THE PRIESTHOOD AND POLITICS.

The correspondence which appears to another column of this issue between the Salt Lake Tribune and President Willard Woodruff will be read with varied feelings by the Latter-day Saints and the community generally. It deserves a place in our news columns, and that place it will occupy by reason of the position that it occupies in the news of the day. It also deserves a place in our news columns, and that place it will occupy by reason of the position that it occupies in the news of the day.

To those who know of the attitude and spirit and views of President Woodruff, and who have watched with interest the course of political discussion in the territory of Utah, the above will appear somewhat surprising and unusual. It is not only because of the position and position of the President, but also because of the position and position of the President.

Some criticism has been leveled upon the order of the expedition for his failure to accompany the expedition, and it has been known that he had been behind in order to accompany. It is pretty clear, however, that the President is a man of high character and high ability, and that he is a man of high character and high ability.

HAWAII FOR U.S.

The special mission of Minister Thurston, of Hawaii, who passed through on his way out yesterday, accompanied by his wife, has to show the progress of the latter expedition in the islands, preparing to make a new treaty for annexation to the United States, when Congress convenes in December. The Hawaiian government has arrived at a definite conclusion to ship the further expedition of several labor to the islands, and in consequence of that plan has directed Mr. Thurston to accompany the expedition in which he is to accompany. He will proceed to Washington, and after attending to his other matters there, will go to London. There it is expected that arrangements will be made with labor agents to secure immigration from Great Britain to the islands. The Hawaiian government has directed Mr. Thurston to accompany the expedition in which he is to accompany. He will proceed to Washington, and after attending to his other matters there, will go to London.

to improve, a patriotic as well as a national duty. The Hawaiian government has directed Mr. Thurston to accompany the expedition in which he is to accompany. He will proceed to Washington, and after attending to his other matters there, will go to London.

MR. PRYOR'S EXPEDITION.

In the early months of the year 1904, Mr. Pryor's expedition to the Hawaiian Islands was a subject of much interest to the people of this territory. The expedition was a patriotic as well as a national duty. The Hawaiian government has directed Mr. Thurston to accompany the expedition in which he is to accompany. He will proceed to Washington, and after attending to his other matters there, will go to London.
