THE DESERET NEWS.

The Fourth of July instant, being the eighty fourth anniversary of American Inde- civil and religious liberty still so beneficently pendence, was celebrated in Great Salt Lake City with the same zeal and patriotism that has ever been manifested by the people of Utah on similar occasions, whenever the cir- fourth anniversary of our nation's independcumstances that have surrounded them have ence. not inhibited the observance of our nation's est harmony and unanimity of feeling prevailed among the thousands who were in attendance and participated in or were witnesses of the ceremonies and doings of the day; and good order prevailed and was observed with- will be cheered and encouraged in his arduous, out constraint or the interference of marshals though too often thankless and opposed, laor police - there being no rowdies, drunkards nor disorderly persons seen or heard at the Bowery during the exercises, neither in the streets through which the procession passed. We are not much disposed to give lengthen-. ed details of such occurrences, nor to exhaust the English vocabularly in lauding our fellow mingling their voices and appropriate cerebeings or their acts, however meritorious; but on the present occasion, we consider it our duty to say that the Committee of Arrange- birthday. ments, Messrs. Burton, Cunningham, Staines, Caine and Sharp, who, unaided by any, officially, excepting by the presence of two or three policemen, superintended the entire arrangements, performed to the letter all that was expected of them by their especial friends, at the time they were appointed to that arduous duty. A national salute was fired at sunrise at the Court House and at the City Hall, which was followed by music from Ballo's Brass Band, stationed near the residence of His Excellency. Governor Cumming, a Quadrille Band near President Young's residence and Captain Huntington's Martial Band at the Court House, each of which, after playing several were chiefly directed to South America, and national, martial and other appropriate and favorite airs, proceeded through most of the principal streets, cheering the citizens with their music, which awakened memories of the past. At nine o'clock, according to previous invtation, the civil officers of the Territory and Florida, gradually extending their settlements County, the officers of Great Salt Lake City, and other gentlemen of distinction met the enabled them by purchase and conquest to Committee of Arrangements at the Court House. From thence in carriages they proceeded to the residence of Governor Cummirg and escorted him to the Bowery, near the Tabernacle, which had been prepared for the occasion, where a large concourse of people had settlements on the Hudson, Connecticut, and assembled and were in waiting.

religious liberty to which all may, and have rights, and reject with contempt their loyally try whose civil institutions can favorably combeen called to, worship at its altars.

desert; to-day it blossoms as the rose, and

His remarks were enthusiastically applauded, followed by a salute from the artillery.

John T. Caine, Esq., read the Declaration of Independence; followed by a salute of two guns and "Hail Columbia" by Ballo's band. The Hon. Albert Carrington, Orator of the day then delivered the following

ORATION:

Fellow Citizens of a renowned and cherished Republic:

Deeply grateful for the choice blessings of guaranteed to us, we are assembled, with the tens of thousands throughout our Territory and the millions throughout our Union, to joyfully participate in celebrating this the eighty-

