Foreign Notes.

LONDON, 19.—Four hundred and fifty noblemen and gentlemen were present at the meeting of the Conservatives at the Bridgewater House to-day, including Lords Salisbury and Carnarvon, Sir Stafford Northcote and Mr. Cross. Lord Beaconsfield, after having expressed the hope that the proceedings would be regarded as strictly private, referred to the sudden change in the position of parties, but he saw no reason to despair. There were already signs of encouragement. If the Conservatives were true to their principles, he looked forward to their return to power at no distant period. He expressed surprise that Gladstone, after his repeated expression of a desire to retire from political controversy, should accept two posts. Lord Beaconsfield denied that he ever intended to resign the premiership. He recommended that the conservatives maintain an attitude of dignified opposition to radicalism for the present. Nothing would induce him to believe the defeat of the conservatives a desire for a change. He considered it impossible for the present ministry with its discordant elements to last long. Sir Robert Peel, Sir Stafford Northcote and Lords Carnarvon and Salisbury also spoke.

The Times this morning in an editorial on the Fortune Bay dispute says: The party, composed to a great extent of the statesmen who were originally responsible for the treaty of Washington, are now again in power in this country, and will not shrink from the task of amending it where there may seem need for amendment. The rights conferred by the treaty, whether on American or British fishermen, are, as Secretary Evarts contends, not exclusive, but common. The agreement suggested by Secretary Evarts, that the contracting parties should by some joint action adopt regulations protecting fisheries would, at any rate, prevent a future controversy, nor need there be any insuperable obstacle to the amicable adjustment of the present dispute.

Samuel Plymsoll (Liberal) has offered to resign his seat in Parliment for Derby, in favor of Sir William Harcourt, Plymsoll's supporters have decided to recommend the acceptance of his offer.

The result of the election for Wigtonborough was J. McLaren's (Liberal) defeat by Mark Stewart (conservative.) It is attributed to McLaren's alleged connection with the fagot houses, and the disapproval by ultra-Presbyterians of the appointment of the Marquis of Ripon and Lord Kenmare to offices under the crown, they being Roman Catholics.

Henry Ashworth, a well known manufacturer of Manchester, and a prominent Cobdenite politician, has died at Florence, Italy, of Roman fever.

It is believed that the Queen's speech on the reassembling of Parliament to-morrow will allude briefly to the result of the general election. Sympathetic reference will be made to the distress of Ireland, but its tone regarding it will be hopeful. Measures to ameliorate the condition of tenant farmers will be promised. Renewal of the ballot act and the introduction of a census bill may claim mention in connection with the maintenance of European peace. The speech will announce the dispatch to the Powers of a circular by Lord Granville, Foreign Secretary, and indicate the reception it met with at foreign courts. Allusion will be made to the pacification and reorganization in South Africa.

The meeting of the constituents of Plymsoll was very enthusiastic. After a statement by Plymsoll, giving as a reason for vacating his seat, that Sir Wm. Harcourt would father his shipping reforms, resolutions were passed unanimously but reluctantly inviting Sir William to become their candidate.

A Berlin correspondent learns upon trustworthy authority that Germany intends to increase her naval force on the Eastern Asiatic stations as soon as the relations between Russia and China assume a more grave aspect.

It is stated that the conservatives are determined to oppose the election of Sir William Harcourt at Derby. It is said that Sir Robert Peel will be invited to stand.

News from Jamaica state that the drought continues. One shower of rain fell last week in the vicinity of Falmouth, the first for three months. Water is so scarce that it is sold for six cents a gallon. Stock of all kinds is dying for want of water. The dry weather is seriously affecting young canes, and fears are entertained for next year's crops.

A new political movement has been inaugurated at Montreal, the promoters of which call a mass-meeting for to-morrow night. The prominent features of the platform are commercial union with the United States, and all rights and privileges of office independent of nationality.

Almost complete results of the election for members of the Italian Chamber of Deputies show the return of 120 Constitutionalists, 173 Ministerialists and sixty-one Dissident Left. Second ballots are expected to make these figures 175, 239 and 82 respectively.

The Spanish gendarmerie have dispersed a small band of advanced radicals in the province of Teruel. The band had menaced several villages and was headed by a noted Carlist adventurer.

Bee Committee's Address.

SALT LAKE CITY,
May 12, 1880.

Editors Deseret News:

As a Committee appointed by our Territorial Bee Convention at its last session, we feel it a duty to correct some erroneous ideas that are likely to misguide novices in bee culture, and therefore ask a space in your columns, as it is so widely spread and read throughout our Territory.

Nearly all of our bee keepers are novices, but some have an experience from 12 to 15 years, and have shown some practical experience by the tons of honey produced in our new and isolated territory. While we do not condemn theory in any, we recommend practical experience in bee culture as well as in all useful industries.

