Quite a number of cottagers have arrived this week, and many more are expected before Sunday. The weather is delightful and flowers are blooming in abundance everywhere.

The party of young people who have been spending the past week at the Whitney cottage, leave tomorrow for the city.

CLUB CHAT.

The Clubwoman, which has been the organ for the National Federation of Women's Clubs for some time, has been purchased by the Clubwomen company, and the editorial and publication offices transferred from Boston to New York. In future Mrs. Dore Lyon will be the editor, assisted by Miss Helen Winslow, founder and late editor of the magazine, and Mrs. R. Horton Bachelor. It will be greatly enlarged and will have departments devoted to household economics, fashion, society, fiction, art, music and the drama, as well as to clubs. Many prominent women will be among the regular contributors and department editors, according to the prospectus. This is by no means the first attempt at a woman's magazine edited and published by clubwomen in New York, but this one has a strong backing, apparently.

Miss Susan B. Anthony reports that full sets of the "History of Women Suffrage," which she compiled with the aid and assistance of Mrs. Ida Husted Harper, are being sent out at the rate of 12 or 13 a day. Miss Anthony is quoted in the "Woman's Journal" as saying: "It is wonderful how public sentiment has changed; the libraries seem ready to buy, and schools and institutions that are poor want the books very much. I have given to our college girls' library, to the college proper, to the new high school library and to the churches and Sunday schools of the city. I am bound to get the History wherever there are young people to read it."

An appeal is being sent to the alumnae of the Emma Willard school of Troy for funds to establish a permanent scholarship. The sum of $15,000 is required to provide in perpetuity for the free board and education of one pupil each year; $200 pays for one pupil for one year. Two scholarships have already been founded, namely, the Troy and the Emma Willard scholarships. The first of these was established to assist any worthy young girl to an education at the Emma Willard school, and the latter named to assist a girl to any girl to any course of study elsewhere than in Troy. Something over $500 has been subscribed to the Troy scholarship, and $448.70 to the Emma Willard scholarship. Subscriptions for scholarships are received by the president of the association, Mrs. Russell Sage, No. 506 Fifth Avenue, or by the treasurer, Mrs. Titus Eddy, No. 13 East Forty-seventh street, New York. The Emma Willard association is now one of the largest of alumnae societies, the New York chapter alone having a membership of 545 members.

Members of the John Hancock chapter, D. A. R., have called attention to the neglect of placing the bronze statue of Lafayette in the Place de la Concorde, Paris. Patriotic societies in the United States were most generous in their subscriptions to this statue several years ago, and it was dedicated with enthusiasm. Since then nothing has been done towards substituting the bronze statue for the plaster cast, which is now in an advanced stage of deterioration. Much adverse criticism has been expressed in France.

The printed minutes of the New Orleans convention are now ready for distribution. Any one may obtain them by sending 15 cents to the National Women Suffrage headquarters, Warren, Ohio. The plan of work for the year, the resolutions, reports of committees, reports of auxiliary state associations, list of officers of the National Association, and names and addresses of president and corresponding secretary of each of the state organizations are included with the minutes.

Among the life members whose names have been recently added to the National association that of David Star Jordan is prominent. The membership was conferred upon the president of Leland Stanford by Mrs. Emma Shafter Howard, and in his letter of acceptance he expresses a hope that he may be sufficiently useful to the cause in which he is so much interested so that there may be no regret for having added his name.

Mrs. Howard became a life member of the association some 10 years ago, and has since added 10 names to the life membership list, a most practical method of assisting the cause.

The tree committee of the Roxborough club of Roxbury, Mass., is doing a very good work in the preservation of special trees. During the past year it has planted 30 trees, among them mulberry and mountain ash trees as food for birds, and it makes an appeal, through its year book, just issued, to all club women to plant in suitable locations trees which will sustain bird life. The committee, besides its services to the streets and parks of Roxbury, and its special efforts in behalf of the songsters, has become a bureau of information for all clubs beginning their work of tree planting.

FEMININE FLOTSAM

It is a fine thing to like the things you have—be contented. We remember when we were a little girl we heard a clever youth remark that the moment anyone was really contented all was lost—that it was only in dissatisfaction and discontent that improvement and fulfilled ambitions were possible. We admired, at that time, a man who knew so much about everything. We think now that that man was dot.

There is nothing that works against you like discontent. For one thing, it spoils the appetite. If you don't eat, the physical machinery isn't getting fuel enough to run its engines, and there's trouble. Headaches, despair, goneness of stomach and soul. With the body in a bad physical state mental health is impaired. With mind and body out of order, what heart can stand up against the strain and speak out that it is happy? It's an endless chain arrangement. The heart is in the dumps the stomach sulk, the mind rebels and fails to work. All the world is going to crash, and the larks don't sing at all as they used to. Everything is terrible, awful, horrible and out of sorts. Discontent? Why, it is the death of all good work, for there is no stimulus like a good strong body, a cheerful mind and a heart that is sardine-boxed full of courage. You can be assured of that as of the fact that the Lord made like apples.

There is much in life that we do not understand, and these things which we do not understand we call the workings of fate.

Fate "makin'!"

It's life. It's cause and effect, just natural conditions. We often hear about those who are lucky, that everything comes to them. Don't believe it. If they acquire good fortunes it is because good fortunes have been earned. There are exceptions, of course, but we are talking about the every day mortal now. While the world is not always kind, it is a fact that to the workers, to those who think right and keep hustling, things will in time come easily. Every effort in the line of their ambitions makes the next effort easier. After a time they don't understand, for things seem to come too easily. Their success amazes them. It is like the student of music who sits down at the piano and strums. He begins aimlessly. Then his soul gets to work and his musical ear catches a harmony. He improvises. In a few moments he is entranced and surprised at the sweetness of his own music. The one who writes experiences the same feelings. He begins with a fragment of a thought. He scribbles without plan, thing expands and grows until he is willing furiously, and he is wondering from whence the thoughts come, the impulses, the force itself. So it is with work and life. And when you are discontented you kill these very forces that are helping you every moment.

Don't be discontented. Appreciate what you have. Love those who love you. Look about you this moment, and be glad for what you have. For in that very gladness and appreciation will be the money-coin that will buy new appreciation-growers.

Oh, P. S.—When you are discontented you get wrinkles, too. Don't forget that—Exchange.

WALKER'S STORE.

A July White Sale!!

Here's News, Indeed==Entire Stock Women's Undermuslins at One-third Off Regular Prices.

A most unusual occurrence, but one that will be welcomed. There's always a mid-season demand for undermuslins about the time summery frocks have gained full sway.
