QUESTION OF JURISDICTION.

ment of Lower Tribunal.

The question of jurisdiction in transitory cases was again decided by the supreme court yesterday afternoon in an opiniou in the case of Frank Sani-poll, appellant, vs the Pleasant Valley Coal company in which the judgment of the lower court is reversed and the demurrer ordered overruled and the ac tion proceeded with according to law. The case was brought in this county to recover damages for personal injuries alleged to have been received by plaintiff in Carbon county. A demurrer was filed by defendant co

the ground that the court did not have jurisdiction either of the subject mat-ter of the action or of the defendant. Judge Ritchie sustained the demurrer and dismissed plaintiff's complaint, whereupon plaintiff appealed to the supreme court Justice Straup wrote the opinion of the court in which it is held that the constitution of Utah does not change the common law rule in regard to jur sdiction but merely announces what the common law is on that matter and that transitory actions may be brought in any jurisdiction where the defe ant can be served with process. The rule as laid down by the opinion is that a cause of action follows the per-son of defendant wherever he may be served. The lower court is odered to overrule the demurrer and reinstate the case and proceed in accordance with law. Justice McCarty concurs in the opinion, but Chief Justice Bartch dissonts.
