Business and Politics.

New York, 11.—The state of general trade is slow. No appreciable movement over last week; but now the disturbing element of the fiscal political campaign is over, the mercantile community may be expected to settle down to business with renewed vigor. It seems to be the sentiment of the business public that the change wrought in the political complexion of the country resulting from Tuesday's battle of ballots will be productive of no bad effect; yet sweeping changes are always regarded for the time with some degree of anxiety. Tomorrow their effect upon the fiscal policy of the country. The result of the election is pretty generally regarded as a victory for the protectionists. The people have become weary of paying war taxes half a generation after the war is over, and having a large portion of the revenue diverted to illegitimate purposes. The majority in the present Congress have now an opportunity of making a record on the tariff and internal tax questions, which will go far to regain for themselves the confidence of the country, which the elections of Tuesday would seem to indicate has been largely forfeited. The money market is still stringent, owing in part it is said to manipulation with a view of depressing stocks. The available supply of loanable funds, however, is small, and not evenly distributed. While a few banks have no more than enough to supply the wants of their own customers. Yesterday an order was received at the sub-treasury from Secretary Folger, authorizing the redemption without rebate of interest of the national bills in any call to the amount of $5,000,000 in each week until otherwise ordered. This order caused bad feeling, and its effect will be to release a large sum of money from the treasury, and will tend to restore the market to normal conditions. The banks will from this time be less severely taxed for the purpose of moving the crops, but on the contrary will soon be in possession of a part of the money sent to the west and south during the past two weeks.

The tone of the general merchandize market is for the most part weak, and some staple imported commodities are selling at a loss to importers, owing to excessive supplies. Breadstuffs have been subject to little change except an advance in corn, though wheat is firm while flour is irregular. Cotton and cotton goods are quiet. Refined petroleum is inactive and nominally firm while crude certificates declined and recovered. Lead is quiet and
