

FURCE ATTACK ON THE LAGOON.

California Visitors Invade Farmington Resort With Knives And Forks.

SEN. BAMBERGER'S QUESTS.

Music and Oratory Between Courses—Dancing and Boating in The Evening.

Yesterday afternoon it was the Lagoon. Today it is the Lucin cut-off with all its wonders of engineering and scenery, and tomorrow the guests from Los Angeles will be on their homeward trip, except those who are too charmed to leave at once and who plan side trips to the east before taking the home trail. This morning at the Commercial club a slight thinning of the ranks was observed, many of the visitors having left the Lucin cut-off last night in the midst of the catch the evening train back to Los Angeles. However, there was a sufficiently large muster of invaders to remain in the game, and the cut-off train pulled out this morning with an unusually merry party.

The trip to Lagoon yesterday afternoon was by no means of secondary importance in the events of the week. It opened a new field of vision to the visitors, that of Utah's agricultural prospects. The Little Lagoon locomotive pulled its way along under the shadow of the Wasatch mountains, while below from the car windows stretched the favorite gardens of Salt Lake's environs, and gardens that were the first in the world to show what irrigation could do for a desert soil. Many were the comments of praise and enthusiasm that were heard on all sides as the train sped along past the beautiful orchards and farms, and in the final impressions carried away of the Utah visit, this stretch of country will be happily remembered.

At Lagoon the feature of the entertainment was a feast of good things spread by Simon Bamberger, followed by dancing on the new pavilion floor, and roving about the lake by all those who cared for that kind of sport. With the exception of a few who left to catch the evening train to Los Angeles, the main party remained at the resort till late in the evening.

The special train left Salt Lake at 8 o'clock, and after arriving at Lagoon a brief period was given over to investigation of the grounds, and with these the odor of roses in bloom, and shrubbery putting forth its favorite leaves, and a strain of homesickness through the people, from the land of perpetual flowers. It made them realize, too, how much they have done by hard work what they were blessed with by nature.

At 8:30 o'clock the visitors, 250 strong, were summoned to a tent arranged of long tables in the old darning pavilion. Senator and Ernest Bamberger were on hand to lend personal assistance to the ladies of the senator's family, who had commenced the arrangements.

LUNCHEON AND MUSIC.
The guests were seated comfortably, and a lunch that was elaborate in its makeup was served. During the meal music was discoursed by a band of a dozen children with mandolins and guitars, under the direction of Theodor Hart. The youngsters performed capably and were heartily cheered by the guests.

Following the menu informal speeches were delivered by men ever flowing with wit and sharp retort from both parties. A significant utterance of the speeches was that of Judge O. W. Powers, who declared that "I had found this visit so pleasant that an annual recurrence of it was in order. We will be the gainers by these visits," he declared. "You come up to us in the springtime, and we will go down to Los Angeles in the winter." "Yes of 'Good!'" "That's me!" greeted this remark.

The toastmaster of the evening was Fisher Harris, who was introduced by Clem Schramm. Mr. Harris was essentially felicitous in his introduction, and however telling the report of the victim of his onslaught, his return was sharper still, so that the big gathering rose early in a mood for laughter.

BOOTH'S CONFESSION.
The first speaker introduced was W. H. Booth, director of the chamber of commerce. His confession was that Salt Lake had beat the Los Angeles chamber of commerce at its own game of entertaining, and he declared that the members present would carry back a few pointers to use on future occasions when Salt Lake may journey down to the sea. He then Senator Bamberger for the entertainment of the afternoon, on behalf of the chamber of commerce and its directors.

Vice President C. A. Quigley of the Commercial club was spoken of as a toastmaster by Mr. Harris, and he confined his remarks to expressing his regret that he was not of the Salt Lake resort. Mr. Quigley hoped that the visitors would come again next year. Oakland House and Riverside hotel of his great town that had more area for its population than any other town of California.

SALT LAKE THE GAINER.
Judge O. W. Powers was seated among the supreme court judges, and his opening salley was to deny his admission "in justice to himself, with the honorable court." He then addressed himself to the Los Angeles visitors, declaring that Salt Lake had learned to like them. "We were once pioneers in irrigation," he declared, "but you were the men who made an art of it, carrying its possibilities far beyond what we had dared attempt. Salt Lake is the gainer by this union with Los Angeles, and as Los Angeles grows we will grow. I have seen the day when the Pacific coast will be built, Utah leading down the iron and the ore to be made into the great vessels."

C. C. Lamb of Los Angeles told of the favorable impression made upon the people of Los Angeles by this visit. "With him," he said, "it was so favorable that he contemplated coming here to be one of the crowd."

