From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

The majority of the ills of the human body arise from a derangement of the Liver, affecting both the stomach and bowels. In order to effect a cure, it is necessary to remove the cause. Irregular and Sluggish action of the Bowels, Headache, Sickness at the Stomach, Pain in the Back and Loins, etc., indicate that the Liver is at fault, and that nature requires assistance to enable this organ to throw off impurities.

Prickly Ash Bitters are especially compounded for this purpose. They are mild in their action and effective as a cure; are pleasant to the taste and taken easily by both children and adults. Taken according to directions, they are a safe and pleasant cure for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Habitual Constipation, Diseased Kidneys, etc., etc. As a Blood Purifier they are superior to any other medicine; cleansing the system thoroughly, and imparting new life and energy to the invalid. It is a medicine and not an intoxicating beverage.

EVENING NEWS.

Friday, - December 19, 1884.

A DROVER'S STORY.

My name is Anthony Hunt. I am a drover, and live miles and miles away upon the western prairie. There wasn't a house in sight when I first moved there, my wife and I, and now we have not many neighbors, though those we have are good ones.

One day, about ten years ago, I went away from home to sell some fifty head of cattle—fine creatures as I ever saw. I was to buy some groceries and dry goods before I came back, and above all a doll for our youngest, Dolly. She had never had a store doll of her own—only rag babies her mother had made her.

Dolly could talk of nothing else, and went down to the very gate to call after me to get a big one. Nobody but a parent can understand how full my mind was of that toy, and how, when the cattle were sold, the first thing I hurried off to buy was Dolly's doll. I found a large one with eyes that would open and shut when you pulled a wire, and had it wrapped up in a paper and tucked it under my arm, while I had the parcels of calico and delaine and tea and sugar put up. Then, late as it was, I started for home. It might have been more prudent to stay until morning, but I felt anxious to get back and hear Dolly's eager praise about her doll.

I was mounted on a steady-going old horse and pretty well loaded. Night set in before I was a mile from town, and settled down as dark as pitch while I was in the middle of the darkest bit of road I know of. I could have felt my way, though, I remembered it so well; and when the storm that had been brewing broke, and pelted the rain in torrents, I was five miles or may be six from home.

I rode as fast as I could, but all of a sudden I heard a little cry like a child's voice. I stopped short and listened. I heard it again. I called and it answered me. I couldn't see a thing; all was as dark as pitch. I got down and felt around in the grass—called again, and again was answered. Then I began to wonder. I'm not timid, but I was known to be a drover and to have money about me. It might be a trap to catch me unawares and rob and murder me. I am not superstitious, not very, but how could a real child be out on the prairie in such a night, at such an hour! It might be more than human. The bit of a coward that hides itself in most men showed itself to me then; but once more I heard the cry, and said I:

"If any man's child is hereabouts Anthony Hunt is not the man to let it die."

I searched again. At last I bethought me of a hollow under the hill and groped that way. Sure enough I found a little dripping thing that moaned and sobbed as I took it in my arms. I called my horse, the beast came to me and I mounted and tucked the little soaked thing under my coat as well as I could, promising to take it home to mamma. It seemed so tired, and pretty soon cried itself to sleep on my bosom.

It had slept there over an hour when I saw my own windows. There were lights in them, and I supposed my wife had lit them for my sake, but when I got into the doorway I saw something was the matter, and stood still, with a dread fear of heart, five minutes before I could lift the latch. At last I did it, and saw the room full of neighbors, and my wife amid them, weeping. When she saw me she hid her face.

"Oh, don't tell him," she said, it will kill him?"

"What is it, neighbors?" I cried.

"Nothing now, I hope. What's that you have in your arms?"

"A poor lost child," said I. "I found it on the road. Take it, will you? I've turned faint." And I lifted the sleeping thing and saw the face of my own child, my Dolly.

It was my own darling, and none other, that I had picked up on the drenched road. My little child had wandered out to meet papa and the doll while the mother was at work, and they had lamented her as one dead. I thanked heaven on my knees before them.

It is not much of a story, neighbors, but I think of it often in the nights and wonder how I could bear to live now if I had not stopped when I heard the cry for help upon the road, hardly louder than a squirrels chirp.

