STYLING AND JOURNALING

I have found the argument used that men were made to buy their killing, or not avoid the same chance as the non-Moravian soldiers. This is the foundation of the error. It is not right to say that the Moravians lost their lives for their God. The various world and God himself do pay something of the price of the lives as given by his constant company with the man. He does not choose the few who would sacrifice of this kind to do as he will have to him. But the experience of the latter-day Saints con-

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY

At 11:30 A.M. today a small flock of 10-12 birds was seen feeding on the surface of a large pond in the field near the entrance to the station. The birds had a dark blue-black head and neck, a yellow bill and legs, and a white breast and belly. They were feeding on the surface of the pond, which was covered with a layer of green algae. The birds were seen to be feeding on the surface of the pond, which was covered with a layer of green algae. The birds were seen to be feeding on the surface of the pond, which was covered with a layer of green algae.

Other of these findings of income polarization were that the U.S. income distribution was more polarized with regard to the nonwhite race than to the white race, and that the income polarization was more pronounced in the nonwhite race than in the white race.

EXTRACTS FROM

Bank Examiner Anderson's Report.

Salt Lake City, Aug., 16, 1899.

JAMES T. HAMMOND,
Secretary of State

Dear Sir—I made a thorough examination of the condition of the Home Fire Insurance Company as shown by its books on June 30, 1939. The company is carefully and conservatively managed. Its risks are widely distributed. It limits its writings to the better class of lines, and it has reinsurance contracts with the Hartford Fire Insurance Co., and the North British and Mercantile Insurance Co., two of the strongest insurance concerns in the world.

Its risks in city blocks are limited. It pays no large salaries, and is careful in charging against itself a larger amount as unearned premium fund, (reinsurance reserve) than it is called upon to do. In nearly every instance, the book values of the Company (except the Salt Lake real estate) are below the market values, and figuring on the latter as a basis of values, this Company would have a substantial surplus over and above its liabilities of more than $25,000.00.

R. R. ANDERSON,
Examiner.
