"THE COMPLIMENTS OF THE

THE great holiday of Christendom the day on which is celebrated the advent into this world of the grandest being who ever trod the earth in the garb of humanity, will have come and gone before another issue of this paper. We therefore take the present opportunity of wishing our readers and friends "the compliments of the season."

Christmas in Utah is observed as a time of rejoicing and merry-making, of re-unions and gifts, of thanksgiving and praise, of forgiveness and of the civilized world. The "Mormons" are pre-eminently a social people, a community of families. The home influence is more extensive among them in proportion to ther numbers than anywhere else. They are more closely connected by family ties than any other people relationship by marriage linking them together almost completely into one great and ever growing family. Thus everybody among them has relatives, and none need lack a place in some home circle when the Christmas feast is smoking on the board, and innocent pleasure makes the house reverberate with gladness.

This has been a prosperous year Agriculture and commerce, each aiding the other, have both been prolific of profit and increase. Therefore Christmas is hailed with greater joy than usual. It is plain, from a part of the cor-respondence, that the Herald cor-further observations just as Scoville respondent has been misinformed in relation to the woman suffrage act passed in Utah in 1870. He refers to it as "perhaps as extraordinary an enactment as was ever placed on the statute books of a Territory or State," And no wonder, for he quotes it as follows:
