The Co aborigines at first thought slightly lemented, as they had not felt any shock of earthquake. It was not their turn to become excited. As the eruption grew to such large di-mensions it appeared as though the crater must have filled up. It was estimated to be about a thousand feet deep from the summit when last visited. The view was such as impressed ine with profound feel-ings of awe, and caused me to trem-ble at the power that was displayed, as it was sure to bring destruction somewhere, and none knew where the blow would strike.
