EVAN STEPHENS IS HOME AGAIN

Talks Interestingly of What He Saw and Heard in Europe.

A WONDERFUL EXPERIENCE

Musical Abilities of Many Nations-What They Shine Most In-A Tribute to Dr. Parry.

After an absence from the city of nearly eight months, passed on the other side of the big pond, Prof. Evan Stephens arrived home yesterday, wonderfully improved in health and full of enthusiasm. Last evening he surprised | They had expected to remain a little the choir members by appearing before them at the regular rehearsal. He was warmly greeted by his singers, to whom he briefly related his musical experience in Europe.

The professor was seen by a representative of the "News" today and talked interestingly of his trip abroad. His first month was spent on this side of the water, chiefly in Chicago and New York, where he devoted most of his time to hearing the leading choral on March 14th, Professor Stephens and this companion Willard Christopherson, left New York for Great Brit ain, arriving at London, after a very pleasant voyage across the ocean, on March 22nd. They found the metrapolls revelling in music, and among the best things seen, Prof. Stephens menloned the charal concerts at the Albert hall, and orchestral concerts at Queen's hall and the Crystal Palace The travelers made London their head-quarters, but the professor made two trips into Wales, crossing the English channel into France for a visit to the Paris Exposition between times. Speaking of Paris Prof. Stephens

PARIS A LOVELY CITY.

'In the spring time Paris is incomparable for life, freshness and beauty; the perfect combination of statuary, lowers, trees and shrubbery, and the flowers, trees and shrubbery, and the symmetry of the streets and buildings, added to the brilliancy of the multitude of well dressed people, who thronged the streets. To my mind Paris is an ideal land of happiness. Later in the sum-mer, however, my impressions of the city were not so favorable, as the heat and dust very much married the effect. and dust very much marred the effect "The exposition I think excells our own World's Fair in daintiness of architectural beauty, being distinctly 'Frenchy,' but it is far behind the White city in the grandeur of its outlines as "Being a great lover of nature the country rather than the towns was the chief charm of my entire trip. Of these the rural districts of England, Wales and Norway gave me the most pleas-ure; Wales and England for their endless velvety green lawn-like landscape, and Norway for its vine-clad hills and flords. All this brought me that per-fect rest I was in search of. THINGS MUSICAL.

Of course I was constantly on the pokout for all things musical, my obect being two-fold, the pleasure moment and to obtain general impres-sions of the character and quality of the music of the different nationalities. Each nation I found has its peculiar characteristics, greatly influenced by characteristics, greatly influenced by social and religious customs and habits. In this connection the British isles, in my judgment, are far ahead of the other nations in choral work, Germany excelling in orchestral. Male chorus singing is very much in evidence all over the continent, but mixed-voiced charing is being much neglected. This singing is being much neglected. This leaving out of the female voice results leaving out of the female voice results in a certain lack of delicacy and refinement in their musical work. France and Germany, each with its own school, about equally revel in grand opera, in fact it is recognized as a national institution in both countries. While the German school is the more profound of the two, the French, I think, is the more gorgeous and showy. The poetry of motion plays a great part in French of motion plays a great part in French opera. The English, Welsh and Scotch in reality do not, as a people, indulge much in opera or theatricals, grand opera in London being furnished for a brief season to the upper ten, as is the custom also in New York.

WELSH MALE SINGING.

"Male chorus singing is particularly in vogue in Wales at present, and is of a very high order. The Welsh boys certainly excell all other nations in this particular class of work. Our old com-eptitors at the World's Fair, Tom Stephens and his party and Madam vello Davies and chorus, represented Wales at the Paris exposition great credit, and received the highest award for their spiendid work. Next to the best Welsh male chorus was the Norwegian male chorus. They sing characteristic Norwegian music exclusively.
"The Welsh have done themselves credit in selecting our highly esteemed old friend, Dr. Joseph Parry, to write special works for their national Eisteddfods. This makes the third time he has been selected to write a specia work for these national festivals, and the honor is certainly worthly be stowed, both in the sense of acknowledgement of work already done for the Welsh nation and present ability as a

"I very much regret to say that owing to my somewhat hasty departure for home I was denied the pleasure of a visit with Dr. Parry, My intention was to have sailed for home about the 15th of September, leaving me fully two, weeks in Wales, but the steamer New England, which sailed on August 20th, was the only one I could come home on, and be in time for conference. When pend my time more profitably at home furing the winter months, so I packed for about two months after we landed in England, and he is now in the Nor-wegian mission field, laboring in Chris-tianis. "I had the pleasure of drilling the Pencader mule chorus one night in Wales and of training our Christiania choir for six weeks."

PLANS FOR THE FUTURE. Speaking of his plans for future work. He th premature nt, They that musical instruction ught to be so general and compt the people of Utah that in the near future every man, woman and child ought to have acculred e ability t

RETURNED FROM CANADA.

Presidents Cannon and Smith Pleased With Conditions in the North.

Prolific Crops and Fat Cattle is the Situation There - A Severe Storm.

Presidents George Q. Cannon and Joseph F. Smith returned last evening from a visit of ten days in Canada. longer in the North, but the presence of the railroad people in the city necessituted an early return.

They express themselves as having been greatly pleased with the conditions in that country. The cattle are rolling in flesh, and the crops were never better. Enterprises are being set on foot, and the work on the new railroad is being pushed with vigor. The people there say that they have had rain this season every time they needed it, and perhaps one that was not needed, it being a most severe downpour of rain and wind that lasted from one Thursday until the succeeding Tuesda Presidents Cannon and Smith witness the storm and suffered some inconvenience by it. MISS KNAPPEN'S RECITAL.

Mrs. Effic Dean Knappen gave an enjoyable musical recital last night at the Grand opera house, her pupils being the chief participants, and their renditions proving the successful methods employed by their instructress. Mrs. Knappen was assisted by Miss Mary Olive Gray, who rendered Louis Brarrin's Nocturne op 17 in her usual artistic manner. All the numbers were well rendered, the quartet "Annie Laurie," sung by Miss Connie McAllister, Miss Julia Jones, Miss Emily Larson and Miss Hermes Tyler, being especially good. The house was crowded with friends of the instructress and pupils and the event pronounced an artistic success by all present. chief participants, and their renditions success by all present.
