Milling Machinery from Mexico

CONSUL-GENERAL C. HANNA of Monterey writes that it will doubtless be of interest to people in the United States to learn that Mexico has begun to export machinery, concerning which the Torreón Star says:
Something out of the ordinary took place at Durango a few days ago, when from that city an article manufactured there was sent to Austin, Tex. This is probably the first exportation to the United States of machinery originated and manufactured in Mexico, and may open a new era. A Durango concern recently began the manufacture of middlings mills and nixtall mills. It is said that the middlings mill is destined to supplant many stands of rolls in flour mills, because, it is claimed, it does the same amount of work with one-fourth of the power, and with the additional advantage that it does work no rolls can do and solves the problem which vexes all mills, that of grinding sharp middlings. It is believed that the invention will become a big factor in the flour-mill industry of the world.
The nixtall mill is having a big sale. These mills are designed so that each will properly fulfill its own peculiar sphere in the grinding business. With the combination of the two they are said to be unexcelled for grinding food products such as middlings, nixtall, splices, malt, cotton-seed meal, salt, sugar, chile, coffee, etc.
An Austin company recently placed an order for some of these mills. The Austin concern produces 20,000 cans of chile con carne and 10,000 cans of tamales every day, and its manager comes to Mexico to purchase from first hand chile and beans. While in Durango he saw the mills mentioned above and gave an order for a shipment to be sent to Austin.
We can fill orders promptly.

Walker's

Another Walker innovation.

Beginning Monday morning, May 6, 1907, and continuing thereafter, Walker Bros. Dry Goods Co. will open mornings at 8:30 a. m. instead of 8 a. m., as has been the custom heretofore.

On account of many employees living a long distance out, our city growing, the distance still greater for the salespeople in the near future, and as business does not begin, making it necessary to open before 8:30 mornings, we have decided upon this change, another step in the advancement of liberality and welfare work, without any inconvenience to the public, feeling that the trade in general will be pleased with this progressive movement, when it is taken into consideration that no class of workers have longer hours than the salespeople behind the counters, and in the manufacturing departments.

Out of all the salespeople employed in department stores, 90 per cent are women.

This 30 minutes extra lessens the day's hardship.

Monday morning we open at 8:30.
