the night of the marriage. (The defense desired to prove that Owen sent for Miles as her husband. Objected to and objection sustained.)

A. M. CANNON.

A supper was given at my house in October last. Do not remember seeing there many Miles. Miles present then distinguished himself by having to be chosen. Heard the Spencer girls introduced as Emily and Julia Spencer.

JUDGE TILFORD.

Heard Carrie Owen testify that she had instructed her not to testify before the grand jury. She came to my office and asked how she could avoid it. I told her the law provided that a wife could not testify against her husband, and that she took that ground she would be obliged to answer. In regard to the document exhibited here, I suggested that part of it should be lodged in the hands of Marshal Shaughnessy and lady, to which she readily acceded.

Cross-examined.—Don't think I made other suggestions. I was then counsel for defendant. Was aware that the prosecution was pending, and that Owen had been a witness for the prosecution. Miles was present. If I could believe her sworn statement, I would think she was the first wife.

Defense rested.

REBUTTAL.

CARRIE OWEN.

Again took the stand. She stated that the letter which she wrote to the Herald was every word dictated by Miles at Cannon's house. That she wrote it because she loved him so, and he would not take her back unless she did. She swore to it because Miles said it would be of no use to the other witness, and that the approval of Cannon it was taken to Judge Telford, who suggested some alterations, which were made.

KATE CONNELLEY.

Then took the stand; I was at my brother John's house. He told me Carrie had had Miles arrested, that the latter would probably get two years in the Penitentiary. He told me not to know anything about the matter. Did not say if I were Carrie I would kill Miles.

MARSHAL SHAUGHNESSY.

Am U. S. Marshal. Heard Miles and Owen say something about publishing a card in the press. They both called at my office. Miles said, before she could come back to him she would have to retract. He did not say what.

KATE CONNELLEY.

Was re-called. She did not hear Owen say she would kill Miles.

Both sides rested.

Monday morning's proceedings:
The case for the prosecution was opened this morning by assistant district attorney

J. H. BEATTY, assistant.
Who referred to the great expense to which the government was put to obtain the witnesses in this trial. Then he referred to the prophet of this Church, who, he said, claimed to receive revelation, and revelation following revelation, finally the idea they could take care of more than one wife. To their belief they were entitled, but not to the practice of polygamy, which was made a crime by the law of 1832. We are here to try the case, to decide the case between the Mormon Church and the United States government.

"He referred to the anxiety and hidden mystery of the Endowment House ordinances, and referred, as a companion, to the shrine of Moche."

"He then took up the testimony of the witnesses, referring to President Taylor as being more powerful than any autocrat in Europe. The speaker referred to the testimony of Taylor as he gave from the 'Mormon Standard' which he remembered but very little. He also referred to the testimony of Angus Cannon, who, in his will at the upper end of the page, said that he had seen Miles with a woman that distinguished names must be invented for them, yet he, Cannon, could hardly remember anything when put upon the stand. The attorney took up the evidence as given by Taylor, by the other witnesses, and said that William Miles Owen's testimony he claimed a clear case had been made, but he, by no means, was inclined to slight her words, and therefore devoted considerable attention to her testimony. He referred to section 4 of the marriage law, which incorporated the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints to prove that a register of the marriage was kept. The speaker made an earnest though rather laborious appeal to the jury for justice to Carrie Owen, referring to some length to the first acquaintance of Carrie with Miles, his shipwreck, their subsequent meeting, engagement, and final marriage. Her 'erratic' actions were referred to and explained in a manner satisfactory, at least, to the attorney himself. Her testimony he pronounced uncontradicted and decisive. He then under these circumstances I think she can do nothing else than find the defendant guilty."

JUDGE TILFORD.
Gentlemen of the Jury.—The Constitution of the United States declares that every man shall have the right to a fair and impartial jury. This is not only the conservator of the republic but also of the liberty of every individual citizen thereof. An according to the law, names chosen by the Probate Judge and the District Clerk, Congress had the intention to give every man a trial by a jury composed of twelve good men and true. To my mind, my life is devoted to such a trial, the defendant had not a single friend, acquaintance or fellow-belted upon the jury, until the present time. My friend, Mr. Beatty, made the remark that the issue was between the Government on the one side, and polygamy and the Church on the other. But I am satisfied that you will not accede to that view. The only issue before you, gentlemen, is whether John Miles is guilty as charged. Let me guard you against one too common error, and that is having a terrible prejudice against a man suspected of having committed a crime. The prosecution must establish all the essential allegations of the indictment. The only question before you, we will admit, is a question of argument the marriage with Caroline Owen, was John H. Miles married to Emily Spencer previously to the marriage of John H. Miles and Emily Spencer? The defendant is established beyond a reasonable doubt, he cannot be convicted. He is not required to establish his innocence beyond a reasonable doubt or a preponderance of the evidence. The marriage in Utah is the common law marriage, and unless it is proved that John H. Miles and Emily Spencer entered into a solemn contract that they were able to become husband and wife and that they did become husband and wife, the marriage is not established. We deny in this case that any ceremony of marriage took place between this defendant and Emily Spencer. I have in my name of heaven, we are to bring witnesses to prove what didn't occur. I am unable to determine. I shall first call a witness to the festive scene which took place at Angus Cannon's house. It is a significant fact that the supper was given at the house of John H. Miles. Miss Connelley testified that at the reception she was introduced by Miles to his wife, Mrs. Emily Miles; but with all respect to my young friend from the other side, I think she is slightly mistaken. This and other things prompt me to believe that our friend, Miss Connelley, was a zealous witness, a very willing witness, but that she confused her ideas with regard to the case.

Judge Telford reviewed a somewhat hasty manner the greater part of the testimony.

All, then, in the world, that there is against Miles is that he did not deny certain accusations made by Carrie Owen when she was angry. More than that is required by the law. Before the conviction of the defendant on a charge of polygamy, the marriage with Emily Spencer for time as well as eternity, must be proven beyond a reasonable doubt.

In the Penitentiary.—The friends of President Daniel H. Wells visited him in prison yesterday, bringing presents of flowers, table delicacies, etc., to cheer the hours of his confinement. They found him in comfortable circumstances, with every convenience of the place at his service, and quite cheerful in disposition. Marshal Shaughnessy and his assistants, though strict in the performance of the duty imposed upon them, have acted with all possible courtesy toward their prisoner, and many pleasantly expressed their admiration of General Wells' conduct in preferring to go to prison rather than betray a sacred trust. We believe he has the sympathy of the honorable members of the legislature as well as "Mormons," and that the high handed and outrageous course pursued by Judge Emerson in order to give a greater number the chance to subscribe. The term of imprisonment (two days) expires at 8 o'clock to-night, when the brave man who, dared to do right will emerge from his prison, covered with new honors, and upheld by the plaudits of the people whose spirit he has so faithfully represented.

May-Day at Grantsville.—From a Grantsville correspondent we get a few items regarding the observance of the 1st of May in that place. At 10 o'clock in the afternoon the children of the Sunday school, numbering about 300, with their teachers and superintendents, gathered at the City Hall and crowned the Queen of May, who delivered a postscript address composed for the occasion by Brother Wm. Jerreles, of Grantsville. After the coronation, a social dance was entered into, wherein all the children participated, and a party in the evening for the young ladies and gentlemen wound up the day's proceedings.

Base Ball.—The regular day for championship games has been again adopted for this season, and next Saturday the second game of the series will be played. The Reds do not feel disappointed with the game of Thursday, as the new men were not used to facing so large an audience, and as a result were rather embarrassed on Saturday. Experience, however, will cure them. An exciting, closely-contested game may be expected.