That's Dolly yonder with her mother in the meadow—a girl worth saving—I think (but, then, I'm her father, and partial, maybe) the prettiest and sweetest thing this side of the Mississippi.—Chicago News.

Education in Turkey.

The demand for higher education is spreading apace all over the globe, and even the indolent Turks are awaking to the fact which their neighbors, the Russians, long ago put into a proverb—"Knowledge is light, ignorance darkness." The government objects naturally, for when the light comes the darkness flies away, and if there be darkness embodied anywhere it is in the sublime porte.

But in spite of the government 102 students have been instructed during the years 1883-4 at the Central Turkey college at Aintab—a kind of Robert college for Asia Minor. They were gathered from all the principal towns of European and central Asia, and belonged to all classes of society, most of them of course being Christians and Armenians. Of these, 34 students have paid a portion of their expenses by working as servants or teaching in the preparatory department. Surely western students might take a leaf out of the book of their Oriental brethren.

Another sigh n of the advancement of civilization in Turkey is the fact that a printing press has recently been introduced into Aintab, which town of 45,000 inhabitants had hitherto found existence pleasant enough without such an apparatus. The specimens of Turkish and English print which we have received show that the pressmen have made a fair beginning.—St. James Gazette.

Ingenious Burglars.

Paris Morning News: There are some interesting details about the robbery of the office of Rodrigues Freres, 13 Rue de la Paix, brokers, which have just come to light. The sum taken was 380,000 francs. It now appears that the burglars were either English or American. There were six. Two weeks before the crime they entered the place at the moment of closing and asked for the change of some bank notes, following the porter into the rear of the shop, in order to get a good view of the premises. The same evening they must have returned, opened the door with a pick-lock and taken in wax the impressions needed to carry out their purpose. They then left the city for London to have tools made for the job. These tools, which were afterward found, have been recognized as English manufacture. On the evening before the robbery the porter was dining at a small restaurant in the rue Neuve-des-Petits Champs, and beside him sat an individual whom he thought he recognized as one of those who had entered the shop two weeks before in search of change. The stranger gave him a ticket for an orchestra seat at the Gymnase, which he accepted. It is regarded as strange that the burglars did not take advantage of his absence at the theatre to effect their design.

A SIGN OF SUCCESS.—While Verdi was putting the finishing touches upon Il Trovatore he was visited in his study by a privilege friend, who was one of the ablest living musicians and critics. The latter was permitted to glance over the score and try the "Anvil Chorus" on the piano-forte. "What do you think of that?" asked the master. "Trash!" said the connisseur. Verdi rubbed his hands and chuckled. "Now look at this and this and this," he said. "Rubbish!" The composer rose and embraced his freind with a burst of joy. "What do you mean by such strange conduct?" asked the critical one. "My dear friend," responded the master, "I have been composing a 'popular' opera; in it I resolved to please everybody except the great judges and classicists like you. Had I pleased you I should have pleased no one else; what you say assures me of success. In three months Il Trovator will be sung and roared and whistled at [illegible]-organed all over Italy." And so it was.

THE OSTRICH AS A KICKER.—Dr. Sketchley, who has charge of the ostrich farm at Anaheim, was plucking one of the things one day. When they pluck them a stocking is kept on the head to blind the bird. While he cannot see he is quiet, but if his blinkers get uncovered then he "goes for" the plucker. The doctor moved his arm so as to disturb the stocking, and instantly he saw what was done and went head first out of the pen, not caring for any more plumes just then. As he tumbled head first over the fence the blind—he i was a jack one, of course—let fly a kick which, striking a fence board, made toothpicks of a whole panel length. The mule's occupation as a kicker is gone in this country since the ostrich came.—Los Angeles Express.

HE HAD HIS DOUBTS.—An old citizen stepped up to the polls in Hartwell, Tuesday, and asked for a Democratic ticket. He looked critically at the long list ot electors, and remarked:

"See here, tear off some of this ticket; I don't want to vote for so many of them fellers; who are they, any way?"

The electoral ticket was explained to him.

"All right," said he, "as he polled the ticket. "I don't know them fellers; never heard of 'em, and I was afraid there might be some of these darned Radicals among 'em."—Savannah News.

BEGAN AT THE WRONG END.—"Husking bees are in order," says an exchange. We tried to husk a bee once, one of the "bumble" variety, but he got the best of us.—Danville Breeze.
