A Vile Business.

The act of Congress under which Mrs. Woodhull was recently tried is entitled, "An act for the suppression of trade in and circulation of obscene literature and articles of immoral use." It enacts that "no obscene, lewd, or lascivious book, pamphlet, picture, paper, print or other publication of an indecent character, or any article or thing designed or intended for the perversion or conception or procuring of abortion, or any article or thing intended or adapted for any indecent or immoral use or nature, nor any written or printed card, circular, book, pamphlet, advertisement, or notice of any kind giving information, directly or indirectly, where, or how, or of whom, or by what means either of the things before mentioned may be obtained or made, nor any letter upon the envelope of which, or postal card upon which indecent or scurrilous epithets may be written or printed, shall be carried in the mail," and for the mailing or delivery, or assisting to mail or deliver, any of the foregoing articles, the law affixes a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $5,000, or imprisonment from one to ten years. The federal courts have jurisdiction of such cases, and any United States judge may, on proper affidavit, direct the Marshal to search for and seize all such articles.

Few persons, probably, are aware of the grave necessity that existed for the passage of such an act. So infamous a business as the circulation of obscene literature, and the deliberate poisoning of the morals of youth would naturally be carried on in the most sneaking and secret manner, but facts show that it has been systematically and extensively carried on. It is impossible to conceive of anything more nefarious in itself or more dangerous to public morals than such a commerce, which attacks parents through their children and society through the youth of the land, by means so stealthy as scarcely to be detected and so vile as to be almost nameless. The men who engage in this loathsome traffic make a business of obtaining lists of scholars and students in schools and colleges all over the land, and forwarding circulars with price lists of their vile publications and other articles. The credit of unearthing the business and procuring the passage of the law against its prosecution through the mails, belongs to a young man of New York named Anthony Comstock, who, it must be confessed, has rendered the public a real service in calling attention to this great infamy. In a memorial to the House of Representatives at the last session of Congress, he said he had been engaged in the war against obscene literature for about a year, with the following results.

"Seized and destroyed obscene photographs, stereoscopic and other pictures, more than 180,000; obscene books and pamphlets, more than five tons; obscene letter-press in sheets, more than two tons; sheets of impure songs, catalogues, handbills, &c., more than 21,000; obscene microscopic watch and knife charms and finger rings, more than 5,000; obscene negative plates for printing photographs and stereoscopic views, about 65; obscene engraved steel and copper plates, 350; obscene lithographic stones destroyed, 20; obscene wood cut engravings, more than 500; stereotype plates for printing obscene books, more than five tons; obscene transparent playing cards, 5,500 to 6,000; newspapers seized, about 4,800; letters from all parts of the country, ordering these goods, about 15,000; names of dealers in account books seized, about 6,000; list of names in the hands of dealers, that are sold as merchandise, to forward catalogues and circulars to, independent of letters and account books, seized, more than 7,000; arrests of dealers, over 50."

Out of 144 obscene books published in New York during the year 1871, Mr. Comstock succeeding in capturing and destroying the stereotyped plates and engravings of 142. Among the letters seized were orders from all parts of the country, with lists of names, etc., and what is rather startling, there were found on the books of one dealer twenty separate orders from the librarian of a public school in a Western city. How extensively the traffic has been carried on no one can tell, but the fact that it has been carried on at all, and that the mails were open to use for placing this poisonous stuff in the hands of the young, shows that some legislation was loudly called for, and it is to be hoped that the war thus vigorously begun will be waged to the complete extermination of the business.—Indianapolis Journal.

LOTTERIES.—For some years past Omaha has been rather noted for its lottery drawings. Presuming successfully on the gullibility and avarice of men, some enterprising and unscrupulous citizens of that place have followed the lottery business with a degree of energy which has probably brought them considerable success. The circulars have been scattered broadcast over the West, and the business has been conspicuously advertised by all the usual means. Recent developments throw some light on the business, and show what a silly investment people have been making who bought tickets in the Omaha lottery. Some months ago the manager of the lottery sent his family to Europe. A short time since he announced his intention of starting a lottery in Leavenworth, and left Omaha ostensibly for that place. But he has not reported in Leavenworth, nor returned to Omaha, and it is now believed that he has sailed for Europe. His disappearance has induced an investigation, and the first result is rather discouraging to the patrons of the Omaha lottery. One Mr. Donnelly, for some time clerk to the manager, has made his affidavit that the whole business was a fraud. Among other things he says it has been the custom to sell duplicate packages of tickets bearing the same numbers, and that the last "official" drawing was fraudulent throughout and a put-up job.

The Omaha scheme was probably no better and no worse than other lotteries, for the simple reason that they are all based in fraud. The fraudulent principle of the business is that the manager is to get money for nothing from a very large number of persons, and that one or two, or a few persons, are to get back from him a good deal more money than they put in. Of course, it is gambling as much as faro, roulette or three card monte, and the man who invests and loses his money in a lottery is entitled to no more sympathy than the one who puts it up on the green cloth. It is a dishonest, disreputable and demoralizing business. — Indianapolis Journal.

—An Englisman has offered to subscribe fifty or one hundred pounds towards the completion of a telescope that shall be powerful enough to discover human beings—if existing—in any of the spheres. It would be aggravating for our noble race to see anybody walking around there without being able to put them on a reservation.

—The people of Wetzel county, West Virginia, have taken the law into their own hands as against a band of cut-throats and robbers who for a long time have had things pretty much their own way, robbing and assaulting by day and night, and perpetrating all sorts of outrages. A vigilance committee of its best citizens, calling themselves Modocs, has been formed, and has made short work with many of the bravos.

—A Detroit man went masquerading on the streets as a genuine Modoc a few days since, and was ducked by a party of patriotic newsboys, intent upon avenging the Canby murder. He is now incapacitated to play Modoc any more this season.
