BREVITIES.

The best champagne in the market is manufactured from tomatoes.—Ex

The Chicago Post classifies Fish, of the State department, as among the Invertebrata.

A servant at a party, to whom his master was calling impatiently to fetch this, fetch that, answered, "Sir, everything we have in the wurrld is on the table."

Forty-seven thousand persons die annually of consumption in Great Britain; a disease which the London Telegraph calls a "scourge, compared to which cholera is a jest and war a diversion."

In a little disagreement between two 'Frisco brokers, "one of them put his hand out and the other lay down on the sidewalk. Then the first mentioned rubbed his foot against the other's head, and then some friends interfered."

The London Spectator is strongly in favor of a woman's university in England. It thinks that on many of the most delicate questions of modern civilization we need the fine judgment of educated women.

Put not your faith in him who predicts a hot season—he keeps ices; nor in him who predicts a cold one—he owns a cheap clothing store; nor yet in him who declares a wet one—he has umbrellas; nor a dry one—he sells beer.—Indianapolis News.

A Swedish dictionary was authorized by the Royal Academy of that country in 1786, and the first volume, covering the letter A, has been issued at a cost of $50,000. By the time the dictionary is all out the Scandinavian tongue will have disappeared.—Ex.

It is a gross mistake to indulge exclusively or largely in a meat diet, with an expectation of making oneself stronger, since rice-eaters, buckwheat eaters, and those who subsist principally on wheat and potatoes, endure severe demands upon their muscular force far better than great meat consumers.

At a sheriff criminal court recently held at Dundee, in Scotland, a surgeon was charged with having pulled out a boy's tooth against his will. He pleaded "Guilty." It was explained that a number of boys had annoyed the doctor, and that he seized one of them, took him into his house, and extracted one of his front teeth against his will. The sheriff fined the accused £1.

A French wife called on an apothecary in Paris for some medicine for her husband, who was ill. The prescription was put up and handed to the lady with a smile. "It will be three francs." "Three francs!" she exclaimed, "if it costs so much as that perhaps you had better keep it, for he may perhaps be dead when I return."

An Indiana farmer, after trying to trap, poison, and shoot the rats that overrun his premises, bought two goats and gave them the range of the yards and stables. Within a week every rat emigrated and staid away until the goats were sold, nearly two years afterward, when they all came back with all their friends. A second edition of goats was procured, and since then not a rat has been seen on the premises.

"Yer haven't got such a thing as a pair of trousers, have yer?" said an importunate beggar, looking in at a counting house.

"No, my man," said the merchant. "I don't keep my wardrobe in my office."

"Where do you live?" rejoined the tramp; "give us yer address and I'll call in the morning for the old pair you've got on."

If brooms are wet in boiling suds once a week, they will become very tough, will not cut the carpet, last much longer, and always sweep like a new broom. A very dusty carpet may be cleaned by setting a pail of cold water out by the door, wet the broom in it, knock it to get out all the drops, sweep a yard or so, then wash the broom as before, and sweep again, being careful to shake all the drops off the broom, and not sweep far at a time.

The Rev. H—— has a large family of unruly boys, and one of them did something very wrong, but as none of them would confess it, he declared he would whip them all, and then he would be sure to punish the culprit. Lisping Jimmy, the youngest, retired to the corner and grumbled. "What is that you say?" asked his father. "I thaid," whimpered Jimmy, "that'th jutht the way old Herod did. He killed all the children, tho that he would be thure to kill Jethuth."

CONGRESSIONAL.

HOUSE.

Butler from the Ku-Klux committee, reported a bill to amend the enforcement act, in regard to elections. The opposition immediately began to filibuster to prevent a vote. Holman opened by a motion to adjourn, supplemented by a motion by Woods that when the house adjourns it adjourn to Friday next. After several votes, the Democrats showing no signs of yielding, the motion to adjourn was carried by 102 to 85.

Banks, from the committee on foreign affairs, reported a bill to release the government of Japan from the payment of the balance of the indemnity fund, under the convention act of '64, amounting to $375,000, which, after considerable discussion, passed.

EASTERN DISPATCHES.

The Pacific mail statement, published to-day, shows an increase in earnings of nearly half a million for the quarter ending May 1, compared with the corresponding quarter last year.

It is believed by the best informed politicians that Colfax will be renominated. It is under stood that he has the support of a majority, if not all, of the New York delegation.

Faber & Co's loss by fire, this morning, it is now thought will reach $200,000.

Gratz Brown telegrahs that he will positively address the Greeley mass meeting at Cooper Institute on Monday night.

Henry N. Smith asks an injunction against the Pacific Mail Company receiving any votes by proxy to reduce the capital stock, and from purchasing any stock for the company except in open market.

The eight hour strike appears to be extending to all trades, laborers and occupations. The Steinway company refuse to accede to the demand of their workmen, but are willing to compromise. The workmen refuse any any compromise.

WASHINGTON, 29,—The President was at the capitol to-day in consultation with leading members of both houses in relation to desired legislation. He is considering the propriety of calling an extra session of the senate for the disposal of executive business. He is very anxious for the extension of the Ku-Klux act until the next meeting of Congress.