It may be safely asserted that of all human governments ours embodies; and that too in birth day in a public and appropriate manner. the best form, by far the greatest number of So far as we were able to observe, the great- those principles so wisely devised for developing, promoting, and increasing the welfare of the human family in their civil capacity. And, as this day's proceedings in Utah are made known abroad, every patriot within the extensive bounds of our great country, as also every lover of freedom throughout the world, bors for the advancement of human rights. But most of all should our nation congratulate itself that here, in a region so forbidding to the many, amid lofty mountains and eternal snow, so large a number of her citizens have erected and are erecting their numerous, free, and happy fireside altars, wrung from the elements by most industrious toil; and are now monies with those of the North and South, the East and the West, in the heartfelt and enthusiastic celebration of this our national On an occasion like this a somewhat detailed sketch of the past may be expected by some, and might be interesting and instructive to many; but this is a fast age, and one especially delighting in the briefest of brevity, a quality too commendable to be safely dispensed with. However, this safeguard against prolixity may not entirely preclude a broadlysketched outline of a few prominent historic features, the retouching of which may the better enable us to realize the dear bought blessing of the present, and encourage us to labor with renewed energy for the perpetuity of our glorious institutions. England, France, Holland, and Spain-enlightened and powerful nations-each expended many lives and much treasure in making discoveries and planting colonies upon the American continent. The efforts of Spain the southern and western portions of North America; France pushed her adventures across the Canadas and along the chain of the great lakes-diverging to the Ohio river at Pittsburg-then westerly from the lakes to the Mississippi, and along that river to Louisiana: while the Dutch and English chiefly confined their attention to the sea coast from Maine to inland as their skill and increasing numbers crowd the red man toward the setting sun. Our mother England has ever been characterized by a great fondness for making extensive land-claims, and her son Jonathan seems to have strongly inherited this family characteristic, the practical development of which by England soon wrested from Holland her Delaware. Meanwhile religious persecution, which we are pleased to say has never been pre-eminent-. ly intolerant in England, drove forth the Puritans and Huguenots to increase the New World's asylums from oppression at home, and to strengthen the hands of those struggling in a new field to extend the area of agriculture, commerce, science, and the arts. As the French colonists gained strength, a plan was early formed for connecting the Canadas and Louisiana by a strong line of fortifications, with the design to confine the British colonists to the region east of the couched petitions for redress. The spirit of pare with those of our own. Here are guar-Thirteen years ago, a band of weary pil- our Revolutionary fathers could no longer anteed the largest liberty and the most varied grims emerged from yonder mountain height, brook such cruel oppression, and, under the scope of actiog consistent with correct public to seek a home in the wilderness - in the val- title of "United States of America," on the and private couduct, with a wisely devised leys of the mountains. It was indeed then a 4th of July, 1776, they promulgated the ever system of laws to restrain oppression, prevent memorable "Declaration of Independence," anarchy, and protect each and every, even the may it be to you a perpetual inheritance. in which usurpations through unwarrantable humblest citizen in his rights. Our land and legislative jurisdiction were a great and just our constitution, with their dearly purchased ground of complaint against the mother coun- and highly, prized blessings and privileges, are try. To her the colonists had ever clung with ours by inheritance and by every inalienable a yearning fondness; they had passed com- principle recognized by man; and we shall loypasionately over her neglect, and thriven in ally cleave to and maintain them, as we have spite of it; they had poured out their blood hitherto unshrinkingly done, until summoned like water and expended their treasure with a from our labors here, when we will trustingly liberal hand to widely extended her fame, confide our bodies to this choice portion of power, and domain; for a long period they mother earth whereon our efforts, however submissively remonstrated and petitioned weak, have been expended for the promotion against, while patiently enduring, unjust of the best welfare and prosperity of our nainterference in matters solely pertaining to tion.

aid from her fostering care.

