

MRS. MAE WILLIS FILES HER ANSWER

Wife of Attorney for Oregon
Short Line Admits Almost Everything Set Forth.

DENIES BUT ONE PARAGRAPH

Says Her Relatives Did Not Board at Husband's Expense and Did Not Threaten His Mental Security.

Mrs. Willis, wife of John G. Willis, attorney for the Oregon Short Line Railroad company, who on May 12 filed suit in the district court for divorce from her on the ground of cruelty, today filed her answer in the Third district court. Plaintiff admits everything set forth in the complaint, including the allegation that plaintiff is engaged in the business of an attorney and counselor at law, and that because of his employment and because of the particular class of work allotted to him he is constantly under great mental strain, and that he is peculiarly sensitive disposition, and that he has maintained himself and family apart from his home since last November, and that he has visited the family without resuming marital relations; but the complaint denies the allegations contained in paragraph four of the complaint, that defendant for many years prior to Nov. 1, 1907, did maintain contrary to the desire and wish of plaintiff, certain members of her family in plaintiff's home, at plaintiff's expense, and the presence of which said members of the family was calculated to and did interrupt the peace and domestic life of plaintiff's home, making life unbearable for plaintiff and impossible for him to occupy his said home, for which reason plaintiff asks the court to decree divorce. Defendant in her answer asks that plaintiff's complaint be dismissed and that defendant have such relief as the court may deem just and equitable.

SIBYL ANSWERS CHARLES.

In Brief Marital Experience She Has Had Her Troubles.

Sibyl Watterson has filed a cross-complaint and answer to her husband's suit for divorce in the Third district court. The Wattersons were married May 15, and after a storm-swept honeymoon of 40 days the husband appeared before the court with the statement that Mrs. W. had taken unwarranted liberties with his countenance with her flirts, and that she had "buffeted" him about to the extent that he could stand it no longer and asked for a divorce. Mrs. Watterson in her cross-complaint and answer denies all the allegations made by her husband; says that he has failed to support her during their brief married life, although he earns $25 per week; that he has been cruel to her, alleging that on June 25, he struck her with his fists and pushed her against some chairs and a table, and that she was at different times called her vile and obscene names and used threatening language toward her. Mrs. Watterson asks that she be given a decree of divorce, her former name of Hastings be restored to her, and for $75 attorney's fees.

ADMITTED TO THE BAR.

The following applicants were admitted to the bar of the supreme court this morning, the first named two after examination by the state committee, and the two last named presenting certificates from other states. J. F. Bowman and Charles A. Morris of Salt Lake City, and William A. Brittain of Indiana and Clement L. Wilson of Nebraska.

SUES RAILWAY COMPANIES.

The Home Fire Insurance company of New York has filed suit in the Third district court against the Rio Grande Western and Copper Belt line for $2,948.00 for damages alleged to have been done to the compressor plant and blacksmith shop owned by the Utah Copper company at Bingham. The complaint alleges the buildings were burned by fires caused by sparks flying from the engines of the Copper belt line, which are claimed to have been defective.

CHIEF AND KING SHIP.

The Lead King in the Duck Creek district, about 18 miles north, has commenced shipping high grade lead ore to the local smelter. It is expected that regular shipments will be made from it during the summer. The Lead Chief, adjoining the King, and belonging to the same interests, is also shipping to the local smelters.

JULY 4 VACATION.

Practically all the properties in the state are going to give their men a week's vacation on account of the Fourth of July. The United States company's properties are out with announcements that they will be closed down from July 4 to 10.

DENATURED ALCOHOL PLANT FOR FARMERS

(Special to the "News.")
Omaha, Neb., July 2.—Under the direction of Secy. of Agriculture James Wilson, a model denatured alcohol plant is being built in Washington, which will probably make alcohol from more different materials and in more widely separated localities than any similar plant which will be built in a good many years.
This plant is to be "Tama Jim's" traveling fuel maker and it is estimated that in the next two years the secretary of agriculture will be able to show 500,000 farmers how to make denatured alcohol from waste products of the farm.
The plan is to build this alcohol plant in Washington and move it to the great national exposition and later it will make a whirlwind trip around the country to state fairs and other meetings where the largest number of farmers can see the simple process of making something just as good as the "civilized drug-gasoline" for power and fuel purposes.
The first visit of the denatured alcohol plant and the government experts who will travel with it, will be to the National Corn exposition, which is to be held in Omaha Dec. 9 to 19, and will have an estimated attendance of 300,000 farmers. From Omaha it will go to one or two agricultural colleges and then across the Rocky mountains to Seattle, where it will make alcohol out of everything from furs from Alaska to fish skins from the Columbia river, at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition, which opens there next June.
Congress has appropriated $10,000 for the denatured alcohol demonstration, and Secy. Wilson has written to J. Wilkes Jones, manager of the National Corn exposition, asking that 1,250 square feet of floor space be reserved for his traveling alcohol plant.

ELKS WILL BOOST UTAH.

To the annual convention of Elks, which is to be held at Dallas, Texas, beginning July 12, Salt Lake lodge No. 85 will send W. J. Cooper, R. R. Cleveland and Parley P. Christensen, all past exalted rulers. A. L. Hestmark and Judge Horn will represent Ogden. Thomas Fennell will go from Provo, and Secy. Wilson has written to J. Wilkes Jones, manager of the National Corn exposition, asking that 1,250 square feet of floor space be reserved for his traveling alcohol plant.

JUNE WEATHER.

