CALIFORNIA JANE, A NOTORIOUS BLACK HILL CHARACTER, AND WHO AT VARIOUS TIMES LIVED IN RAWLINS, WYOMING, IS REPORTEDLY A GAMBLER AND LIVES IN SOUTHERN MONTANA.

Captain John, a notorious Black Hill character, and who at various times lived in Rawlins, Wyoming, is reportedly a gambler and lives in Southern Montana.

Captain John saved a daughter of Mrs. Olson from a perilous situation last week, says the "Central Examiner." He was in town, and riding a mule outside the horse stable, and when he got off his seat, hit her dress around on his turn she held her fast, went down over her. Mr. Olson was passing the saddle shop, and heard the capture, but he did not stop and tried to hold her until he could not manage her easily. The only way for him to save the girl was by cutting loose of her and carrying her down hill, and he promptly did so. If you will wish to see what saddles they should do and how to ride clothes-pins feather like them.

Capt. Wilson, acting Indian agent at the Sanpete agency in the southeastern part of the state, has been having no high-traited warfare with the Indians since last fall. Capt. Wilson, however, has the right to work on that part of the reservation occupied by the Arapahoe tribe with a view to the allotment of lands to individual Indians.

Sharp New set of rules have been adopted by Capt. Wilson, that the Indians did not care to take into account.