their internal policy; and yet England could | With such feelings constantly actuating us not or would not discern that she had no right, in our public and private walks, it is imposias she also proved to have not the power, to ble for us not to take a deep interest in the inbind with tyrannic chains the stalwart youth ception and progress of public affairs, and to who had grown from infancy with but little watch with a jealous care and use every laudable effort to thwart or avert every plan or These and many more facts connected with movement that threatens the integrity of our the pre-revolutionary history of our country Union. But more or less in this Territory, as are subjects of deep interest, are commended elsewhere, we do not as yet view all political to your careful study, and most clearly mani- questions in the same light, nor from the same fest some of the dealings with the human fam- stand point. Were this not the case, there ily by that Being who controleth the destiny probably would be little or no difficulty in unof nations, who turneth the hearts of the chil- derstanding alike the usage which has gendren of men as the rivers are turned, who ex- erally prevailed in our government in relation alteth and abaseth kingdoms, and doeth all to Territories. It is not altogether singular things in accordance with His own good pleas- that the Revolutionary patriots, but recently freed from monarchial rule and meeting much Time and your familiarity with those events formidable contrariety of opinion in regard to. admonish not to yield to the flattering allure- the solution of untried political problems, restment to fight over again the battles of the Rev- |ed short of extending beyond the boundaries. olution, that long, arduous and noble struggle of States the full enjoyment of those rights so of freemen for their rights, the record of which ably set forth in the Declaration and so clearis at times blazoned with brilliant success, and ly pervading the Constitution, and fastened at times shrouded with almost impenetrable upon the fellow citizens in the then north-west gloom; but through which, under that Provi- territory the chief of those odious governmentdence which snapped its beginning and ever al features which had incited themselves to sustained them, that heroic band of true patri- revolt. But after long years of political exots battled on to the successful achievement perience, which should tend to break every of that independence whose blessings we this oppressive yoke, and in direct opposition to day so richly enjoy. From the opening skir- fundamental truths set forth in the Declaramishes in Lexington and Concord, in April, tion, established in the articles of Confedera-1775, to the surrender of Cornwallis at York- tion, and re-established in the Constitution, it town, in October, 1781, which virtually closed is passing strange that Congress persists in the war, that noble band of Freedom's sons, governing citizens in the Territories upon amid sore privations and untold hardships, with nearly the same plan as that pursued by Engtrue patriotism and unvielding perseverance land in her government of her American coljeopardized their all upon the altar of Amer- onics. Territorial assemblies may pass laws, ican liberty, and who in our day so recreant but Congress requires those laws to be submitted to them, and claims the power to disor who can feel to withhold his aid for keep- approve them. The Territories are taxed. ing the light upon that altar steadily burning | equally with the States, to fill the public coffers to the full extent of their use of imported articles and their purchases of public lands, The labors of the patriots of the Revolution but when and how has their consent been obtained for such taxation? Governments are declared to derive "their JUST powers from the consent of the governed," but when have Territories had a voice in the election of our ous motives, caused serious dissensions in the President? or a vote in the councils of our nation? The close parallel between the treatment of the mother country to her colonies, tiops which are the glory of our country and and that of our government to her Territories, the pride of our race. But that Providence | might be drawn to a much greater length, but is not here in keeping; and we have merely alhuded to a few facts to illustrate the aptness in weak humanity to mete to their fellows usages Having noted the acknowledgment of our they themselves will not brook, and the inde-

148

as to lightly esteem those sterling sacrifices?to cheer and encourage the friends of humanity in every clime?

closed not with Great Britain's acknowledging the independence of the United States, on the 30th of November, 1782. Then, as since, there were not wanting many who, from varibody politic, so serious as at times to threaten the permanent establishment of those instituwhich had sustained the right in the conflict with England's power, still watched over the nation, and guided its councils.

independence, it may prove beneficial to here fensible position of those who disfranchize

On the arrival of the escort at the Temple Block, a salute of fifteen guns, in honor of His Excellency the Governor was fired-Ballo's Band playing "Yankee Doodle."

A large and extensive platform, or stand, had been erected, on which were seated the Governor and Escort, the Orator of the day, Committee of Arrangements, and Fresidents Young, Kimball and Wells, with many other distinguished and respected citizens.

tims of religious and civil persecutions found munitions, was a most excellent ordeal for the an asylum upon the western shores of the At- colonists, teaching them the power of union, powerful, peaceful and happy Republic. lengthen the lines of these great blessings?lantic. training them in the use of arms before veterfounded, which secured to every man the right measurably correct estimate of their capa- requirements of the present occasion forbids in the burdens and participate in the blessings to worship God according to the dictates of his | bilities. further drafts upon their interesting and use- of telegraphic and railroad communications own conscience. That day sprang into exist- As the colonies grew in importance, the ful instructions, and prompts hastening to across our continent. What hinders our Govence the text book of liberty-the Declaration Home Government, with a fatuity unaccount- glance at subjects more immediately within ernment from lending its powerful aid to of Independence! On that day was establish- able by human reason, began to increase its the sphere of passing events. speedily connect the telegraphic wires of Mised the foundation of that temple of civil and burdens upon the colonists, to deny them their As before remarked, there is no other coun- souri and California, and at the same time be remark that celebrated English writers have mained colonies, had the mother country, pursued a uniformly just and conciliatory course, refraining from meddling with our local officers, and with our internal policy, especially in the matter of "taxation without representation."