The local weather office issues the following summary for the month of June, just passed: It shows the highest temperature during the month to be 90 degrees, occurring on the 25th; lowest temperature during month, 40 degrees, occurring on the 3rd; average maximum temperature, 71.5 degrees; average minimum temperature, 49.8 degrees; number of cloudy days, 7; number of partly cloudy days, 8; number of clear days, 15; number of days with 100 per cent of sunshine, 8; number of days on which 1 of an inch or more of precipitation occurred, 12; total precipitation during month, 1.73 inches, which is 1.06 inches above normal; excess of precipitation since the first of the year, 2.22 inches; prevailing direction of the wind, southeast; hourly velocity of the wind, 6.6 miles.

SERGEANT HEMPEL FIGHT PROMOTER

Policeman-Patriot Matches His Bull Dog Against Peterson Prodigy.

COMBAT HELD IN JAIL YARD

Secretary-Clerk-Sleuth Sees His Pet
Go Down in Defeat After Hard Battle.

The spectacle of a police sergeant who longs to be a police lieutenant as a reward for his "American" patriotism presiding at a dog fight, was seen this morning in the rear of the police station. Added to the official flavor given the dog fight, by the presence of the sergeant, was the presence of Carl Peterson, a sort of clerk and pseudo sleuth attached to the office of Chief of Police Tom Pitt. Both the sergeant and the secretary-clerk-sleuth are owners of bull dogs. Peterson was of the opinion that his dog could out-general Hempel's canine in a combat royal. So persistent did Peterson's opinion become and so galling were they to Hempel that Peterson's challenge was accepted by Hempel in behalf of his dog. This morning, after the arrests had been brought together in the rear of police headquarters, they were permitted to glare at each other and exchange growling salutations. When anger became sufficiently stirred both Peterson and Hempel "slipped" their dogs, and the fight was on.

Then chaos reigned. Splitting the ear drums of prison inmates and scaring the fire department horses almost into a frenzy, the equalizing barking and growling of the dogs let everyone know within a wide radius that a dog fight was on, and no mistake about it. Biting at times higher than the pitch of the siren, the dogs were the shouts of jubilation coming from the big throat of the police sergeant. To punctuate his approval of the conduct of his dog, Hempel planted with some display of ardor his generous feet upon the concrete jail yard. The punishment was highly suggestive of the bass drum used by the Salvation Army in its street meetings. Within the heart of the police sergeant, hereafter thought to be of the tender variety, there must be something that glows at the sight of a display of brute strength and animal ferocity; for, the teeth of his dog plunged into the flesh of his opponent, Hempel shouted with great glee, Hempel's dog was winning its fight and hence the gleeful shouts.

DIPLOMATIC RETREAT.
Meanwhile Peterson, whose dog was coming out second best in the contest, was much chagrined. He was fighting a dog to take all it could stand, however, and made no attempt to stop the fight. The dog, however, being possessed of a degree of intelligence highly characteristic to find in a member of the lower orders in the animal kingdom, seemed to understand an oft repeated bit of sagacity running, "He who fights and runs away." The phase caught the dog's fancy and if Hempel's dog had been a dog of that ilk, it would have lamed in the hay loft of the fire department, whither Peterson's dog fled. Bleeding and beyond a doubt beaten, Peterson's dog gave up. Thereupon Hempel was smiling and his dog was strutting towards his bull dog. Had the dog been able to understand the sergeant's lingo—and it would take quite a dog to do that—it would have been its fighting qualities praised to the high vaulted heavens.

PEACE RESTORED.
The fight over and Hempel's dog the winner, Hempel resumed his duty as a guardian of the public peace. Doubtless he encountered on the streets later in the day a pair of men who were promoting a dog fight, he promptly would have arrested them and hauled them to the police station to answer to the charge of promoting a dog fight. The police station is a place of ante-luncheon review of law breakers. As it is, Hempel is making his rounds this afternoon wearing a smile broad as his own face, and feeling that he is pretty much of a policeman. With Hempel, he is much like the owner of the ox told of by Aesop, it all depends upon who owns the dogs that are fighting.

No announcement to the effect has been made, but it is presumed in the anyone having a dog that can fight and who, because of police activities, has been unable to pull off a contest, may no do so. Sergeant Hempel may wish his dog against all comers for a contest to be waged in the jailyard, where Hempel will guarantee that no official interference will be met.

DELEGATES' SPECIAL.

It Will Leave Over the Short Line at 5 p. m. Sunday Afternoon.

The matter of which route the Democrats will take in going to Denver has been completely settled, and the official train will be the Short Line special leaving July 5, Sunday, at 5 p. m. It is scheduled for a 20-hour run straight through to Denver, to arrive there Sunday at 1 p. m. State Chairman Martineau, who was delegated to choose the route as head of the transportation committee, selected this train, and his selection has been endorsed by meeting of the delegation. Alternate Fitzgerald, who was quoted as organizing a rival excursion, has now made four reservations in the Martineau train.

When asked whether he thought Dubois would be able to get recognition in the Democratic platform, State Chairman Martineau declared that he thought this extremely unlikely.

RESORT THIEF CAUGHT.

Deputy Sheriff Claude Russell arrested a man giving the name of Harry Wilson at Saltair yesterday afternoon for robbing a thoroughbred. Complaint had been made that some thief was playing his vacation, and Wilson's actions directed suspicion towards him. When searched, he had in his possession a gold watch, a knife and $250 cash that had been lost by a bathier only a short time before. A valuable fob that had been attached to the watch was missing. Wilson spent the night in the county jail.
