NEWS OF THE WEST.

Idaho Sheepmen Propose to Wait on the Wool Question.

THREE NEW INDUSTRIES IN A MINE.

Last Spring a Blizzard—A Cross Man's Misfortune.—Gossip. Press Epidemic.

Sanitarium is reported to be projected at Boise, Idaho.

Black Diamond, Wyo., is about to issue a $10,000 city bull.

Four hundred car loads of fat cattle are ready to be shipped out of Lovell, Big Horn county, Wyo., this spring.

A lot of Lovell people went to Cheyenne from the effects of what they thought Coca-Cola, to a man.

Three Flathead Indians have been severely injured by falling coal in the Union Pacific mines at Carbon, Wyo.

Prospecting for coal at Aspen, Colo., continues, with the result of finding several veins, some very good ones.

Alkali has sold as high as $12 a ton in Green Junction, Colo., this spring, and the farmers rejoice to plant more large crops.

In view of the number of mining claims sure to be sold soon at Cripple Creek days, the District pole exclusively for the establishment of a police force.

Cities are here at Crested Butte, Colo., are incorporated, and the Gazette-Record asserts, would not take notice of several weeks, has started in with an order of twenty-one car loads a week.

A number of banks of steam are reported to have crossed the Black river into this county, says the Gunnison (Colo.) Gazette, and it is suspected that some of them are thieves.

The stockmen of Bingham and Fremont counties will meet at Idaho Falls on May 1st to devise means for the sale of their wool to the best advantage of all concerned.

The county commissioners of Storey county, Nevada, have ordered an addition erected to their county jail, and when provision for vagrants and others sentenced to serve road work upon the streets and be shackled with a ball and chain.

The sheep herders of the Chehalis-Centre valley, says the Fort Gamble (Wash.) Gazette, are asking a good deal of surrounding those days for help. The supply is running short, and some of the herders are compelled to stop their bands owing to the lack of help and chain.

A dispatch from Casper, Wyo., says it is known now that two more lives were lost during the blizzard of March 18. The bodies of Conrad Dailey and Martin Kittenbach have been found. A. O. Hoacke and Edward Merrill are still missing. Merrill is the son of Police Merrill, of Hawkins. Searching parties are now looking for them.

The Gardiner Tribune states that wood drives are running all over the Sun Lake valley. In some localities the acreage of grain will not be as large as last year and in other localities it will be larger, so that the general average will be about the same. Many are putting in large crops of potatoes, alfalfa and peas and will give more attention to stock—especially to hogs.

The country adjacent to the town of Palisade, in the upper Grande valley, says the Grand Junction Star-News, is coming to the front as a fruit region. Many acres of small fruits have been made this spring, and in every instance the purchaser has set about preparing for grapes and ordering the vines to make no short in the leading industry of Grand valley.

A crazy Finn was found on Monday afternoon by William Daley about three miles west of Rawlins, Wyo. He was without coat or hat, his body badly scratched and one eye swollen shut. He was brought to town and placed in jail. He formerly worked in No. 3 mine, Hot Springs, and mother for Hoyhowtzky, a neighboring ranger, and got lost. He gives his name as Knot Swiggs so as what became of his coat and hat or how he was injured.

The range in this valley is at least a month ahead of last year, and everywhere there is a thrifty growth of fresh young grass, which furnishes abundance of feed for sheep and cattle, and they are beginning to take to the hills and plains. This from the Durango (Colo.) Sun. They already show a marked improvement in flesh the past two weeks. The daily rains and snow squalls help forward this state of affairs very materially.

It is more than probable that another locality of the last storm will soon be reported, observes the Bannister (Wyo.) Gazette. George Lambert, of Casper, Wyo., son of Charles Dorset, ornament, was employed in carrying the mail from Belle Fourche to Sundance and Camp Creek, near the Short Pine hills. He started out with the mail the first day of the storm, and has not since been received of him some saying Belle Fourche. A search party has discovered the mail wagon in a snow drift, but found no signs of the driver.

The plans that have been decided upon for the building of Fort Harrison were prepared in the quartermaster-general's office at Washington, instead of the Helena (Mont.) department. The plans for the water supply and sewerage, which were prepared under the direction of Captain Hunt, have not yet been approved by the Washington people, and until that is done nothing can be done in regard to them. It is expected that at the latest Capitola Hays will be at work on the construction of the post not later than July 1st.

The number of men furnished with work by the city bureau of charities, says the Portland (Wash.) Oregonian, is rapidly growing smaller since the weather cleared. There used to be 200 men daily at work on the west end of Jefferson street, and they have cleared one lot there, which is now ready for sowing to lawn grass. Now the number is reduced to about 100, and the force of two mills being worked, men are given six hours' work per day. This will enable the most in get a little ahead, and perhaps do thereafter out for starting all to work for more reasonable employment.

John Cuddy and Gerry Shaw loaded four carloads of cattle at Weiser last week for Troutdale, Ore., near the Walnut (Idaho) Signal. They were all
