A NOTABLE OCTOGENARIAN DEAD

Bishop A. H. Raleigh Passed Away at 9:45 This Morning—Was a Master Builder and Erected Many Salt Lake Business Blocks and Residences—A Councilman for Thirty Years.

ALONZO H. RALEIGH.

Ex-Bishop A. H. Raleigh expired at his home in the Nineteenth ward, this morning at 9:45 o'clock. Death came without a struggle after an illness that had endured for only two weeks. This was the first and the last illness that Bishop Raleigh ever suffered, and he had passed the 82nd annual milestone on life's journey. A week ago last Sunday he took to his bed, and was under the necessity of eating the first meal of his life in bed. The attack was in the kidneys and was very aggravated, causing him to suffer intensely at times. Dr. Wilcox, the family physician, urged him to go to the hospital and be subjected to an operation, but he resolutely refused to go. He said that he knew he was going to die, and when the end came he wanted to be under his own roof. So his affliction grew upon him rapidly, and Friday night he lapsed into unconsciousness, remaining in a heavy stupor up to his last breath.

His departure from this mortal sphere removed one of the most active figures in the history of Salt Lake City. He was a man of untiring energy and iron will, and leaves quite a large estate, which he accumulated through his thrift and frugality. The end was not unexpected and while the family felt the grief that accompanies the death of a father, their minds were prepared for the inevitable. He was the father of twenty-five children, nineteen of whom are living. He also had about sixty grand children.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

Alonzo Hazeltine Raleigh was born in Framingham, Hillsborough county, New Hampshire, November 7, 1818. His parents, James L. Raleigh and Susan McCoy, were also natives of the state of New Hampshire. His grandfather, Major Raleigh, was born and raised in Concord, Massachusetts, and he fought in the battle of Lexington. Bishop Raleigh received a fair education in the district schools. But at an early age he left school and labored on a farm until he was fourteen years old, when he was apprenticed to the mason's trade. He was a good bricklayer, and became a master builder.

After learning the mason's trade he went to Boston, where he heard for hours. Several months ago he was attacked by the same disease and had not completely recovered this spring. Physicians in attendance pronounced the patient extremely ill. Mr. Martin, one of the most widely known newspaper men in Utah, and highly popular among stockmen. As secretary of the National Live Stock association he has secured a great record.

DEATH OF MRS. LYLE MILLS.

Mrs. Maggie May Mills, wife of Lyle Mills, died at the Holy Cross hospital yesterday afternoon from an operation that was performed on her one week ago. Mrs. Mills was formerly Miss Mary O'Mara and was born in Kansas City about twenty-eight years ago. She was married about six years ago and had lived in Salt Lake about eight months. Her parents are residing in Fort Smith, Arkansas. The funeral was held this afternoon.

FUNERAL OF VAN ALSTINE.

The funeral of Charles Van Alstine, the veteran soldier and mining man, was held yesterday afternoon from the First Methodist church under the auspices of the G. A. R. Opening prayer was made by Rev. Joel A. Smith, and the funeral service was read by Rev. Richard Wake. A few eulogistic remarks were made by Col. M. M. Kain, who had known the deceased for many years. The choir sang a hymn and a casket was borne to the hearse and the cortege, headed by Field's band, moved to Second South and State where the members of the G. A. R. took cars for the cemetery where the interment was made in the G. A. R. plot. The old soldiers conducted the services at the grave, where taps were sounded by the members of the Twenty-third Infantry, and three volleys were fired over the grave.

the first time a sermon preached by a Mormon Elder. He shortly after was baptized into the Church by Elder George J. Adams, the celebrated actor. In the spring of 1843 he went to Nauvoo, and was there at the time of the assassination of the Prophet Joseph Smith and his brother Hyrum. He there read a passage from the 11th chapter of the Acts of the Apostles, relating to Paul's visit to Athens and his sermon on Mars hill, in which he alluded to the inscription on the Athenian altar, "To the unknown God," and of his testimony of the personality of God. The central thought of Christian faith and pagan practice is the existence of a supreme being, for every man has born with him a conception of some supreme, overruling power, let him call it whatever he may. The philosopher and the scientist have to admit of the existence of such a power. One of the most popular systems of the day, Agnosticism, the doctrine of "We don't know," of negation, but not of absolute denial. The speaker said that it was the doctrine of laziness and cowardice. It is true that we do not know everything, but as you know it, you are not a philosopher. The speaker said that it was the doctrine of laziness and cowardice. It is true that we do not know everything, but as you know it, you are not a philosopher.