It is stated on good authority that Secretary Fish to-day said no reply had yet been received from the British government in relation to the supplemental article adopted by the senate. A large number of dispatches have passed between Schenck and Fish within the past few days. The last received from Schenck indicates a probable intention on the part of the British government to accept any modification to the supplemental article.

The Spanish minister to day informed the State department that his government will, in a few days, liberate Dr. Howard, and return his confiscated estate.

By order of the President, the collector at New Orleans was telegraphed to-day not to allow the landing of the Greek brigands on their way to America.

EUROPEAN.

LONDON, 29.—Montague Bernard, one of the joint high commissioners, in a lecture at Oxford last night on the treaty of Washington, said circumstances prevented his replying to accusations on the part of British members of the commission. He highly praised the good temper displayed by the American government and people throughout the negotiations.

New Sources of Quicksilver Supply.

It is well known that the quicksilver trade of this coast has long been in the hands of one of the most exacting of monopolies. Controlling all the principal mines of California, and guarded from foreign competition by a high tariff, they have maintained the price of that commodity at an exorbitant figure. This state of affairs has had the effect of stimulating exploration in the promising districts of California, in the hope of finding new deposits of cinnabar, and of directing attention to mines whose limited yield in years past induced their eventual abandonment. The Bulletin says there is a strong probability now that the production of quicksilver will be much increased by the development of the new mines. Rich bodies of ore have been struck at Oakville, Napa county, where several companies are at work; and at other points in Napa and Sonoma counties, there are deposits of ore that it is thought will yet be worked to advantage. These discoveries are especially gratifying at this time, as in view of the increased demand for quicksilver for the purposes of gold and silver mining the monopolists would be likely to advance their already exorbitant charges unless new sources of supply were threatened. In addition to these discoveries, the action of Congress gives promise that the duty on quicksilver will be abolished; and this prospect of free importation coupled with that of new sources of production inspires a reasonable hope that the ring of monopolists is about to have the control of the quicksilver market wrenched from their grasp, as has already been that of the mines.—Ter. Enterprise.

The "Duplex Telegraph

This name is given to the latest novelty in telegraphy, which is truly a wonder. It comes before the public with a reputation perfectly established, after four years' practice, and is likely to supplant all other systems. The invention admits of sending messages both ways at one and the same time over a single wire. It consists merely in neutralising the effect of the sender's current upon his own relay as it goes out to the line, thereby permitting the received currents to operate the relay, precisely as if it were connected direct to the ground. The machinery of this invention was in operation at Cincinnati during the sittings of the Convention that nominated Mr. Greeley. The Times says the amount of business it did was enormous. One wire, it was found, could do as much work as two with the ordinary Morse instruments. The inventor's name is Stearns; and the subjoined statement of tests to which the new system was put is furnished by the manager of the New York office: On April 10th, between New York and Boston, the following operators were placed on duty, in connection with a single number nine wire to be worked with Stearns' machinery: Messrs. Dwight and Catlin, New York; Messrs. Beardsley and Stewart, Boston. Catlin sent to Beardsley in one hour, from New York to Boston, 72 messages; Stewart, Boston sent to Dwight, New York, in same time, 64; total by one wire in one hour, 136. The messages were the regular business of the office, many being long ones, ranging from ninety-one words down. The actual time consumed was fifty-eight minutes, two minutes having been lost by interruption.—Ex.

Where the Gold Goes.

In the reign of Darius gold was thirteen times more valuable, weight for weight, than silver. In the time of Plato it was twelve times more valuable. In that of Julius Cæsar gold was only nine times more valuable, owing, perhaps, to the enormous quantities captured by him in his wars.

It is a natural question to ask—what became of the gold and silver? A paper read before the Polytechnic association by Dr. Stephens, recently, is calculated to meet this inquiry. He says of our annual gold product, fully fifteen per cent. is melted down for manufacture; thirty-five per cent. goes to Europe; twenty-five per cent. to Cuba; fifteen per cent. to Brazil; five per cent. direct to Japan, China and the Indies, leaving five per cent. for circulation in this country. Of that which goes to Cuba, the West Indies and Brazil fully five per cent. finds its way to Europe. Where, after deducting a large percentage used in manufacture, four-fifths of the remainder is exported to India. The Orientals consume but little, while their productions have been in demand among the Western nations. As mere recipients these nations have acquired the desire of accumulation and hoarding, a fashion common to all classes among the Egyptians, Chinese and Persians. A French economist says in his opinion the former nation alone can hide away $20,000,000 of gold and silver annually, and the present Emperor of Morocco is reported as so addicted to this avaricious mania that he has filled seventeen large chambers with the precious metals. The passion of princes, it is not surprising that the same spirit is shared by their subjects, and it is in this predilection that we discover the solution to the problem as to the ultimate disposition of the precious metals. The absorption of the Eastern nations has been uninterruptedly going on since the most remote historical period.—Ex.
