Two thousand of the Indians located in Dakota belong to the Catholic church.

Bicycles have been sent to China and the natives are delighted and astonished.

Mississippi claims that it will compete with the Staes of the west in corn production this year.

It is said that twenty thousand Chinese are to be imported into Brazil, with the object of cultivating tea and coffee.

Statistics show that 100,000 people are killed by whisky, where one person is killed by a mad dog. Moral—Don't be afraid of a mad dog.

The caterpillars have been making fearful ravages among the gum trees and orchards of southeast Missouri, stripping the trees bare.

On the 28th of August there will be a grand fruit show at the Louisville Exposition, and a large sum will be disbursed in premiums.

On a recent Sunday between 1,200 and 1,500 arrests were made by the police in St. Louis against violators of the Sunday law, mainly saloon keepers and their patrons.

Files are instantly cleaned by being held for a moment in a steam jet from the blow-off cock. This may be valuable to machinists who work where steam is convenient.

There are 12,000,000 copies of infidel publications and 29,000,000 copies of immoral books, papers and pamphlets published annually in London and distributed principally among the working classes.

The water of the holy well at Mecca has been found on analysis to contain 479 grains of solid matter to the gallon, and is seven times worse than the sewers of London. This explains the prevalence of the cholera among pilgrims.

On the 27th of last month the Massachusetts Legislature adjourned after the longest session on record—two hundred and six days. Part of the time it was engaged in trying to get ahead of General Butler, but was forced to acknowledge defeat.

Eleven years ago the first creamery was established in Manchester, Iowa, and now there are about eight hundred in the State. Cheese factories are not as numerous, but are necessary, and are said to yield a better profit than the creameries.

A tramway is about to be constructed for the transportation of visitors to the summit of Pike's Peak. The cost of the work is estimated at $100,000, and the ascent, which now requires about a day and a half, will then be made in three hours.

The idea of a union of the Central American republics has not been dropped, and a statesman of Honduras says that government and those of Guatemala and Salvador, intend to coerce Costa Rica and Nicaragua into participation in the scheme.

The proportion of doctors to population is given as follows in the Siglomedico, an Italian paper: France 2.91 to every 10,000; Germany, 3.21; Austria, 3.41; England, 5; Hungary, 6.10; Italy, 6.10; Switzerland, 7.06 and the United States, 16.24.

Cotton manufactured into duck is being successfully introduced as a roofing material. Aside from its cheapness it possesses the advantage of lightness as compared with shingles or slate; it effectually excludes water, and it is said to be a non-conductor of heat.

An alligator was recently killed near Bainbridge, Georgia, which measured eleven feet six inches from the tip of the nose to the end of the tail. He had depredated upon cattle and hogs in the vicinity, and many fruitless attempts had been previously made to capture or kill him.

One of the minor trials in railway travel arises from cinders in the eye. A simple and effective cure may be found in one or two grains of flax seed, which can be placed in the eye without pain or injury. As they dissolve a glutinous substance is formed, which envelopes any foreign body that may be under the lid, and the whole is easily washed out.

Habitual criminals in France, such as cannot keep out of the hands of the police, are hereafter to be sent to New Caledonia, not as convicts, but as "colonists," where every inducement will be brought to bear upon them to marry, raise families and otherwise build up a French dependency. They never will be permitted to return to the mother country.

Glasgow has 85,800 houses of one room each, 52,600 of two rooms, 17,700 of three rooms, 6,800 of four rooms, and 6,200 of five rooms or over. Two-thirds of the people live in houses of not more than two apartments. The operative class in these close quarters are very prolific and there are 950 families of from ten to sixteen persons. This means a population of about 10,000 persons in 1,888 apartments, or more than five to a room.

CONSTITUTIONAL LIBERTY NOT REBELLION.

THE movement in Dakota looking towards the organization of a State government, with or without the consent of Congress, is commented upon variously by the press of the country. We notice that some papers take the ground that the course proposed will amount to rebellion, and they announce that the possibility of establishing independent State governments was settled in the negative by the civil war.

The attempt to draw a parallel between the organization of a State government in Dakota, and the secession of certain Southern States from the Union, is a singular stretch of the powers of comparison. The two situations are entirely different. The intentions of the parties are exactly opposite. The issue with the General Government, if one should arise in the case of Dakota, would be the exact reverse of that which was decided in the four years' war.

Dakota appears to have all the requisites for local self-government. According to the doctrines enunciated in the Declaration of Independence, she has the right to a form of government deriving its powers from the consent of the governed; and when the existing form is subversive of that principle, to change or establish it. And this is declared to be not only a right but a duty of the people whose rights have been denied or abridged.

Dakota has a Territorial form of government under which her people have endured many usurpations and have been deprived of a truly republican form of government. Having reached a status which justifies her in making a demand for these political rights which it is the duty of the people to demand and of the General Government to secure to her, she has endeavored, by the ordinary method, to obtain them. Failing in this, she proposes to avail herself of those powers reserved by the national Constitution to the people, and organize a State government embodying the political principles which animate other States, and then to ask admission into the Union on an equal footing with them. If Congress refuses her admission, she will just move along under her State Government, ready at any time to render allegiance to the National Government as one of the Confederation, when permitted so to do.