Some may imagine that our present constitution is coeval with the Declaration of Independence, or even dates back to the first as-, creed or party. sembling of the Continental Congress in Philadelphia on the 4th of September, 1774; but the powers exarcised by that Congress and the the successful conduct of governmental affairs, and as early as 1785 measures began to be to our present and future prosperity. agitated for conferring more power upon the our present constitution, George Washington, wastes teem. with abundance? who has so truly and eloquently been pronoun-such citizens as cross certain boundaries withadvocated the probability of our having re- in our common country, to reclaim and render populous and valuable otherwise useless public domain. Is this right? Is Congressional intervention in the domestic institutions of Territories politic and justifiable? If so, let the Constitution be at once amended, that consistency and even-handed justice may characterize our governmental acts throughout the length and breadth of our land, irrespective of

Though on this day we bar political discussion, and would not knowingly make a single remark that might wound, the feelings of a "Articles of Confederation" agreed to on the true patriot, still the sphere of propriety will 15th of November, 1777, proved inadequate for doubtless permit the offering of a few suggestions upon some matters of general importance

Since population, so it be industrious, intelgeneral government. For this purpose dele- ligent, and law-abing, is the strength of a gates from the several States convened in Phil- |nation, and since population is alone sustained adelphia in May, 1787, and on the 17th of by the products dervied from agricultural pur-September presented our present constitution | suits, why not magnanimously unite, and pass to Congress. It was by that body submitted a liberal homestead law, and thereby prevent, to the several States, and, after animated, the too great monopoly of the public lands by lengthy and, at times, doubtful discussions, was speculators and classes who till not the soil, finally accepted, and was appointed to take and encourage and aid the farmer with facileffect on the 4th of March, 1789. Under that ities enabling him to make our extensive.

As settlements multiply and extend, there. ced "First in war, first in peace, and first in All being seated, the "Star Spangled Ban_ Ohio and Mississippi, and, if possible, to preare increased requirements for more and betthe hearts of his countrymen," was elected vent their settling or trading west of the Alter means for travel, for communicating inforner" was played by the Brass Band; after President, and John Adams was elected Viceleghany mountains. This grasp, was on enmation, and for the interchange of commodities, which, prayer was offered by the chaplain, President. From that period our nation has tirely too large a scale to please England, beoperations inseparably connected with the Elder Orson Pratt, followed by music from grown and flourished with unexampled rapidiside drawing a fortified line across her oldest successful prosecution of trade and commerce, ty and prosperity, welcoming the oppressed of the Quadrille Band. chartered grants, which extended from the and the dissemination of knowledge. To meet every land, until our flag is known and honor-Atlantic to the Pacific. These discordant dethese requirements the Indian trail has widen-Governor Cumming then rose and said: ed in every sea, until our possessions extend signs produced what is called the old French ed to the white man's road, pack animals have from the Atlantic to the Pacific, embracing given way to vehicles, while in many lo-I do not arise to address the people, but to war, which commenced in 1754 and termiexpress my sympathies with the enthusiasm nated in 1760, resulting in the Canadas' bethe choicest portion of this "Hand choice above calities the iron horse has distanced all comall other lands," and the azure field of our nawhich they have manifested upon the return coming a British province. This war, for the petitors in the line of freight and travel, and tional banner is bespangled with the starry of this our national sabbath. prosecution of which the American colonies messages flashed over telegraphic wires in turi Two hundred and fifty years ago, the vic- furnished disproportionate quotas of men and emblems of thirty-three, in lieu of thirteen, laugh to scorn the slow progress made by free, independent, and United States of this steam. Then why not enlarge the circle and Fascinating as are the pages of our earlier In the east and west, and at every intermedi-Eighty four years ago, a government was an troops, and giving them self-reliance and a history, a cheerful compliance with the fitting ate point, there is an anxious desire to share