

complaint. Henry V is said to have died "of painful afflictions, premature." This is a courtly phrase for getting rid of a king. Oh! that the glorious hero of Agincourt should have been got rid of by the priests "by a painful affliction." Henry VI died in prison, by means known then only to his gaoler, and known now only by heaven.

Edward V was strangled in the Tower by his uncle Richard III, whom Hume declares to have possessed every quality for government. This Richard III was killed in battle, fairly, of course, for all kings were either killed fairly or died naturally, according to the court circulars of those days. Henry VII wasted away, as a miser ought to do; and Henry VIII died of carbuncles, fat, and fury; while Edward VI died of decline. Queen Mary, the most heartless, or the most bloody-hearted of wretches, is said to have died of a "broken heart," whereas she died of a surfeit, from eating too much black puddings, her sanguinary nature being prone to hog's blood, or blood of any sort. Old Queen Bess is said to have died of melancholy from having sacrificed Essex to his enemies. James I died of drinking and of the effects of a nameless vice.

Charles I died a righteous death on the scaffold and Charles II died suddenly, it is said of apoplexy. James II died abroad. William III died from a consumptive habit of the body, and from the stumbling of his horse. Queen Anne died from her attachment to "strong waters," or in other terms from drunkenness, which the physicians politely called dropsy. George I also died of drunkenness; which his doctors as politely called an apopleptic fit. George II died by a rupture of the heart, which the periodicals of that day termed a visitation of God. It was the only instance in which God ever touched his heart. George III died, as he had lived, a madman. Throughout life he was at least a consistent monarch. George IV died of gluttony and of drunkenness. William IV died amid the sympathies of his subjects, and may it be a long time before we have the means of describing the death of his successor—Queen Victoria.

Mrs. James Brown-Potter is hard at work rehearsing a new piece all day, and playing in "Man and Wife" at the Grand Theatre, Islington, every night. On Saturday morning a special train will convey her and company to Brighton, where the first performance of "Civil War" will take place in the afternoon, and she will return by the same train and appear at Islington the same evening. The house could have been sold four times over for Monday, as over 3,000 applications for places have been received, and the great majority of these are from Americans. The Prince has purchased two boxes, Buffalo Bill and daughter will be present, the American Ministers, and all that is great and glorious amongst the American Colony will also be there.

THE FULL PARTICULARS.

How Thomas Phillips, of Heber, Met His Death in Provo Canyon.

HEBER CITY, July 22nd, 1887.

Editor Deseret News:

I write to inform you of an error in the account of the death of Thomas Phillips, which appeared in the semi-weekly News of July 19. The particulars of the accident are as follows: He left home on Thursday morning, July 14, in company with his son, aged 15, for Lambert's saw mill, situated about 110 miles above Woodland, on the North Fork of Provo River, where he had contracted for lumber to build a new residence on his ranch, five miles east of Heber. He arrived at the mill on Thursday evening and loaded his wagons, this being the second trip. He left the mill about seven o'clock Friday morning, in good health. About half or three quarters of a mile below the mill the road was very as well as very steep. Being a careful man, he got to the foot of this hill in safety. Driving his horses a little distance along a flat, they came to a short but steep pitch, which they went down all right, on to a gentle slope, but his team being on a trot, from the wagon crowding them down the hill (according to the report of a young man immediately behind) the deceased reached for his brake rope to again steady his wagon, when the wheels struck a rock on the side of the road, and threw him off his balance; he fell between the rear front and hind wheels, and after being dragged about 12 feet, the hind wheel passed over his body lengthwise from the right shoulder along the backbone, and ran off at the hip, and breaking the right ankle. Hisson was about 200 yards ahead at a spring branch, where he had stopped to bind his load, when he heard someone shouting. He started back up the hill to see what was wrong when he met the team, without a driver, running around a bend in the road, and dashing down the hill. The boy scared the team out of the road into a swamp and checked their speed, but gaining the road a few yards below, they ran into the first load which started that team also. Young Phillips again ran down the hill and safely secured both teams. On going up the hill he came to where his

He took him up in his arms, where the injured man expired in a few minutes without speaking. Some of the teamsters went back to the mill and procured help and a wagon. They filled the wagon bed with snavings and proceeded down to the scene of the accident, where they took up the corpse and started for his home, where they arrived about 6 o'clock on Friday evening. The son of the deceased and Joseph Lambert were in charge.

The remains were interred in Heber Cemetery on Saturday, July 16th, 1887. Please print the above in your next issue, as this is a correct statement, and oblige a grief-stricken and heart-broken family.

Yours truly,

FREDK. T. PHILLIPS.

Northern Notes.

The charge of unlawful cohabitation against Mr. Peter Longren, of Brigham City, has been dismissed.

Fred. Bentler and E. Ables, of Logan, had a quarrel on Friday night in which Bentler stabbed Ables in the hand with a penknife.

A few days ago a little child belonging to Mr. Lund, of this city, fell into Logan river from a foot bridge which spans the stream near Providence Bench. Hyrum Jeppeson, a boy who was fishing near by, ran down stream some distance, and, rushing into the water, succeeded in rescuing the drowning child. Had it not been for his timely assistance the results of the affair might have been much worse than they were. It is said that the foot bridge mentioned is unsafe, and should be made more substantial by placing a hand rail on each side of it. We trust the matter will be looked into.—Logan Journal, July 23.

BILIOUSNESS

Is an affection of the Liver, and can be thoroughly cured by that Grand Regulator of the Liver and Biliary Organs,

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

MANUFACTURED BY

J. H. ZEILIN & CO., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

I was afflicted for several years with disordered liver, which resulted in a severe attack of jaundice. I had as good medical attendance as our section affords, who failed utterly to restore me to the enjoyment of my former good health. I then tried the favorite prescription of one of the most renowned physicians of Louisville, Ky., but to no purpose; whereupon I was induced to try Simmons Liver Regulator. I found immediate benefit from its use, and it ultimately restored me to the full enjoyment of health.