In the spring of 1851, Bishop Raleigh was appointed by President Young to take charge of the mason department of the public works, a position he held until the works were suspended during the military history of Utah. He has served his city in the capacity of law maker, superintendent of public construction on public buildings, officer in the Nauvoo Legion, and as an ecclesiastical officer. He was a member of the constitutional convention, and assisted in the formulation of the organic law of the state. He was in his 83rd year when he died, and for the last few years his old age has limited his sphere of activity. He was strong and rugged, after the manner of the New Hampshire hills, where he first beheld the light of day. He is survived by two wives and nineteen children.

ALVIRAS PRATT INJURED.

Struck a Pole While on a Rapid Transit Car.

Alviras Pratt of 565 State street, proprietor of the "Old Arm Chair," resort was severely injured Saturday night while going to his home. He was standing on the platform of a Rapid Transit car which was in rapid motion when he struck a pole. He fell to the ground in an unconscious condition and was picked up and carried to his home. Dr. A. S. Bower was summoned and found that Pratt had sustained a severe wound about the head, and a severe bruise on his body over the liver. While his injuries are very severe, his condition is not regarded as dangerous.

AGUST ANDERSON BETTER.

Improvement in Condition of Little Boy Who Fell Out of a Tree.

Gust Anderson, the nine-year-old boy who fell out of a tree on Saturday afternoon, is a little better. His skull was fractured and Dr. Dehle removed portions of it, and since the operation he has been gradually recovering. It was first thought that he could not live, but he is now considered out of danger.

THUG WAS MURDEROUS.

J. G. Schneider Has an Exciting Early Morning Experience.

J. G. Schneider, of the Clipper saloon, reported to the police that he had been the target for a footpad about 2 o'clock yesterday morning while on his way home. He says he was met by the thug at the corner of Fifth South and Temple street, and was commanded to throw up his hands. He showed fight and the robber fired at him, but he was bad and Schneider escaped unhurt.

Mr. W. J. Baxter of North Brook, N. C., says he suffered with piles for fifteen years. He tried many remedies with no results until he used Dr. Witt's Which Hazel Salve, and that quickly cured him.—F. C. Schramm.

REMARKS BY DR. TALMAGE.

Elder Seymour B. Young Tells How Abraham Lincoln Fulfilled Prophecies of Joseph Smith.

The services in the Tabernacle yesterday afternoon were presided over by President Angus M. Cannon and were opened by the choir singing the hymn, "How Are Thy Servants Blest, Oh, Lord?"

The invocation was offered by Elder William Asper, and the services were continued by the choir singing the hymn, "Prayer is the Soul's Sincere Desire."

The first speaker was Elder James E. Talmage, and he prefaced his remarks by saying that he had always thought that if one's mind were not directed otherwise by the spirit of God, it was proper to begin an address to the Saints by reading from the Bible. He therefore read a passage from the 11th chapter of the Acts of the Apostles, relating to Paul's visit to Athens and his sermon on Mars hill, in which he alluded to the inscription on the Athenian altar, "To the unknown God," and of his testimony of the personality of God. The central thought of Christian faith and pagan practice is the existence of a supreme being, for every man has born with him a conception of some supreme, overruling power, let him call it whatever he may. conspicuous part was the warning that the former made to Stephen A. Douglas, then rising young attorney in Illinois. The statement made to Douglas was in substance that he would some day aspire to the presidency of the United States, but if he ever turned against the "Mormon" people he would never be elected. The time came that Stephen A. Douglas arose in a convention and inveighed against the "Mormon" people most bitterly. In 1859 Mr. Douglas was a candidate for the presidency of the United States in competition with Abraham Lincoln and others, but as the world knows, Mr. Douglas was defeated, Lincoln was elected by an overwhelming majority and thus in him was fulfilled the prophecy made to Stephen A. Douglas. Elder Young spoke for some time of the power that was held by Napoleon Bonaparte at the beginning of the 19th century when he threatened to be not only the emperor of France but of all Europe. But God decreed otherwise. The nations remained liberal and the Gospel has been preached in them and thousands of people have been gathered out of them. In concluding the speaker stated that those who were selecting the names to grace the Hall of Fame had neglected the greatest name of the nineteenth century—Joseph Smith. He also eulogized Brigham Young and his achievements, in bringing the people into a most forbidding land. After some remarks on the condition of this country at that time he testified that Joseph Smith was a prophet of God.

The choir sang the anthem, "When Thou Comest to Thy Judgment," the solo being sung by Mrs. Lizzie Thomas Edward. The benediction was pronounced by Patriarch John Smith.
