Gratz, Owen County, Kentucky, on the 22nd inst:

"I preached at Pleasant Home, near the spot of my birth, last Sunday (20th inst.). It snowed all day so that many who desired to attend could not get out. [The snow lies about four inches deep, but is, however, fast disappearing.] A Campbellite priest, after I got through preaching, desired to ask me a few questions. I granted him the priviquestions. I granted him the privi-lege to do so, and told him I would answer every proper question per-taining to our faith. He commenced by saying 'I suppose it is the standing at the water sect, at Musk-duty of all your Elders to have four rat, a little west of Mr. L. D. Wilwives." I answered him by saying.
That is your supposition, sir, and not a proper question.' Then,' said he, 'you believe in the doctrine of polygamy, 'de you not?' 'I do thrown violently to the ground, upsir. The priest sat down and I consoled him by inviting him to call on me at any time, and I would answer any proper question that he might propound." MANTI CITY, Sanpete Co., Utah.

President Smoot is rather hard on Kentucky. We have always supposed that the vary "handsomest men" came out of that State. Perhaps the ugly ones stay at home.
