A GAMBLER'S DEATH.

Harry Nugent, of Salt Lake, Shot Down at Park City by a Victimized Miner.

A shooting affray occurred at Park City yesterday, and as a result Harry Nugent, miner of this city, and well known among the gambling fraternity, has stepped in death's embrace.

The tragedy occurred early yesterday morning at the gambling house of Nugent's business, J. G. Williams, in the east block of Main Street, during the night, Paul Clark, a miner employed at the Dicks mine, the mine with about $100,000 in his possession, and engaged in a game of dice, Nugent shot him.

Nugent was somewhat successful and made many winnings, but after a while his luck turned and he lost it all the house at dice, requesting the loss be given.

Clark showed he returned, and was again shooting and winning. Nugent demanded the return of his money. Nugent, somewhat reluctantly, opened the drawer to get the money out, when Clark commenced shooting, hitting the gun twice, but the gun did not fire.

Clark then took his gun and returned the fire, shooting Clark in the shoulder and the other entering the mouth. Nugent grabbed his gun and returned the fire, shooting Clark in the head and then killing back immediately.

A physician was immediately summoned, who examined Nugent's wounds and pronounced them necessary fatal. The physician fearing he would die if taken to the hospital, took him to his home, and did not until 11:15 last night that he passed away.

Immediately after the shooting, Clark ran down the street, the bullet having passed through his coat and the shirt underneath. The wood was drawn and he was placed under arrest, and will now stand trial in the charge of murder.

Nugent was regarded as a quiet, unobtrusive man, and was highly regarded by all his associates. He resided in Salt City, until a few months ago when he went to the Park and engaged in business with his brother. Now, he leaves a young wife to mourn his sad and untimely departure.

WATCHED HER BABY DROWN.

CHILD MURDER BY A MOTHER IN AUSTRALIA.

A shocking story of child murder came from Australia by way of Vancouver, Canada. Emma Williams, who lived on the outskirts of Melbourne, tied a twenty-pound stone to her two-year-old boy and threw the child into Port Phillip Bay, and standing calmly by the shore, let the water wash over the screaming bubbles which told of a little life going out.

A laborer emigrating on a dredger found a baby floating on the waves, who was soon identified as the son of the dead woman's child, and the mother was asked to explain.

She claimed that she had given her baby to another woman, but her story did not hold water, so she was arrested and committed to gaol at first, but after a few days in jail confessed that she had killed the child. In explanation of her crime, she said she could get no money for her baby, and the only way to get rid of it was to drown it.

After fruitless efforts to give it to some charitable agent destined to kill the little one, as she could not be brought with it, in her confession she says:

"I got out my baby between 6 and 8 o'clock, and I took him (her child) down as far as the little pier at the bottom. There I put it ashore and took the boat off and drove away. I took him up and laid him on the bank, and I picked him up again and I stepped there for about twenty minutes and then I came home."

The Moral Passes.

James L. Franke, Abnerian, Chicago, says: "I regard Dr. King's New Law very as the best Passes to Cough, Cold and Lung Disease. It contains it all, and nothing but the best.

It is good for the extraction of physician's prescriptions or other prescriptions."

Rev. John Barnes, Keokuk, Iowa, writes: "I have a minister in the Methodist Episcopal Church for 20 years or more, and have never found anything so beneficial, or that gave such speedy relief, as Dr. King's New Passes. Try this medicine, and you will be well."

Dr. E. C. L. King, 200 S. Main Street, Salt Lake City, has a new medicine, "The Moral Passes,"