Councilman J. C. Nye of Ogden assured the visitors of a pleasant trip to Lucin cut-off today, and spoke of Ogden as a city that would prosper much by the union with Los Angeles. Theodore Summerland, president of the Los Angeles chamber of commerce, introduced as the man who became famous by taking 500 "kicks" to the circus, paying the way of each of them much against his anticipations, commencing his talk he confessed to a preference for the kids to speech making, and then spoke of the profit that must follow at both ends of the new road on account of its existence.

JUDGE GOODWIN'S TALK.
Judge Goodwin received a scathing introduction from his old antagonist at after dinner yet, being styled one who had settled in Utah after being chased out of every other state he had tried to live in, heading here from Nevada in advance of the pursuing vigilantes. He returned the attack by describing Fisher Harris and his ancestors, much to the merriment of all present. He handled Mr. Quigley with an offering of thanks that he had not gone to Los Angeles, for if he had, declared the visitors could never have found it in their heads to come to Utah. Turning to Councilman Nye of Ogden, he declared the cut-off was built so that people might avoid Ogden, then declaring that all the visitors ought to see Mayor Glassman. "He is a curiosity," said the judge, "constituting a mouth of meat, that so large a mouth could sit on so small a head, and the people say his heart is just as big as his head."

OSBORNE A LADIES' MAN.

Col. H. C. Osborne, U. S. marshal for the southern district of California, said he had been with Marshal Heywood of Salt Lake so long that he doubted his ability to mount a chair. He expressed regret that the Los Angeles visitors had not been able to bring their wives and confided to a homesick feeling to rejoin his particular one. Next time the visitor came, he hoped it would be a family party.

Dan Johnson of Cotton spoke on behalf of San Bernardino valley declaring that the valley was a good one when influenced by irrigation and expressing the hope that Salt Lake would have a population of 200,000 by 1910.

Senator Bamberger was the final speaker, bringing the evening to a close with a characteristically witty talk in which he ascribed the leaving of Fitzsimmons to the coming of the party, or the part of it including Fisher Harris and Judge Goodwin, with which he was acquainted.

The party delighted to enjoy the dancing and sightseeing after three hearty cheers for Senator Bamberger.

DEMURRER IN MUSSER CASE.

Defendants Cite Grounds for Exceptions to Amended Complaint.

FACTS ARE NOT SUFFICIENT.

Eighth Paragraph is Ambiguous, Unintelligible and Uncertain—Latest in Tithing Case.

The defendants in the injunction suit filed in the district court recently by Don Carlos W. Musser and Charles A. Smurthwaite against President Joseph F. Smith and other officials of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints have filed a demurrer to the amended complaint of plaintiffs. Two grounds of demurrer are set forth, as follows:

First, "that the amended complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action against the defendants or either of them,"

Second, "that the eighth paragraph of the amended petition is ambiguous, unintelligible and uncertain, in that it does not name the various persons, or any of them, who it is alleged have devised, bequeathed or donated real or personal property to the said church, and does not state the times when and the places where such devises, bequests or donations were given or made, nor the several amounts thereof."

WIFE MARRIED ANOTHER.

For This Reason Morris Benson, a Russian, Seeks a Divorce.

Morris Benson, a Russian, whose true name is Mordechai Ben Mosheon, has filed suit for divorce in the district court against Frieda Benson, whose true name is Frieda Ben Mosheon, on the grounds of desertion and infidelity. Plaintiff alleges that when he came to the United States about 17 years ago, he discarded his Russian name and assumed the name of Morris Benson, and that his wife while in the country assumed the name of Frieda Benson.

According to the complaint it is evident that defendant did not like her new name or the United States either, so she returned to Russia and, it is alleged, married another Russian without securing a divorce from the plaintiff herein. She returned to her native land about six years ago and is alleged to have married another man about three years ago and has borne him a male child. Plaintiff accordingly asks for a divorce.

FOR BREACH OF CONTRACT.

Suit has been filed in the district court by the Campbell Building company against Hugh Watson to recover for the excavating at the new federal building and also to recover for damages to the instrument, the end of which was broken in by the negligence of defendant. It is alleged that plaintiff failed to complete the excavation according to contract and failed to remove part of the earth and plaintiff was compelled to have the job completed by other parties.

A MONKEY IN JAIL.

Because he listened to his master and heaped from the hand organ upon Miss Guadalupe Franco, who is blind and who stood listening to the scratching of the instrument, one little red-jacketed monkey is now occupying the same cell as his master. Miss Franco was wounded rather severely for the night yesterday, and bystanders say that the hand-organ man "sicked" the monkey on. The monkey's master claims the little beast jumped without warning, but full explanations will come out later at the trial. The monkey will be on hand, but unless some member of the court is conversant with monkey language it will be hard to get his version of the matter.—Mexican Herald.
