FORESTRY IN JAPAN.

Just at the time this country is beginning to struggle with the problem of husbanding its forest resources, of protecting its mountain sloopes, and of improving the water-ways, it is interesting to know that the Japanese have successfully attacked the same prob-lem, before the land suffered severely successfully attacked the same prob-lem, before the land suffered severely from evil effects following deforestation. The farsighted people of Nippon have foreseen the results of the destruction of their extensive mountain forests, and mave safeguarded themselves by placing all of these under government control. The practice of forestry has been carried on in Japan for a longer time than in any other country. For 1,200 years the people of Japan have been planting and growing forests, with a success that has been a little short of marvelous. Under careful minagement, the Japanese forests yield very high financial returns. This high yield is only made possible by the close utili-zation of every bit of the tree so that scarcely a twig is wasted, and by the improvement of the growth of their for-ests by carefully conducted thinning and tending. The woods are first thin-ned at the age of thirteen years, and time of the final harvest, at 120 years. It was with the opening up of the hitherto inaccessible mountain forests that the Japanese government became most intensely interested in forestry. The mountains were still government land, so all that was necessary to pro-teen them was to place proper restric-tions on the sale and cutting of tim-

Finneral will be announced later. Needs Instant Attention—A lady residing near the Lafayette school, whose children are in the habit of playing in the City Creek culvert, brings word to the "News" that mothers in that locality are greatly worried to see that the bars of iron which are supposed to be placed over the tunnel which conveys the water under ground from the opening 12 front of the school, are out of place, and that the children can obtain en-trance there as freely as ever. In view of the fact that a jury recently awarded damages against the city for the death of a child which occurred through the same bars being mis-placed, is would seem as though the water department, or some other de-partment abould give the matter im-mediate attention. The place is a vertitable death trap for children, as bas been sadly proven in the past. has been sadly proven in the past.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ORGANIZED. First Social in New School Building

-Work Begins on New Canal.

Special Correspondence Special Correspondence. Burton, Millard Co., Nov. 14.—Unfore-seen delays made it impossible to get water into the new canals at Burtner early enough last spring to plant crops at that time, but fail grain that was planted and alfalfa put in during the late summer, after the can's were filled with water, are doing well. While these crops are not very extensive they, with the many hundreds of acres cleared and ready for planting, show that a great transformation has been made here during the last year.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ORGANIZED.

The Burtner Sunday school was re-cently organized with W. E. Bunker as superintendent. The Sunday school has been held at the home of E. W. Jef-fery up to the present, but tomorrow it will be held in the new schoolhouse that has been recently completed. The public school will open Monday morn-ing.

public school will open Monday morn-ing. Friday evening practically all the peo-ple of Burtner attended the first party given in the new schoolhouse. Among those present were people from every town in Millard county, some from Dixie, some from Wayne county in fact, nearly every section of our own state was represented, and there were some present from neighboring states. Mr. H. S. Cahoon of Deseret, chair-man of the board of county commis-sioners, and Mr. C. W. Hopkins of Kanosh, also Mr. George W. Nixon of Holden, the other members of the board.

The mountains were still government land, so all that was necessary to pro-tect them was to place proper restric-tions on the sale and cutting of tim-ber. This was effected by declaring the orests on the steep slopes as reserv-d forests, in which the only cutting should done under government direc-tion. '1... forests on agricultural lands not neceed for protection, are classed as available forests, and here the cut-ting is not so carefully restricted. Thus Japan has effectually prevented the stripping of her mountain slopes before any great damage has been done. In some districts, where the mountains are near the towns, the steep slopes have been elgared, and this has re-sulted in floods and the washing down of the soll from the slopes on to the farm lands. But these cases have been exceptional, and have merely served as a waring, which Japan has heeded be-fore it was too hate to prevent wide-spread destruction.
