Two's Romantic Wanderings.

WASHINGTON, 2.—There are ominous foreshadowings in private circles here of startling disclosures to follow Tweed's release this week.

It is understood that his confession exposes no criminal act on his part, but associates except where the statute of limitations bars prosecution. Nevertheless there is much sensation among the friends of parties whose reputations are likely to suffer by Tweed's exposure. Among these is a well known newspaper editor and publisher, whose endorsement will be exhibited upon the check for many thousands.

He disappeared in the face of an all-out opposition to the legislature and to buy votes. The story of Tweed's escape and wanderings is full of exciting and romantic interest.

The circumstances would become mad now.

"If he said in reply that such was the case, the United States force is merely giving a political advantage to one of the two contending parties in asserting its claims, answer that in my view it is rather the preservation to each party of their right to a chance in the struggle, if it must go on, or if the government which I represent is the lawful government, it is the protection of the government against domestic violence.

In accordance with the Constitution my opponents demand the withdrawal of the United States force from the State House. It will be a service to the country which will follow the compliance with the demand. To ask why the demand is made, I suppose neither courtesy nor charity will warrant the suggestion that it arises from a zealous regard for constitutional limitations on the fall of my opponents. On the other hand the demand is plainly made for purposes of political advantage in the present struggle. What is this advantage? It has been suggested that it is to enable my opponent to pursue his legal remedies in the premises.

He is a constant answer to this today of hindrance of any kind now exists to the peaceful and complete enforcement of legal remedies; none whatever.

"Every legal right and remedy which belongs to my opponent is within his unobstructed reach to-day, and has been on all days. This fact is at once the conclusion that in demanding the withdrawal of the troops from the State House, my opponent does not desire thereby to secure his own right by law, but to secure his own right by law to rob my associates and constituents of our rights by unlawful means and violent agencies. If reference be made to the profession of the law, it is plain that the withdrawal of the troops that they seek only to secure their rights by lawful means, I respectfully answer that I am familiar with such professions, and have seen made with an endless iteration during a campaign of an unprecedented length, marked from the opening to the close by every degree and kind of physical violence.

"To one not familiar with the condition of South Carolina, the statements I have now made may seem extravagant. I refer, for the confirmation of all I have stated, to the testimony of the members of the congressional committee during the past winter, and I affirm that my present acquaintance with the facts compels me to say that this testimony falls short of the truth. The republicans of South Carolina have carried on a struggle up to the present moment for the preservation of their rights. Their hope has been that the federal government will live under a free government. The withdrawal of the troops from the State House will close the struggle; will close it in defeat to a large majority of the people of the State, in the sacrifice of their rights, in the complete success of violence and fraud.

To restate the results which will follow the withdrawal of the troops from the State House.

"First, it will remove the protection absolutely necessary to enable the republicans to assert and enforce their claim to the government of the State.

"Second, it will enable the democrats to remove all effective opposition to the illegal military forces under the control of my opponent.

"Third, it will place the agencies for maintaining the present government in practical possession of the democrats through the admission it will require.

"Fourth, it will lead to a quick consummation of the political outrages against which I have felt and now feel it to be my solemn duty to struggle and protest, so long as the faintest hope of success can be seen.

"Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

(Signed)
D. H. CHAMBERLAIN."

Tweed Surrenders His Property.

Your correspondent has authority for the statement that Tweed has surrendered all his property and effects, and made a complete assignment of the same, and has allowed his case to go by default.

He has written to Charles O'Connor that he does not intend to resist or oppose this case, and has been brought before him in the name of the people. Last Saturday was the last day of appeal in the great suit against him.

Two More for Nichols.

NEW ORLEANS, 2.—Two of the returning board members of the Eastern house, Fred Gobbs of Asenbury, and N. A. Dunbar, of Eastern parish, to-day, were sworn in as members and took seats in the Nichols house, which now has fifty-three returning board members.

The Nichols house, which now has fifty-three returning board members, was returned by the board, but not elected, and therefore occupying a seat in the Nichols house, appeared before the Nichols legislative council, and was sworn in as a member of the house.

Recognizing that the government now established by Nichols is the only government in this State that can give permanent peace and prosperity to the people, I have sworn in as a member of the house, and in so doing, as much as possible, in the bringing about of harmony and good feeling. I now tender my resignation of a claim that I may have on the Governor's salary, and turned over to him the administration of the police force.
