Thirty-seven Lives Lost Near Seattle, Washington.

A GRUEL-STRICKEN POPULATION.

The Sight of the Bodies as They Are Laid Out in Biers Chills the People With Horror.

SEATTLE, WASH., Aug. 24.—A terrific explosion occurred in about 10 o'clock on the sixth level of the Franklin mine, at Franklin, near this city, this morning. Thirty-seven miners were killed. The explosion was a terrific one. The mine was not extinguished and the work of taking out the bodies began. All were recovered.

A special to the Post-Intelligencer from Franklin, Wash., says:

At fifteen minutes to 1 o'clock this afternoon the mine was notified by some of the drivers on the sixth level, and the bodies were given to the men in the mine who were working in different parts. Many of the men in the mine were turned out and reached the main shaft.

About seventy men were at work in the sixth level, and of that number about forty bodies were recovered. The bodies were laid out in biers, and the sight was a terrible one. The bodies were laid out in biers, and the sight was a terrible one.