This is not secession. It is the very opposite of secession. It is not rebellion. It is the exact reverse of rebellion. It is no attempt to break up the Federal Union, but is an effort to increase and make stronger the Federal Union. It is a movement in the line of the Constitution and of the Declaration of Independence, its forerunner. States have been organized in a similar manner, since the establishment of the General Government, running for awhile without national recognition but afterwards admitted into the Federal compact.

We believe that if Dakota's people have grit enough and unity enough to stand to their colors they will win. To settle the difficulty Congress will be willing to give them their undoubted rights. It is only a struggle of parties which prevents her admission. She is not denied on any really valid objection. Each of the two great parties is fearful of any augmentation of power to the other from the admission of new States. The claim of Congressional sovereignty over the Territories is based upon such an untenable foundation that it cannot stand a rigid and determined test. The easiest way out of the contention is to admit all the Territories into the Union and set the vexed question forever. All that Congress is bound to do in the premises is to see that each of the new States has a republican form of government. No other considerations are paramount. The wishes or fears of either political party have no business to interfere with the welfare of the people and the peace of the nation. They should be made to stand aside when the rights of organized communities are demanded, and should not be counted, in view of the vastly more important considerations.

If it is maintained that Congress may refuse Dakota admission and require submission to the form of government which it has provided, the question of the right of Congress to compel submission to an anti republican form of government will come up for decision. There cannot be anything plainer than the limitation of the supreme exclusive power of Congress to a region ten miles square in which is the seat of government, and the national dockyards, arsenals, etc., and to make needful regulations concerning the territory (i.e. land) and other property of the United States. The people of Dakota are not the "property" of the United States. The organized commonwealth, incipient or otherwise, of Dakota, is not the "property" of the United States. The people have rights that Congress cannot lay fully contravene. And by a firm and prudent course Dakota may be able to maintain her stand, even though denied the privileges of Statehood, without coming into armed and physical conflict with the national authority. In time, by legal arbitration and with unflagging perseverance she is bound to win, because right is on her side and all that can be arrayed against her besides arbitrary might, is a sophistical, farfetched and self-refuted rendering of a solitary clause in that Constitution which was framed to protect the people against the encroachments of governmental authority.

Deadly Double Duel.

A Rally Reported in Stocks.

NEW YORK, 14.—Wall Street, 1 p. m.—One of the sensations of the day was the failure of Geo. W. Ballou & Co., of this city and Boston. The failure is understood to have been caused by the inability of customers to make good their margins, and the fact that the firm has had considerable money tied up in the Cincinnati, Toledo & St. Louis Narrow Gauge railroad, which recently went into receiver's hands. About 10,000 shares of various stocks were closed out under the rule for their account, including Oregon Transcontinental, N. Y. Central, Denver & Rio Grande, M. & Pacific, Jersey Central, Wabash Pacific and Lake Shore. There was a rally in the market before 12 o'clock and it was on the reports that leading operators had purchased large blocks of stock.

Thas Failure.

New York, 14.—The firm is composed of Wm. Bingham, Board Member, David H. Darling, Geo. W. Ballou and Allen S. Weeks. No definite particulars could be obtained. The house did a large an extensive business in stocks and its customers were principally bank presidents throughout the country. A Boston capitalist and New England member of the firm said the trouble was merely temporary, and that the principal stock carried by the firm were Ontario and Western Missouri, Pacific and Western Union. It is roughly estimated that the liabilities will amount to between $400,000 and $500,000. Under the stock exchange rules relating to failures, all of the stocks carried by the firm were sold at the exchange, and prices were not materially affected; but there was no end to the rumors and excitement. It is said the failure will seriously cripple several other large houses on the street.

The Revolutionists in Spain — Details of their Plot.

MADRID, 14.—The Marquis de la Vega Arvigo, when he returns to the capital from Portugal will report. He has learned full details of the plot of the revolutionary fraternity, which is composed of all grades between the ranks of sergeants and lieut.-colonels. There were five divisions in the circle, the leaders only knowing the centers of organization. If the movement had been successful, each of five officers in each division was to receive two steps in promotion. Officers who retired at the restoration of the monarchy took an important part in the movement. The military, it then appears, lent themselves to Zorilla's arms for purely selfish motives.

The review of the Madrid garrison to-day was without any unusual incident. The troops saluted the King as they defiled past. The King will shortly visit Barcelona, Saragossa, Valencia and other towns. He will review the garrisons of those places. A Colonel and 901 unarmed men entered France at Port Vendres. They are supposed to be fugitives from Leo D. Urgen. Many fugitive soldiers and corporals from Badajez presented themselves to the Spanish Consul at Elvas, Portugal, to-day and asked pardon, stating they had been deceived.

Great Fires in London.

London, 14.—There was a great fire this morning on Orchard Wharf, Blackwell, where a large warehouse stored with jute and hemp was destroyed. There have been two fires on the same wharf since June.

The Varnish and Japan manufactory of Nobles & Howe is burning. The damage will probably be very heavy. There are 40 engines on the ground.

Almost a Panic.

1 p.m.—There was almost a panic at the stock exchange here this morning in American railroad securities, which are greatly depressed, and are difficult to sell. American government bonds are not affected by the unfavorable feeling in railway securities. Mexican railway stock strong.