There are a variety of opinions as regards the bee hive. There are many patent hives and ventilators of the same. Our Territorial Convention, after duly canvassing this subject, decided that the Kidder hive, or its equivalent cubic inches, which is 200 cubic inches, was the best adapted to our Territory. One of our prominent bee keepers, says as an objection this hive, that in from six to ten days the bees will fill the Kidder hive full of honey, when honey is plentiful in the field, which, in our vicinity is in July and August; and this same author condemns the Extractor as one of the causes of foul brood, even in the hands of the most careful manipulator—that the centrifugal force throws out thousands of young brood and chills the rest; this, with dead larvæ in the spring, which die and decay in the cells and defile the hive, causes the bee keeper on opening the hive, sniffing the bad odor, to exclaim, "foul brood;" and he also states that another cause of foul brood, may be traced to imperfectly bred queens. Our remedy for the overloaded hive is to relieve it by the use of the Extractor, and to do so effectually, we use the two-story Kidder hive, extracting only from the upper story, leaving the brood, queen and young bees in the lower story with the old honey; and, if as is sometimes the case, that brood is found in the upper chamber, we either exchange them for combs of honey in the lower story, or place them on the outside of the upper story. By this means we have often taken from twenty to thirty pounds of honey, every eight or twelve days, during the best part of the honey season, from each strong colony. Thus the two-story Kidder hive not only duplicates the size of the hive but removes the great objection of disturbing the young bees and the larva, which we advise on all occasions as far as possible; and as to wintering, this hive is provided with upper ventilation, and a quilt can be placed on the top of the frames, made of canvas, gunny sack, etc. In the top of the hive a small sack of chaff can be placed as an absorber of steam or dampness, and if desired an outside box of rough boards may be made, three or four inches larger than the hive and chaff be placed in the open space, protecting them from the cold frosts.

It is the decision of our best disciplined beekeepers throughout the world that foul brood is a contagious disease and not caused by the extractor, chilled brood or imperfect bred queens. We would like to see one of our practical beekeepers who attends our territorial conventions, that does not know the difference between the odor of noxious foul brood from that of chilled and dead bees, bad as the latter may be. That the extractor, and especially in the hands of an unskilled person, does throw out some of the larva is true. This, with other losses, which are numerous, soon depopulates the whole colony. Thousands of bees that go to the field for honey, never return to their hive. Some are captured by birds, others chilled by cold winds and rain storms, and many die, being worn out. Finally, the life of the bee is only very short. Some of our best writers say that during the best honey season the working bee will wear itself out in six weeks. Had not the great Creator provided for all these losses, the great resources of honey would be cut short, but when we are informed of the wonderful ability of the one and only queen to each hive to lay about two or three thousand eggs in each twenty-four hours, we find all those losses well and amply provided for. These statements appear so extravagant that we will note the words of Mr. E. Krethmer. "In my observation hive I have seen the queen lay seven eggs in one minute, which would be 420 each hour, and in 24 hours 10,080, but as a rule it is said about 2,000 in 24 hours."

We will further state as regards extracting. We have had 12 years experience with the extractor, and no foul brood at all, neither has there been the appearance of foul brood, and last year, an average of 100 lbs. of surplus honey to each hive, and never have been under the necessity of feeding one pound of sugar; but do sometimes take from a surplus hive a full comb of honey and place it on one side of a needy hive, and the bees carry the honey over to the brood, thus cheating the queen or stimulating the queen in early spring to hurry up her brood, and this spring we have taken 35 lbs. of surplus honey from one of those hives and that hive has had drones flying out over 20 days ago. How is this compared with the theory of feeding bees all the sugar they will take? When necessary, sugar mixed with water to the thickness of honey may be fed to stimulate and feed until honey may be obtained from the field, whereas a surplus would be a detriment to the colony as the sugar when granulated in the cells becomes a burden to them. Placing honey for them is the most natural food and best received by them.

Before closing the subject of queens laying capacity, we wish to mention the experience of one of our bee masters, in our county, Bro. Benjamin Judson, who placed an empty comb in one of his hives in the evening, and the next day found it filled with eggs, and as there are 24 cells to the square inch, or 48 including both sides of the comb, and 121 square inches on each side of a frame of comb, this would foot up the enormous sum of 5,808 eggs. This accounts for great increase to keep the colonies strong and provide for losses by extracting and otherwise, and also of frequent swarming. A fair colony of bees is expected to contain about 20,000 bees. Now is the time to keep a good lookout for bees swarming, and secure good wholesome hives, for be assured that if you put a healthy swarm of bees in an old foul brood hive, it will soon affect the colony, although the bees may have been out of the hive and it has stood empty for two years. All foul brood hives, bees, combs and all should be destroyed, in order to entirely eradicate the disease from our Territory, without which we will not succeed.

Respectfully,
SAMUEL McKAY,
JOHN MORGAN,
EDWARD STEVENSON,
Committee.

THE NEW VICTOR.

SIMPLICITY SIMPLIFIED!

Improvements September, 1878.

Notwithstanding the VICTOR has long been the leader of any Sewing Machine in the market—a fact supported by a host of volunteer witnesses—we now confidently claim for it greater simplicity, a wonderful reduction of friction and a combination of desirable qualities. It is a beautiful machine with the highest achievements of inventiveness. Note.—We despise anything like unfairness with the customers. We do not consign Machines, therefore have no one to patch up and re-furnish for our
